The Dove Appears.
Make Crime Dangerous.
Shaw Sees Gandhi.
10 to 4 for Repeal.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

YOU READ in Genesis, chapter eight, that the dove came back to the ark. "And, lo, in her mouth was an olive leaf," so Noah knew that the waters were abated from off the earth.

Business and financial newsdoves are beginning to bring little olive leaves to the ark of the depression.

Net income of railroads in the East has risen 15 per cent in November, compared with October.

Building operations in America went up more than 18 per cent in November, over October. We are gradually climbing up out of the slough.

ALSO TRADE is improving in Germany, much optimism there.

Good news for one country is good for all.

Deep economists tell you, "the acute crisis is over," some industrial undertakings may break down here and there, but the depression flood is subsiding.

A BANDIT, stopping a letter carrier and taking his $1.50, did not touch the letters. Said he:

"It's your dough I want, not Uncle Sam's."

The bandit knows that Uncle Sam catches and punishes mail robbers, no matter what it costs. The way to discourage banditry is to make it dangerous to the criminal intead of, as at present, making it dangerous only for the public.

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW, in India on his way around the world, praising Gandhi, working for the poor untouchables, remarks that if Gandhi killed 6,000,000 people in a big war, instead of threatening to starve himself to death, he would be one of the world's great.

Also Shaw says there are "untouchables" outside of India.

"If an English laborer proposed to marry a duchess, he would soon learn that he was an untouchable."

If, however, the laborer had found a gold mine he would cease to be an untouchable and might enter fine drawing rooms behind his wife, announced as "the Duchess of Blank and Mr. Jones."

In India that would be impossible.

THE SENATE Judiciary Committee has reported favorably by a vote of 10 to 4 a resolution to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment, under which this nation has been drinking bootleg gin and whisky instead of milder drinks properly made. The saloon is forbidden in the report and states that want prohibition on their own account will be protected and encouraged in that desire.

They will also have, largely, a monopoly of bootleggers and racketeers, but some, at least, will know how to attend to that.

HUMAN BEINGS believe in immortality, or think they do. Sea lions know nothing about it, yet the male sea lion recently dead of grief at the loss of his mate in New York's Zoological Garden will have a sort of "immortality" while it lasts.

He and his wife, recently deceased, decently stuffed, to look ferocious, will stand together in the Museum of Natural History. They will interest crowds long after many humans who consider themselves important shall have been forgotten.

THANKS TO the hard work of Harvey D. Gibson, head of the Emergency Relief Committee in New York, 240,000 unemployed have been aided. The substantial sum of $15,000,000 will be given and spent before the winter is over.

The government gives to the Red Cross enough cotton to make 5,000,000 yards of cloth for clothing to be distributed among unemployed families.

Volunteer workers of the Red Cross are cutting and sewing 1,250,000 yards of the cloth.

SHIPPING COMPANIES of the world are preparing an international "cartel" to do away with costly competition. If established, the cartel will let 54 ships do the work of 104, and much money will be saved.

In this country our antiquated Sherman law forbids business men to save money, compelling them to compete at a loss. That's one of our troubles.

FORMER Ambassador Houghton, who served in Great Britain and Germany, tells the Women's National Republican Club that in the big war "we helped break down the German rule of Europe and set up French rule of Europe. That was the extent of our accomplishment."

He adds there is a "new Europe held together by military force. You may presume that it will be broken again by force. Then another big war will come."

Fortunately, the expected usually does not happen. In any case, let us hope that Uncle Sam will keep out of it, with his men and his billions, and avoid being called Uncle Shylock.

THE FIRST Humanist Society of New York, on Sunday, heard Dr. Francis Potter preach about letting units of energy take the place of ordinary cash, gold, etc. Miss Valeska Becker, of Antioch College, Ohio, took the hint, put in the plate a slip of paper, marked:

"My contribution is twenty kilowatts of my energy in working for humanism."

The contribution was not a success. In practical matters the old money is still preferred.

IT IS politically a troubled world, "from Paris to Peking, and from Peking clear to Rome."

MRS. SNIPES SAVED FROM EXECUTION

Sentence Commuted to Life Imprisonment By Governor

International News Service.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 10.—Gov. Ibra C. Blackwood today commuted the death sentence of Mrs. Beatrice Ferguson Snipes, expectant mother, to life imprisonment.

Mrs. Snipes was under sentence of death in the electric chair April 7 for slaying a rural policeman in a highway altercation.

Acting on a petition bearing the signatures of hundreds of South Carolinians pleading that the expectant mother be removed from "the shadow of the electric chair before the birth of her child," Gov. Blackwood without notice instructed his private secretary, Mrs. Clara Yarborough, to prepare papers of communication for his signature.

COMMENT BRIEF

As soon as they were drawn, the papers received the executive signature that made them effective. He commented on his action with brevity. He said:

"In view of all the facts and circumstances of this case and in consideration of her being an expectant mother, I have commuted Mrs. Snipes' death sentence to life imprisonment."

Attorneys appointed by the state to defend the condemned woman yesterday at York, S. C., were granted until February 10 to prepare an appeal to the Supreme Court for a new trial.

State Senator Long, of Charleston, and Representative Lane, of Columbia, had announced, however, they would seek action by the State Legislature, convening for its eightieth session today, to force the state to permit birth of the condemned woman's child outside prison walls.

Mrs. Snipes expects to give birth to her baby within a week.

OFFICER SHOT IN ROW

She was found guilty of first degree murder for the slaying of Policeman Elliott Harris.

Harris was shot to death on a highway near Fort Mills, S. C., last summer during a fight that developed when the policeman stopped the Snipes automobile and searched it for whisky. Not finding liquor, Harris, according to the trial testimony, sought to arrest the couple on a charge of reckless driving.

Clyde Snipes, the woman's husband, objected and was knocked to the ground by Harris. Mrs. Snipes was struck in the mouth by the officer when she sought to shield her husband, she said. She testified at her trial that Harris, after striking her, pulled his pistol and threatened to shoot her.

They grappled and in the scuffle, Mrs. Snipes said, the pistol discharged, felling the policeman.

Mrs. Snipes then shot Harris three more times.

Rail Chief Held for Rum

Ethelbert W. Smith, 48, a vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, formerly vice president of the central region at Pittsburgh, was free today under $400 bail, charged with illegal transportation of liquor, according to an International News dispatch from Philadelphia where the arrest was made.

Mr. Smith

Smith had his headquarters in Pittsburgh from 1928 to 1931, being succeeded here by J. Frank Deays.

Philadelphia police said they seized three five-gallon kegs of corn whisky in Smith's automobile, according to information reaching here.

Philadelphia police became suspicious when he drew up before the railroad company's offices and attempted to conceal the cargo in his expensive automobile with a blanket, they reported.

The railroad official, who gave his home address as Norfolk, Va., went to Philadelphia several days ago to take over his post as vice president after resigning as co-receiver of the Seaboard Airline Railway.

Smith has charge of consolidation work and other duties, acting directly under Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the railroads.

He resigned his post in Pittsburgh in December, 1930 to take up the Seaboard receivership.

WIDOW TRACES BANDMAN FOES

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Mrs. Frances Schildhauer, for a month a target of the police investigation of the slaying of her husband, dapper bandmaster, suddenly took the offensive today. Her attorney, James M. Burke, announced she had hired a detective to search for the slayer among the "enemies" she said her husband had.

More questioning faced the young widow, however, as Melvin Purvis, chief of the Bureau of Investigation here, said he wanted to ask her about the trip she admitted taking with Carl Bradberry to Memphis.

Mrs. Schildhauer maintains her husband's success as bandmaster at Austin High School created much professional jealousy among other musicians. She even named one band leader who "wanted him out of the way," her attorney said.

The police organized 40 jobless men to search for the revolver with which Schildhauer was killed. They hoped it might have been thrown into a vacant lot near where his body was found after he was abducted in a car by two men the night of December 10.

PILOT SAVED AS PLANE BURNS

County Airport Force Pulls Unconscious Man From Ship

The west-bound mail plane of the Transcontinental and Western Air lines crashed in flames at the county airport early today. Pilot Jack Zimmerman, of Columbus, O., was injured and a valuable cargo of mail and express were destroyed. The ship carried no passengers.

The ship, with a 750-pound cargo, left the airport at 4:06 a. m. after refueling. It had risen about 200 feet when the pilot, apparently finding some mechanical difficulty, turned back and attempted to land. About 125 feet from the hard-surfaced runway at the southwestern end of the field the plane, according to eye-witnesses, dove sharply and crashed in flames.

PILOT SAVED

Quick-thinking on the part of airport attaches saved the pilot's life. H. A. Dugan, night operations manager, who had witnessed the crash, ran to his automobile nearby and was joined by Robert Totten, weather observer. They raced to the blazing wreckage and dragged Zimmerman to safety a few scant seconds before the flames swept into the pilot's cockpit, amidships.

Zimmerman was hanging from his life-belt unconscious. The front end and undercarriage of the plane were reduced to a twisted mass of wreckage. Gasoline from the wing tanks ran over the ground and soon an area 50 feet around was blazing.

FIREMEN CALLED

The pilot's wife, awaiting her husband's arrival in Columbus, heard of the crash and came to Pittsburgh on the first east-bound flight, arriving at the county airport shortly after 8 a. m. She went immediately to the McKeesport Hospital where her husband is said to be suffering from lacerations and contusions of the head and face and a probable fractured skull.

The cause of the crash had not been determined early this afternoon.

Postoffice inspectors said it would require several days to check the value of the registered mail destroyed, after making an investigation of the wrecked plane. They picked up a quantity of papers partly burned and collected loose dirt about the wreckage, which they will sift to recover any jewelry the mail may have contained.

2 Women Collapse During Court Trials

Two women collapsed today while appearing in court as witnesses. Mrs. Isabel Goebel, Fifth avenue, McKeesport, a witness in the divorce action of Freda McGraw against James McGraw, collapsed and was sent to Mercy Hospital.

Mrs. Marion M. Brown, 2855 Charles street, collapsed while testifying in her damage suit against the Yellow Cab Company and was attended by a court nurse.

Roosevelt, House Hold Conference

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Col. E. M. House, intimate adviser of President Wilson on foreign affairs, went into a luncheon conference with President-elect Roosevelt today.

Following closely upon yesterday's meeting with Roosevelt and Secretary Stimson, the two meetings were coupled by some to mean that possibly immediate action is in prospect in the field of foreign affairs.

Carol Enraged by Cards Showing Love Scenes

BUCHAREST, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—An investigation was ordered by King Carol II today into a wave of insidious propaganda, which has been flooding Rumania, including the dissemination of thousands of picture postcards depicting the monarch in romantic poses with his favorite, Mme. Magda Lupescu.

For the last few days virtually every village and town of Rumania has received its quota of the postcards. Some show the King and Mme. Lupescu sitting at a table in the act of toasting one another in champagne. Others show the titan-haired beauty seated on the King's knees, with his arms about her in a loving embrace.

Carol was incensed when the postcards first came to his attention. Suspecting that personal enemies within his own country, who have openly expressed disapproval of his association with Mme. Lupescu, may have been responsible, the King ordered police to exert every effort to discover the perpetrators.

Blue Law Advocates Fight Against Change

Drys, Church Forces Massing to Balk Modification

HARRISBURG, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The fight against modification of the Sunday blue law and repeal of the Snyder-Armstrong prohibition enforcement act broke loose in the House today.

Communications against the repeal and modification proposals were received by Speaker Grover C. Talbot from dry forces and church organizations.

W. C. T. U. ACTIVE

The Luzerne County Chapter of the Women's Christian Temperance Union urged continuation of the state prohibition law, while the Central Troop Chapter of the W. C. T. U. and the Pittsburgh Reformed Presbytery, announced they will fight modification of the Sunday laws.

The communications were referred to the Law and Order Committee.

A report from John H. Fertig, executive director of the Legislative Reference Bureau, codifying the assessment laws, was submitted to the House. There are no changes in the laws.

Representative Clinton Sowers, of Philadelphia, said last night that modification of the blue laws has scored a "home run" in the Death Rate Here Drops During 1932

Pittsburgh's death rate for 1932 was slightly higher than the average rate for large cities throughout the nation, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Washington today. Its rate of 12.7 deaths for each 1,000 population, however, was lower than the 1931 rate, which was given as 14.1.

The average death rate of the large cities of the country was 11.2 for each 1,000 population. Erie's rate was exactly that, and Philadelphia's 12.

LIBBY ENTERS HOSPITAL

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—Libby Holman Reynolds, former Broadway singer and widow of Smith Reynolds, heir to the tobacco millions, found mysteriously slain last July at Winston-Salem, N. C., was admitted to the new maternity ward of the Pennsylvania Hospital today.

Although hospital officials maintained she was there "for observation only," it was understood the singer was waiting the birth of her child. She was attended by Dr. Norris W. Vaux, prominent Philadelphia obstetrician.

Libby already has indicated the child will be named "Smith," whether it is a boy or a girl, in memory of her husband, for whose slaying she was once indicted together with Ab Walker, intimate friend of the tobacco heir.

STATE BUDGET CUT MILLIONS

HARRISBURG, Jan. 10.—Gov. Gifford Pinchot today asked the Legislature for appropriations aggregating $290,694,236 in all commonwealth funds for the two years beginning next June 1, and announced his recommendations were designed to effect a reduction in taxes, provide unemployment relief and avoid new taxes.

Except for reference to one especial fund—motor license—the Governor confined his message proper to an analysis of the general fund, the budget for which, he said, is balanced. That budget, covering the government expense, which the general taxpayer stands, calls for $158,000,000 for the biennium, or a reduction of $34,000,000 from the figure for the current period. His $290,694,236 total for all funds is nearly $60,000,000 less than the amount provided for the present two-year period.

The Governor estimated revenues for the general fund for the next two years at $156,500,000, and predicted a surplus of $1,500,000 from the current two years.

The general fund budget does not include any money for unemployment relief. Last week the Governor recommended his proposals for "improved" methods of

REED SPEECH REPUDIATED BY SENATE

'Lying Insult' Part of Foes' Offensive, Governor Says

Developments in Harrisburg today were these:

Gov. Pinchot submitted a budget requiring appropriations of $290,694,236, a reduction of nearly $60,000,000 from the amount provided for the present biennium.

A senator's slur of Mrs. Pinchot was termed by the Governor part of "the organization's attack" on his administration.

Fight to prevent Blue Law modification and repeal of state prohibition enforcement act began.

Senator Mansfield charged Senator Coyne engineered his removal as chairman of Committee on Education in a political deal.

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Jan. 10.—Gov. Pinchot today charged that Senator George Reed's reflection upon Mrs. Pinchot last night in a Senate speech, later expunged from the record, was a part of "the Organization attack" upon his administration.

The Republican organization today was under the embarrassment of disavowing Reed, one of its principal legislative orators, who shouted that "I remember hearing reports on the streets of Harrisburg that Mrs. Pinchot was drunk," following an automobile accident in Newark, N. J., in March of 1931, in which the official car of the Governor was involved.

PINCHOT'S REPLY

Gov. Pinchot said today:

"The lying insult to Mrs. Pinchot as a part of the organization attack on this administration is beneath contempt. I resent it profoundly, and so will every right-minded person in the whole state."

Reed's hearsay charge, interjected into a speech in which he belabored the Pinchot administration for extravagance, caused

Statewide Hunt Begins For Parents of Child

A state-wide search for the parents of Ann Michaels, 4, began today as a request went over the police teletype system to enlist the aid of state police.

Brown-eyed Ann has been a ward of the Juvenile Detention Home since December 29, when she was picked up in the Penn avenue district. Nobody has appeared to claim her, or report her disappearance.

Police questioning the child learned that she is from a mining town where state police are quartered. Her home is under a new bridge, and there are no stores in the town.

When she mentioned the state police being quartered in her home town, the local police asked state officers to join in the search.

A description of the child says she is a blonde, plump and very attractive.

SENATE WETS PRESS FIGHT FOR EARLY REPEAL ACTION

IGNORE HOUSE DEMOCRATS' OPPOSITION

Blaine Foresees Test After Vote on Glass Bill

By PAUL C. YATES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Despite an ultimatum from Democratic House leaders, Senate wets laid plans today to press their fight for early approval of the repeal resolution reported favorably by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The ultimatum, delivered by Speaker John N. Garner and Representative Rainey, of Illinois, Democartic floor leader, put the Senate on notice that the House would not consider the resolution unless it were amended in accordance with Democratic platform pledges.

The provision giving Congress power to legislate against return of the saloon was the chief point of controversy between the Senate Judiciary Committee and the Democratic House chieftains.

PROVISION OPPOSED

This provision was viewed with misgivings by a number of Senate wets, including both Democrats and Republicans.

Senator Blaine (Rep.), of Wisconsin, chairman of the judiciary sub-committee which framed the repeal proposal, warmly defended the retention by the federal government of authority to regulate the sale of liquor.

Blaine declared a Senate showdown on repeal will be sought as soon as the Glass banking reform bill is out of the way. Blaine said:

"The resolution rids the country of the Eighteenth Amendment and national prohibition. It protects the dry states against invasion of liquor. It gives Congress power to work out any desired system for the sale of intoxicants or to leave this problem to each state."

SYSTEMS PROPOSED

The liquor control system of Ontario, Canada, or the Bratt system of Sweden could be adopted with the proposed constitutional amendment in effect, Blaine declared.

In assailing the Senate resolution, Garner and Rainey pointed out that the Democratic platform adopted at the Chicago national convention pledged "naked repeal," with no reservations.

They cited also, the Democratic platform pledge binding the party to submit repeal to specially called state conventions rather than state legislatures.

MANSFIELD BILL HITS TAX JOB

HARRISBURG, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Senator William D. Mansfield, Allegheny, has introduced two bills abolishing the office of delinquent county tax collector in Allegheny County and changing the penalties on delinquent county taxes.

The ripper bill provides that in lieu of the county delinquent tax collector, the County Treasurer may appoint deputy tax collectors for each third class city, borough and township in Allegheny County, the County Treasurer himself collecting these taxes in Pittsburgh.

The County Treasurer now appoints the delinquent tax collector, who receives a 10 per cent fee from taxes he collects.

The measure also provides that in third-class cities, boroughs and townships the deputy collectors may be banks or trust companies, or the local tax collector.

The county salary board would fix the compensation for the collection of these taxes.

The other measure reduces the September 1st penalty on delinquent county taxes from 10 per cent to 5 per cent. In addition it levies further penalties of ½ of 1 per cent each month beginning January 1st of the year succeeding that for which the tax was levied.

Local Labor Aided By McElwee's Bills

HARRISBURG, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Municipalities would have the right to require contractors to employ local labor on public improvements under the terms of a bill introduced by Representative William McElwee, Lawrence.

Under another bill by McElwee, poor districts would be permitted to hire persons, receiving relief from the district, on public improvements and pay them at the current wage rate in the district.

OIL CITY BANS SUNDAY FILMS

OIL CITY, Pa., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Oil City's hot controversy over Sunday shows was ended today following the action of City Council in unanimously passing an ordinance prohibiting Sabbath movies.

The ordinance, which climaxes a spirited campaign for and against the entertainment, was passed last night.

It provides for a $300 fine or 90 days in jail for persons convicted of violating the law.

The Rev. Herman Bilenberg, pastor of the Christ Lutheran Church, in an open letter read at last night's meeting, criticized the local ministerial association, which supported the ordinance, for "mixing religion and politics."

Several members of the Council announced they favor a referendum on the question at the next city elections.

Demands Columbia Ban Fraternities

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The Columbia University Spectator, undergraduate publication, today advocated the abolition of all fraternities at the university.

The recommendation was made editorially following an investigation which, the newspaper said, disclosed that a group of 12 of the Greek letter societies had combined to "cold-bloodedly" auction off "to the highest bidder" many of the honorary student positions.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—J. C. (Jack) Walton, impeached and ousted as Governor in 1923, after a brief but spectacular administration, has returned to power in the Oklahoma Statehouse. While Jack Senzell, 38, is recovering in Allegheny General Hospital from an undetermined malady, police are holding Mrs. Mary Cole, 47, housekeeper in a rooming house at 418 Penn avenue, in the hallway of which Senzell was found unconscious today.

Patrolman Hugh Lavery, after sending Senzell to the hospital, charged Mrs. Cole with keeping a disorderly house. Lavery said he had found home brew and moonshine in the house. Police were ordered to search for John Smith, named by Mrs. Cole as the owner of the rooming house. Senzell had been rooming in the house for several days and had been drinking, police said.

SOVIET RAISES OUTPUT GOAL

MOSCOW, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—A challenge was cast to "the capitalist world" today by Joseph V. Stalin in the industrial program he has mapped out for Russia for the next five years.

The Bolshevik chieftain announced a 16 per cent increase in general production over last year as this year's goal of the socialist nation.

Stalin announced his plans in a speech before a joint meeting of the Communist party Central Committee and the Central Control Committee. It was made public three days later—his first speech made public in more than a year.

Claiming "the successful fulfillment of the (first) five-year plan," he declared its aim was "to change the country from one with the technique of the middle ages to one of contemporary technique—to make the nation independent of the whims of capitalism."

He admitted the program was actually only 93.7 per cent fulfilled. "But we did it in four years and three months," he added, recalling the program was cut short for the beginning of the new schedule this year.

HOOVER URGES BAN ON ARMS TRADE

Speedy Ratification Of Suppression Plan Asked

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Chairman Borah today called a meeting of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for tomorrow to consider President Hoover's special message recommending ratification of the 1925 arms traffic suppression convention.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—President Hoover, in a special message to Congress, today urged either the speedy ratification of the projected convention to suppress trade in implements of war or special legislation empowering the chief executive to limit or forbid shipment of arms for military purposes.

The message which has been awaiting presidential approval for several weeks, did not mention any specific conflict such as the unofficial Sino-Japanese war or the differences between Paraguay and Bolivia in the Chaco.

LIMITATION OF WAR

The chief executive said, however, that either ratification of the international convention signed at Geneva in 1925, or the special legislation to forbid arms shipments in cases where co-operation could be secured with other major arms manufacturing nations would aid in the "prevention and limitation of war."

Recent events, the President said, have emphasized a need for more authority in the control of shipments of arms from the United States for military purposes. He said:

"There can be no doubt that the control of such shipments to areas of prospective and actual international conflict would greatly aid the earnest and unceasing efforts which all nations now make to prevent and lessen the dangers of such conflicts.

ADVANTAGE TO ONE

"However, for one nation alone to engage in such prohibitions while other nations continue to supply arms is a futility. Moreover, it would tend to give advantage to one nation over another by increasing the war potentialities in manufacture and skill of nonco-operating nations."

The President indicated he believed it would be "impossible" for the Senate to ratify the international convention suppressing trade in arms, signed at Geneva, and added that if this were the case " it is urgent that legislation should be passed conferring upon the President authority in his discretion to limit or forbid shipment of arms for military purposes in cases where special undertakings of co-operation can be secured with the principal arms manufacturing nations."

SCORES R. F. C. AID TO STATE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—An assertion that Pennsylvania is receiving "very shabby treatment" from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was made today by Thomas Kennedy, of Hazleton, Pa., at Senate hearings on the $500,000,000 LaFollette-Costigan unemployment relief bill.

The witness, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, told the Senate Manufacturers' Committee that the amounts granted by the corporation in relief loans have been "entirely too small in comparison to the needs of Pennsylvania."

Kennedy objected also that "such small amounts as have been granted have been given grudgingly," and that the funds "provide only for food and certain types of fuel."

The witness estimated that almost 1,200,000 persons in Pennsylvania are jobless, including about 125,000 coal miners.

Tax Fee Fight Urged By Economy League

Residents of Western Pennsylvanie were urged by the Western Pennsylvania branch of the National Economy League today to make immediate and direct protest to their representatives in the General Assembly against the fee system of tax collection, which, it was stated, claims an exorbitant part of all taxes collected.

The league's resolution said the organization was formed to secure elimination of all wasteful and unnecessary governmental expenditures. The resolution was adopted by the executive committee of the branch, of which A. Rex Flinn is chairman.

CHINESE BALK JAP ADVANCE

PEIPING, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—Sharp fighting was under way between Japanese and Chinese troops near the Great Wall tonight as both sides claimed mastery of Chiumenkuo, important gateway to Jehol province.

Gen. Ho Chi-Kuo, Chinese commander, insisted he was still in possession of the town, although Japanese authorities claimed its capture.

The clash occurred shortly after a detachment of Japanese and Manchukuo cavalry, artillery and infantry left Shanhaikwan and Sanchiatun for Chiumenkuo.

The Japanese advance was abruptly halted in the exchange of fire. Four bombing planes participated in the battle, which was still progressing at nightfall, with Chinese reinforcements strengthening the Chinese lines.

reorganization of House and Senate committees.

PREDICTS VICTORY

Sowers, who led the successful fight in which the House approved modification two years ago, said the new committees were formed in accordance with "the mandate of the people" given at the last election.

He expressed confidence that both the Sunday law modification and repeal of the state prohibition enforcement act will be approved by the Legislature.

Before the House adjourned, Speaker Grover C. Talbot warned all members to attend tomorrow morning's session. He said the doors will be locked if there is not a quorum, and sergeant-at-arms will round up absentees.

He said he made this announcement because there are 101 new members, and he believed they should be advised their presence is required at all sessions.

The Senate had decided on a session tomorrow morning, which automatically forced the House to meet.

SENATE AWAITS DEBT BATTLE RENEWAL

Johnson, Borah Fight Bitterly Over 'Secret' Laval-Hoover Pact

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—An atmosphere of bitterness hovered over the Senate today in the wake of the clash between two Republican giants—Senators William E. Borah, of Idaho, and Hiram W. Johnson, of California—on the issue of war debts.

The Senate was waiting for Johnson's promised reply to what the Californian called "Borah's arguments in favor of debt cancellation and his defense of France's repudiation of her war debt."

BORAH'S DENIAL

Borah denied he was attempting to justify France's repudiation of the debt. He asserted there was no justification for France's action.

The Idahoan sought to prove President Hoover had given Premier Laval, of France, some assurances in October, 1931, that a revision of German reparations would be followed by a revision of the French war debt to America. Secretary of State Stimson and Secretary of the Treasury Mills denied Mr. Hoover gave such assurances, but admitted there had been a discussion of war debts and reparations "limited entirely to temporary steps which might be taken to offset the effects of the depression."

HOOVER PROMISE

Borah declared the French were led by Mr. Hoover to expect a debt revision if German reparations were reduced.

It was this contention which led Johnson to charge the Idaho Senator had withheld vital information from the Senate on the Hoover-Laval conference.

The two astounded the Senate by charging each other with "absolutely inaccurate" statements.

The exchange ended when Borah declared he would "start a kindergarten and allow Senator Johnson to be the first pupil."

The clash brought out that Johnson plans to assail Borah's plan for canceling war debts if Europe agrees to disarmament, remonetization of silver and several other economic relief measures.

Borah Right on Debt Pact, French Senator Declares

PARIS, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Senator Damecour, dean of the upper house, declared in the Senate today that President Hoover clearly told former Premier Laval that if France consented to reduce her reparations claim against Germany the United States would proceed with revision of the war debts.

United States Senator Borah, he asserted, had recognized the accuracy of this statement.

Stricken Youth's Identity Sought

Recovering from hunger and exposure, a youth, aged about 17, believed to have been employed in Pittsburgh, was in Brownsville Hospital today while authorities sought to establish his identity. He was found in Brownsville early yesterday by a truck driver.

Police found in his possession a paper bearing the name of Ted Capper, 6330 Station street, Pittsburgh. Capper, owner of a restaurant, said a boy he knew only as "Frank" had once worked for him.

One Day of 'Pet' Monkey Enough for Lawmaker

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Representative Horr (Rep.), of Washington, is much happier—the national zoo has taken off his hands what was supposed to be a pet monkey.

One day's ownership was enough for Horr. From the time it was given to him by a friend in New York the alleged pet brought nothing but grief. At the very start Horr became unpopular when the marmoset got away in the railroad station and climbed on a lunch counter for what was some kind of a monkey game.

Horr finally got the animal to Washington and into his office, where he put him on exhibition for his friends. First off the marmoset chewed the erasers off all the pencils in sight. But the last straw came when it got on top of the file cases and began throwing the pencils at the invited representatives and the office force.

Horr told his secretary to give the monkey to the zoo and, to his great relief, it was accepted.

'Kingfish' Asks Congress Revive Mosaic Laws

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—Declaring man-made laws had brought the world to economic ruin, Senator Long (Dem.), of Louisiana, today urged Congress to enact the 3,424-year-old Mosaic statutes in order to restore prosperity to America. The Louisiana "Kingfish" said:

"We have tried out the laws dictated by big business and based on theories expounded by Wall street, only to find our nation in economic ruin. Our people are starving when we have too much food. Our people go naked when we have too much clothing in our factories and stores. Our people go without shelter when we have too many dwellings."

Long explained that the Mosaic law provided a jubilee every seventh and fiftieth year, in which the people took a year's rest in order to use up all surpluses. He added the laws of Moses also provided for an equitable distribution of wealth by descent, preventing the transfer of swollen fortunes from father to son.

The "Kingfish" spent $8.50 to purchase two Bibles, so he can read the Mosaic statutes to the Senate during debate on the pending Glass banking bill.

Aside from proclaiming "jubilees" every seventh and fifteenth year, Long said, the Mosaic law would restore to every man his possessions at the end of 50 years. It likewise, he added, would give every home owner the same period in which to reclaim his property if sold for taxes or under a mortgage foreclosure.

KNIFE SLAYING OF SLEEPING BABY BAFFLES N. Y. SLEUTHS

CHILD PINIONED TO MATTRESS BY DAGGER

50 Persons Questioned Fail to Give Hint As to Motive

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Detectives, grimly searching for the murderer who plunged a seven-inch knife blade through the breast of a 4-month-old baby as he slept in his crib in the Bronx last night, had questioned 50 persons before noon today without results.

Revenge, they believe, was the motive for the slaying of little Frank Michael Cammarano, at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cammarano, but just how the killing was accomplished was still a mystery today.

The baby slept in a rear bedroom on the first floor, and the only window opened on to an enclosed porch. The high back of the wooden crib, however, covered most of the lower part of the window, and police said it would have been practically impossible for any one to reach in around it and stab the baby.

Sixteen-year-old Theresa Cammarano, the child's aunt, told the detectives, however, that she was in the room about five minutes before the murder was discovered, and that the window was closed. Feeling a draft as she walked by the door, she again entered the room, found the window open, she said, and saw the handle of the knife protruding from the tiny body.

Wounds of the body indicated two attempts were made before the long blade finally was plunged through the chest. The knife, with a seven-inch blade and a three-inch handle, finally went through the blanket covering the baby and pierced the mattress under the body.

The boy was the firstborn child of Amando Cammarano, who was attending a class in plumbing instruction at night school when the murder was committed. He and his wife and baby had been living for some months with his parents.

CAPITAL, LABOR CLASH GRIPS EINSTEIN

Studies Plan to Get Competent Men Into Proper Places

By WALLACE X. RAWLES
International News Service.

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 10.—The growing struggle between capital and labor today concerned Dr. Albert Einstein, German wizard, more than the profound mysteries of the cosmos.

Settling down at the California Institute of Technology for two months of study, lectures and rest, Dr. Einstein, who arrived yesterday from Germany with Frau Einstein, 30 pieces of baggage, his beloved violin and his pipe, was deeply interested "in the problem of getting competent men into their proper places."

This problem, he said, is not new, but again must be studied if economic peace is to be restored.

CITES CAUSE OF DISTRESS

The primary cause of present world distress, Dr. Einstein explained, is overuse of power with subsequent surplus of labor.

In effect, he would solve one phase of the economic problem by curtailing machinery production, or by co-ordinating it with the available supply of human labor.

Highlights of Dr. Einstein's statements on scientific matters was his support of the theory of Dr. Richard Tolman, distinguished physicist.

Dr. Tolman maintains that a pulsating universe expands until gravity catches hold and pulls it together until it again expands under constrained energy. This, strangely, is a contravention of Dr. Einstein's earlier theory of a static universe.

LAUDS DR. MILLIKAN

Definite indication of the nature and origin of cosmic rays will be smoothed out by continued experiments, Dr. Epstein said, and added that Dr. Robert A. Millikan, of Pasadena, "knows more about this than anyone else."

Asked if he believed cosmic rays to be photons—similar to invisible "bullets of light"—or electrons—highly charged electric particles, Dr. Einstein referred the interviewer to Dr. Millikan, who made the startling statement that he expected to make definite announcement within a year.

Dr. Millikan previously had guarded his progress in developing results of electroscopic experiments at various altitudes and latitudes from Northern Canada to Chile.

COOLIDGE WILL LEAVES ALL TO WIDOW

$100,000 Trust Fund Provides for Son Of Ex-President

Universal Service.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 10.—The will of the late Calvin Coolidge, under which his widow, Grace Goodhue Coolidge, is sole beneficiary, will be filed for probate January 17.

No estimate of the estate left by Mr. Coolidge has been announced, but friends made the guess that it would approximate $250,000.

According to Ralph W. Hemenway, Coolidge's law partner, Mrs. Coolidge will not permit publication of the contents of the will.

The document made no mention of John, only living son of the late former President, but it was explained that Mr. Coolidge had established a trust fund, estimated at $100,000, for his son at the time of his marriage to Florence Trumbull, daughter of John H. Trumbull, former Governor of Connecticut.

WROTE OWN WILL

The Coolidge will was written in his own hand while he was President, and was described by Hemenway as "short and to the point."

It was made in Washington, was undated and was witnessed by Everett Sanders and Edward T. Clarke, his executive secretaries, and Erwin Geisser, his stenographer.

Mrs. Coolidge knew that her husband had made a will, but did not locate it until late yesterday, when she found it among some personal papers in his desk at "The Beeches."

Existence of the will was announced to newspapermen by Hemenway after a conference at "The Beeches" with Mrs. Coolidge, her son, John; his wife, and Harry Ross, the late President's secretary.

Mrs. Coolidge was named executrix of the will, presumably without bond.

SEVERAL ESTATES

The $250,000 estimate of the estate's value is based upon the fact that the estate includes the $40,000 Coolidge home, "The Beeches;" the Coolidge homestead in Plymouth, Vt., with its 16-room farmhouse and acres of woodland and pasture; the investments of Mr. Coolidge since he left the White House, and the estate of his father, the late Col. John Coolidge, estimated as high as $100,000.

It was said that Coolidge saved more of his salary as President than did any of his predecessors, and that he had made wise investments since leaving Washington.

BANDITS ROB PLANE RIDERS

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—Six prominent businessmen, victims of Chicago's first "airplane robbery," today gave police a description of three gunmen who kidnaped and robbed them as they drove away from the municipal airport last night after an air trip from Springfield, Ill. The robbers obtained $350 in cash and jewelry valued at $2,650.

The gunmen stopped the American Airway bus as it was leaving the airport and forced the driver to proceed to a deserted section. There one of the robbers ordered:

"Just step out one at a time.'

As the passengers alighted they were relieved of the cash and valuables. The trio then escaped in an automobile.

Three of those robbed, Wilmart Ickes, Chicago businessman; Charles J. Young, prominent broker, and John J. McMahon, former assistant state's attorney, were returning from the Horner inauguration at Springfield.

BETTY COMPSON HIDES IN FEAR

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Betty Compson, screen actress, declaring herself badly frightened, sought seclusion at Laguna Beach today while police moved warily in the hope of arresting members of a robber-extortionist gang believed responsible for the theft of her jewels last Thursday night, and other large gem robberies in the film colony.

Chief of Detectives Joseph Taylor answered the actress' appeal that the investigation be dropped, because of threats against her life by the robbers, with the statement he would grant until midweek for the recovery of the jewelry through private channels. He added, however, that a roundup of suspects was planned. He said:

"We expect to arrest at least three members of the gang that has been robbing film stars of jewels and returning them for a "commission."

Taylor said the "key man" moved in the best motion picture social circles and his arrest would astonish the film colony.

MOTHER NAMES PLUNGE VICTIM

The woman who leaped or fell from the retaining wall along the Boulevard of the Allies to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks 130 feet below has been identified as Mrs. Anna McClelland, 40, of 3110 Niagara street, by her mother, Mrs. Eva Orlosky, of 911 Blackberry way, McKeesport.

Mrs. Orlosky

Mrs. Orlosky said she was notified that her daughter was in Mercy Hospital, following a plunge on Sunday night, by her son-in-law, John McClelland, to whom Anna was married seven years ago.

Oakland police today detained former Patrolman John McClelland for questioning. McClelland told Copt. John Barry that he had last seen his wife on Sunday, when she boarded a street car enroute to McKeesport to visit her parents.

Trotzky's Secretary Goes for Specialist

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—Leon Trotzky's secretary left for Vienna today to fetch a specialist as the exiled Soviet revolutionist's illness reached serious proportions.

Trotzky, who remained confined in his villa on Prinkipo Island, has been in ill health for many years and it is believed his illness was aggravated by the change of food and water during his recent foreign trip. Constantly watched by a Soviet secret police force, G. P. U. agents, Trotzky was compelled to keep in close confinement.

N.Y. Assembly Backs 'Buy American' Plan

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—David St. Clair, Minneapolis, recent winner of a Rhodes scholarship, is left-handed now, but he doesn't stutter.

St. Clair only recently became left-handed. Dr. Bryng Bryngelson, director of the speech clinic at the University of Minnesota, said today. He entered the speech clinic struggling with stuttering and it was found necessary to have him revert to the use of the left hand before the speech difficulty could be overcome.

PA. DORRANCE RULING STANDS

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The State Supreme Court today refused to consider its decision upholding the right of Pennsylvania to collect transfer inheritance taxes from the estate of John T. Dorrance, millionaire soup man.

The state of New Jersey contended that Dorrance was a resident of that state and assessed a tax of $16,768,476 against the estate.

The Pennsylvania Supreme Court held that Dorrance was a resident of Delaware County in Pennsylvania and fixed the inheritance tax due Pennsylvania at $17,400,000.

The case was carried to the United States Supreme Court, which yesterday denied permission to New Jersey to file a complaint against the state of Pennsylvania.

Insurance Ban Warned Coolidge of His Doom

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Calvin Coolidge, late ex-President, knew he was a doomed man for some time before his sudden death from heart disease.

The fact that the former President was "not insurable" was said today to be common knowledge among insurance executives.

It was said Coolidge applied for $200,000 worth of insurance within the last year and that he was turned down as a poor risk.

The physical examination was reported as disclosing that his heart was weak.

The cause of death in his Northampton home was subsequently given as coronary thrombosis, or bursting of an artery leading into the heart.

True to his life-long reputation for keeping his own counsel, the silent man from the Vermont mountains apparently told neither relative nor friend of his precarious condition.

It was the consensus of insurance agents that the ex-President was not heavily insured and the report that he might have carried a $1,000,000 policy was scoffed at.

New 3-Cent Stamp To Honor Coolidge

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The fascinating possibility that many left-handed persons may be but halves of a twinned person, whose other half failed to reach birth, will be emphasized to American science with the arrival of Prof. Auguste Piccard, stratosphere balloonist, who is due here tomorrow or Thursday on the steamer Champlain.

These scientific swin studies are the work of Prof. Piccard's twin brother, Jean, himself a scientist residing in Marshallton, Del., and the two brothers are living examples to support the theory.

Few persons except some scientists know that the Piccard twins are "identical," that rare combination which means they are halves of the same physical person.

The two look so much alike that they are mistaken for one another. Like many identical twins, one is left-handed, the other right. Prof. Piccard is the natural "lefty" of the pair, a fact usually concealed because he has trained himself into ambidexterity.

Jean Piccard married an identical twin, a fact which has concentrated his attention on some features of twinning so unusual that he presented them privately to scientists at the American Association for the Advancement of Science meeting in Atlantic City.

Pitt Girl Grad Becomes 'Life-Saving Chemist'

Unmindful of the fact that life had been restored to a man given up for dead through one of her chemical compounds, Mrs. M. M. Brooks, attractive, bob-haired graduate of the University of Pittsburgh, continued hard at work today in her California laboratory.

Mrs. Brooks was Mathilda Amelia Moltenhauer when she was graduated from Pitt with a bachelor of arts degree in 1912 and a master of science degree in 1913.

The chemical that brought lasting fame to the former Pittsburgh co-ed was methylene blue, which she developed in collaboration with Dr. J. J. Geiger, San Francisco medical officer. It was used in reviving Allen D. Malby, 52, found apparently dead on the floor of his garage in Berkley, Cal.

The chemical heretofore had been used in saving the lives of would-be suicides who used cyanide. The use of the chemical to save victims of carbon monoxide gas poisoning is only a phase of the research work of Mrs. Brooks. She is now engaged in testing the effect of dyes on abnormal growth in connection with cancer research, experimenting with external applications of such chemicals. She holds a degree from Harvard in addition to one from the University of Pittsburgh.

PINCHOT MAKES $60,000,000 BUDGET CUT

tax collection be adopted, asserting they would provide $20,000,000 for jobless relief.

In his budget recommendations, Gov. Pinchot made no cuts in the legislative and judiciary appropriations, but said there should be large reductions in these and they should originate in the General Assembly. He added:

"It is expected that 21 bureaus will be eliminated in the departments under my control and their necessary functions transferred. Positions will be consolidated, overlapping functions, if any, will disappear, and field offices will be abolished. A better purchasing procedure has been outlined. Inventories will be reduced; cash discounts will be increased; delays will be eliminated. The saving in property and supplies alone will be large."

He said the $158,000,000 revenue will come from mercantile, inheritance, corporation and other "general" taxes, and that 58 per cent of this money will be used for relief of the local taxpayer.

His recommendations for spending the $158,000,000 include $91,300,000 for subsidies, including grants to schools and state-aided institutions; $30,200,000 for maintenance of all institutions; $500,000 for completing Pymatuning Dam, and $36,000,000 for operating the executive, judicial and legislative branches of the state government.

ECONOMIES PLANNED

In reducing the general fund budget by $34,000,000, the Governor would obtain economies from three principal sources and, largely, from four governmental departments. The limitation of state construction to Pymatuning Dam accounts for a $16,000,000 drop; reductions in general operating costs of all departments and institutions provide $12,000,000, and cuts in subsidies to schools, hospitals, institutions, pensions and indemnities yield the remaining $6,000,000.

A reduction of about $30,000,000 would be made in the appropriations of the following departments in these amounts: Welfare, $14,000,000; Public Instruction, $11,000,000; Property and Supplies, $3,000,000; Forest and Waters, $1,900,000.

The relatively large slash in the Welfare Department is in curtailment of construction. Maintenance of state-owned institutions shows a $2,600,000 cut, while subsidies to hospitals and other institutions drop $700,000.

ASKS BOOST FOR P. S. C.

He recommended an approximate cut of ten per cent in appropriations to welfare institutions and health sanitoria against a cut of 18 per cent for state departments under his jurisdiction. He also recommended 18 per cent slashes for the Auditor General and State Treasury departments, noting these fiscal offices had asked for the same amount as they had for the current period.

The Governor asked for a $250,000 increase for the Public Service Commission. He said this amount, if granted, would result in savings of many times that amount to the people.

He recommended the Public Service Commission be placed in the same category with the Banking and Insurance departments by making the utilities pay for the cost of running the commission.

He recommended a $3,900,000 slash in subsidies to public schools, asking for $57,700,000 for this purpose.

EDUCATION 'POOLED'

Without giving details, he announced the presidents of the four state-aided universities—Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Temple and State College—on their own initiative had agreed to eliminate duplication of instruction, to cooperate toward establishment of a policy of higher education for the state, and to make their resources available to the state for research, information and advice.

Other recommendations included:

Appropriation of $200,000 for aid to veterans; $7,151,500, the same as for the current period, for state-aided hospitals; $4,115,938, the same as for the current period, for mothers' assistance fund payments; $2,000,000 to rid the state of tuberculous cattle.

The motor license fund, he estimated, will be 6 per cent less in the next two years than in the current period.

Motor fund receipts for the current period are estimated at $134,000,000, and the revenues for the next two years the Governor estimated at $126,000,000. He recommended a budget for this fund of $104,000,000 of which $46,000,000 is for road maintenance and construction on the old state highway system, and $41,985,000 for construction and maintenance of the rural highway system.

House Votes to End Session April 13

HARRISBURG, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The House last night unanimously passed a resolution providing for final adjournment Thursday, April 13.

Mansfield Attributes Ouster to Deal by Senator Coyne

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Jan. 10.—Senator William D. Mansfield, of McKeesport, today flatly charged that his removal as chairman of the Committee on Education in the Senate was a political deal engineered by Senator James J. Coyne, foe of the Pittsburgh Board of Education.

Mansfield, after having served several terms in this post, was removed yesterday by President Pro Tem James Boyd, of Montgomery County, Senator Richard W. Williamson, of Huntingdon, being named as his successor.

This shift was the highlight in a shuffling of chairmanships in Senate and House all dictated by the Republican organization, almost without precedent. Not only was Mansfield, a friend of education, removed as chairman, but he was eliminated even from membership on the committee.

TAX OFFICE INVOLVED

There was no equivocation about Mansfield's charge that he had been removed as a result of his refusal to follow Coyne in political matters, the McKeesport Senator stressing as a particular point of enmity his attack on the fee system in the delinquent tax collector's office in Allegheny County. Mansfield yesterday afternoon introduced a bill abolishing the fee in this office.

Mansfield today said:

"Naturally I am disappointed in not being reappointed chairman of the Committee on Education. Having held this chairmanship since the beginning of the 1925 session, it was my desire to have a prominent place in directing legislation affecting the public school system during the crisis which this session of the General Assembly will witness.

"In the years of my service in this most important post my relationship with the members of the committee and the friends of the schools has been most cordial. I did not look upon the matter as being political. It is very evident that the state Republican leaders, controlling committee assignments, have placed all their political eggs in the basket of Senator James J. Coyne, so far as Allegheny County is affected.

"I have gained the ill will of the Senator by reason of my unwillingness to follow his political leadership, especially in the retention of the $100,000 delinquent Tax Collector's office. This I could not do and retain self respect for my own judgment.

"The Delinquent Tax Collector's office must go, and the school must be kept out of the political mire."

Elimination of Mansfield bore out predictions of Marcus Aaron, president of the Pittsburgh School Board, some days ago, that the McKeesport Senator would be displaced through the influence of Coyne. The Oakland leader was the final word on every committee appointment from Allegheny County.

The quo warranto proceedings, started several weeks ago in opposition to Mansfield's serving both as a Senator and a County Commissioner, served as a confusing excuse for Boyd.

Last week, when the question of Mansfield's reappointment to the chairmanship was put up to him, Boyd replied that there was some question as to his status, and that his selection might be "inadvisable."

HARRIS ALSO OUSTED

Senator Frank J. Harris, another political foe of Coyne, was removed from the committee, on which he sat last session. Two Allegheny County places went to Senators Morris Einstein, member of Coyne's committee to investigate the cost of government in Allegheny County, and Herman Brandt, of the North Boroughs.

Mansfield was shifted to the chairmanship of the Committee on Congressional Apportionment, which will have no more duties until 1941, and Harris was made chairman of the Expositions Committee, an inconsequential body. Coyne himself selected the chairmanship of the Committee on Legislative Apportionment, which will be important in this session if an effort is made to reapportion the Assembly membership, which should be done after every federal census.

Other Allegheny County committee chairmanships, and the committees to which each member were assigned were:

BILLS TO CURB PINCHOT DRAWN

HARRISBURG, Jan. 10.—Republican organization measures to whittle the powers of the Pinchot administration and reduce the salaries of judges and legislators are before the Senate.

One measure, sponsored by Senator John W. Howell, Lackawanna, abolishes the State Department of Revenue and returns the duties of gathering the state's income to the Auditor General.

Another, introduced by Senator George L. Reed, Dauphin, proposed to abolish the Department of Mines and transfer its duties to the Department of Internal Affairs.

A double attack on Judges' salaries is made in other bills Reed sponsored. One reduces the annual salary of the judges and another reduces the extra allowance for traveling judges to mere expenses, without added salary.

The salary cuts shave $3,500 from the pay of each Judge of the Supreme and Superior courts.

In Allegheny Common Pleas Courts the judges' salaries are reduced from $14,000 to $11,500. In the County Court the president judge's pay is cut from $10,500 to $8,500 and the other judges of the court from $10,000 to $8,000.

A resolution introduced would reduce Legislators' salaries from $3,000 to $2,500 and would be effective at once.

Bill Aims to Cut Mansfield Salary

HARRISBURG, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—A bill designed to reduce Senator William D. Mansfield's salary as Allegheny County Commissioner was introduced in the Senate last night by George L. Reed, Dauphin. Reed's measure would cut in half Mansfield's $12,000 salary as Commissioner.

The measure avoids direct reference to Mansfield but stipulates that any Allegheny Commissioner holding another state, national or municipal office shall receive the cut.

NEW UTILITIES BILL OFFERED IN HOUSE

HARRISBURG, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—There was an echo of the 1931 House utilities investigation today, in a bill providing revision of the Public Service Company law.

Chester A. Rhodes, Monroe, Democrat, introduced the bill in the House. Rhodes was one of the majority members of the committee. He was named by Gov. Pinchot during the session at which the House and Senate opened rival investigations and failed to produce major utility legislation.

FIXES 'FAIR VALUE'

In addition to giving the Public Service Commission complete control over rate increases, franchises, securities, holding companies and excess earnings, the Rhodes bill would establish a "fair value" on which rates would be based.

The Rhodes bill would set the following basis for rate valuations of utilities:

"The book cost of the physical property, less retirement, depreciation and other similar reserves, plus a reasonable allowance for working capital, shall be prima facie evidence of fair value, but the commission may determine every fact, matter or thing which in its judgment does or may have any bearing on such value."

POWERS CITED

The bill requires commission approval of rate increases, with 30-day advance notice and official notification of the mayor or burgess of the affected community;

Limited penalties for delayed payment of bills to 12 per cent a year;

Prohibits ready to serve charges;

Facilitates municipal ownership of utilities;

Requires utilities to hold excess earnings" in a special fund for disposition at the order of the commission;

Gives the commission control over policies of holding companies in connection with Pennsylvania operating units;

Requires bidding on all projects; and one of the most amazing situations ever witnessed on the Senate floor.

Gives the commission over all securities issues and the use to which their proceeds are put.

Pinchot Scores G. O. P. For Slur on Wife

LEADERS ACT

Immediately upon the conclusion of Reed's speech, Senator John J. McClure, of Delaware County, an organization leader, moved that the remarks of Reed pertaining to Mrs. Pinchot be expunged from the record.

Senators Clarence J. Buckman, of Bucks County, and Frank J. Harris, of Allegheny, Pinchot sympathizer, sensing the political morass into which Reed, an organization spokesman, has stumbled, opposed the motion, but the organization members rallied to save an embarrassing situation. On the records of the Senate there remains no mention of this phase of Reed's speech, but here is what he said, after reciting the automobile accident:

"I remember distinctly hearing reports on the streets of Harrisburg that Mrs. Pinchot was drunk. I don't know what the facts of the case are, but I do say there is an item (for repairs to the car) which appears in the official record, which shows, and shows conclusively, that the State of Pennsylvania was paying for the Governor's car engaged in private business."

SENATE AMAZED

A gasp of amazement and disgust ran through the Senate chamber, in which the majority of the Senators and spectators a moment before had been applauding as Reed recited a long list of what he charged was extravagance attributable to the Pinchot administration.

Lieut. Gov. Shannon, presiding over the Senate, and other officers of the body were amazed at the baldness of the Reed charge, particularly embarrassing because he qualified his charge with the admission that "I don't know what the facts are."

Reed, a new member of the Senate, elected through the influence of the Dauphin County Republican organization after two terms in the House, was one of the chief mouthpieces of the organization in attacking the Pinchot policies when a member of the lower branch.

BLONDE DECOYS EXTORTION VICTIM

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Police today had revealed the story of how Andrew P. Weschler, prominent Erie landowner, cashed a $3,500 check in a downtown bank and paid the money over to a man who stood by with a revolver pressed to his side.

Threatened with death if he made a "false move," Weschler, police said, did not arouse suspicions in the bank as he drew the money and accompanied the man outside where accomplices waited in an automobile. The extortion occurred last Thursday after Weschler had been held prisoner in his apartment all night.

BLONDE, YOUTHS HUNTED

Officers announced that they were conducting a nation-wide search for two "sleek-looking youths of gangster type" and a comely blonde "decoy" as the perpetrators of the plot.

Weschler, manager of a large Erie theater, told investigators yesterday that the girl came to his apartment Wednesday night and asked for a job as a domestic. As they conversed, Weschler said she asked for a cigaret. Leaving to get it, Weschler, who is 62, was confronted with two men, armed with revolvers, as he returned. They had been admitted by the girl.

GUARDED ALL NIGHT

Weschler was kept under guard all night. Weschler told police:

"At 7 o'clock in the morning they told me I was going for a ride. We rode about for a couple hours until the Security Peoples Bank opened.

"One man accompanied me into the bank, whispering threats in my ear. I used a counter check after being told to tell the teller, who seemed surprised at the large amount, that I needed the cash for current bills."

FUNDS SOUGHT FOR SCHOOL PAY

Employes of Snowden Township School District have not been paid for December and may not be paid until the middle of February when the next tax installments are due, according to L. R. Cutshall, superintendent.

The shortage of funds is ascribed by Supt. Cutshall to slow tax collections and heavy investment in new buildings.

All employes have been loyal, working since December 1 without pay and he expressed confidence they will continue until funds can be found. The schools are at Library, Broughton and Stewart, mining communities.

The district has been unable to obtain a loan, Cutshall said, but school will be continued until the end of the term. With state aid, he believes all payrolls can be met by the end of the term.

Last year, teachers' salaries were reduced approximately 15 per cent. The Pittsburgh Coal Company, which owns large mines in the neighborhood last year helped the district by lending money without interest for current expenses.

FATAL REVOLTS FAIL IN SPAIN

MADRID, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—An official report indicated today that simultaneous Extremist uprisings throughout Spain against the Republican government apparently have collapsed.

Authorities, however, were taking extra precautions in Seville, Barcelona, Cadiz and Madrid to prevent the movement from spreading to railroad, mine and metallurgical workers who thus far have had no part in the uprising.

Unofficial estimates listed 38 persons as killed and more than 100 wounded in the battles which began Sunday. They were centered mainly in attempts to take over police and army quarters in various cities and towns.

HANGS HIMSELF IN FOURTH TRY

George Arcardy's fourth attempt at suicide proved successful last night, according to a coroner's report.

Frustrated in three previous attempts, Arcardy, 37, slipped into the cellar of the home of Michael Orek, 34 Rutherglen street, where he roomed, and hanged himself with a belt to a rafter, Deputy Coroner Mullen Jackson said.

Arcardy's three other attempts to hang himself were thwarted by Orek's stepson, John Krpicak, according to Jackson. Arcardy was said to have been drinking.

In her own behalf Mrs. Brown testified she was driven to temporary insanity by threats and abuse from her husband.

MACHINES NEED OF FATHER COX

Just this time of the year the demand for warm, serviceable clothing is particularly urgent from the hundreds of jobless men and boys and needy families who come to Father Cox of Old St. Patrick's for assistance.

The used clothing donated to him in nearly all instances requires repairing. He has plenty of help to do this work but lacks sewing machines. Father Cox consequently will welcome the donation of machines of this character.

The work of repairing is in the hands of a group of women known as The St. Patrick's Sewing Circle, augmented by the women who live in Coxtown. With more machines he can expedite the work of bringing warmth and comfort to the destitute.

Father Cox will send for any machines donated—in fact he will send for "what have you"? that will be of service to the poor. Telephone Grant 4390 and the Father Cox Relief truck will back up at your door.

The Father Cox-Sun-Telegraph subscription drive is still meeting with gratifying success. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page brings to his unemployment relief fund a liberal cash commission.

During 1932 more than half a million people used air lines for travel, he said. Of this number 85 per cent were business executives, engineers, buyers and salesmen.

'SLEEP' MALADY FATAL TO 8

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—A strange form of encephalitis, seemingly akin to sleeping sickness (Lethargic Encephalitis), was blamed today for the death of eight persons here within the last several days. At least 11 others have been stricken, but have recovered.

The diagnosis was embodied in a report based on a study by Dr. Howard D. McIntyre, neurologist at Cincinnati General Hospital, and delivered before the Cincinnati Academy of Medicine.

The disease causes inflammation of the brain, accompanied by hemorrhages, and strikes suddenly, sometimes causing death within 12 hours.

Dr. McIntyre advised his audience not to worry about it however. He said:

"You might just as well worry about being struck by lightning."

Symptoms, he said, are convulsions, seeing double, sleepiness and drowsiness; hemorrhage into the spinal fluid, and paralytic signs.

Gene Austin Sued For Back Alimony

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—A $750 attachment suit was filed today against Gene Austin, tenor, by his divorced wife, now Mrs. Kathryn Austin Rosenbaum, charging Austin with being in arrears on alimony payments.

The bill in the suit alleges that the singer's wife was granted a divorce in St. Louis, Mo., in 1931, with the stipulation that Austin was to pay $50 each month for the support of their child.

Seamstress Found Dead from Poison

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Miss Florence Beverly, 35-year-old dressmaker, was found dead in her one-room apartment last night and police, finding traces of poison in a glass and several notes, called it suicide.

WORKER KILLED BY ELEVATOR

Crushed while repairing a freight elevator, according to police, Raymond Benzer, 35, of 127 Rising Main street, Fineview, North Side, was killed today at the Watson-Standard Company plant, 225 Galveston avenue, North Side.

The man was working on the floor of the car between the basement and first floor when it suddenly moved upward. He was crushed between the elevator floor and the ceiling of the basement. David Pigozzi, another employe, saw the accident, but was unable to explain what put the elevator in motion.

Benzer was a mechanic and repairman employed by the company, which manufactures paint. He was pronounced dead by Dr. F. S. Shaulis, of the Presbyterian Hospital staff. He was married and had several children, police were told.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The Pennsylvania Trust Company of Pittsburgh, executor of the estate of James B. Laughlin, has been awarded an overassessment of estate tax and interest in the amount of $75,482.15, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue has announced.

The amount of $68,640.62 was caused by the allowance of a credit representing the sum of state inheritance taxes paid subsequent to the filing of the federal estate tax return, and $6,154.05 represented a portion of the interest assessed on previously asserted deficiencies.

The great twice-a-year Horne institution which has been supplying the shirt needs of Pittsburgh, for longer than most of us can remember, rolls around once more. It reflects the progress of shirt-making with every succeeding year.

This year, because men's tastes run that way, it is made up entirely of BROADCLOTHS—white and solid colors. Also because of men's strongly indicated preferences in this direction, the shirts are all collar-attached styles with pocket, and barrel cuffs, except the plain white shirts, which may be had also in neckband styles with turned cuffs.

The quality of broadcloth is a higher count than ever offered in any previous sale. Every shirt is pre-shrunk, and the solid-color shirts are vat-dyed, making them shrinkage-proof and fade-proof.

Look to your shirt needs while these unmatchable values apply!

Listening In On Radio Gossip

Lily Pons' Sunday Circle guest appearance, scheduled for two weeks ago but canceled due to illness, has been set for January 15 . . . Ruth Etting was forced to forego a prize screen role opposite Maurice Chevalier when it developed that she'd have to go to Hollywood to appear. Her network performances keep her in New York . . . "Cheerio" is pinch-hitting for Roxy as master of ceremonies on those Sunday programs. He'll continue until the showman returns, probably within six weeks.

A recent "March of Time" program called for the mighty buzzing of a devastating swarm of locusts so; three men rubbed sand bags together just in front of a microphone; a small electric buzzer sounded in another mike, and the string section of Howard Barlow's orchestra played a low, rasping monotone known as a "punchinello" trill in various keys.

Morton Downey is making records of "Kol Nidre" and "Eili Eili" and reports are that his Jewish accents are perfect.

Truth caught up with fiction when Elsie Hitz, who plays the role of a girl confined to a hospital in "The Magic Voice," was stricken with an ear ailment last week, was operated on and broadcast Saturday night from her hospital bed. A queer twist in the situation is that the script for that particular broadcast was the first in which the heroine was represented as having left the hospital.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello Ladies and Gentlemen:

Spring seems to be arriving every place but Pittsburgh. Unless a bumblebee was very much mistaken, he thought the weather at Bentleyville warranted an appearance there Sunday. Helen Mae Prunkard in her letter also asks, what do radio announcers do when they get the hiccoughs?" What can you do?

Harry Henning, a little Globe-Trotter from the East End wants to know what a 1907 penny is worth. Just a cent, Harry.

Found a way to increase the mail. Referred to the rambling wreck that wheezes along with the Globe Trotter and collects tags for him as a deplorable piece of iron. Ten letters from dealers this morning. No use.

Answering Mrs. G. A. V., Butler, Pa.—Widows of former presidents now living are Benjamin Harrison, Mrs. Thomas Preston (Grover Cleveland), Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. William Howard Taft, and the recently bereaved Mrs. Calvin Coolidge.

R. E. W. reports this sign in a downtown dress shop:

"Please compress lips while trying on dress to avoid lipstick stain."

This will square my account with the milk dealers for suggesting the use of bottles for Christmas decorations. Mrs. E. F. Round, of 10 Browns place, Squirrel Hill, has eight weeks' accumulation. They are yours for the asking.

Wilmerding may have its robins, Bentleyville its bumblebees, but North Side has been favored by a cardinal. The red-feathered visitor was a guest of Mrs. Harry Boyd, of Holyoke street.

Celebrating their fiftieth wedding anniversary are Mr. and Mrs. Michael Muehlbauer, of Mt. Oliver.

Now mothers are telling the youngsters:

"Yes, sonny, go over to Jimmy's to play, but be sure to come home for lunch when you hear the Globe Trotter.

Some Tips on Solution Of Latest Cipher

CIPHER NO. 39
By S. C. ZIONTS

SWI VELRF KEFOT SU ZRISGOP SWIV VWASJ ET ZLARRAIMV.

Do you think the tip in today's story will help? It should.

By KENNETH A. NAGEL
Cipher Editor.

Did you take the tip and look at an English book? If you did, you probably succeeded.

Use the following method—

Vowels interchange as follows: a to i, e to o, u to y.

But an initial vowel (that is, where the first letter of the word is a vowel) changes to the preceding vowel in the alphabet and a final vowel (that is, where the last letter of the word is a vowel) changes to the following vowel in the alphabet.

Consonants, some of them for phonetic reasons, interchange as follows: b to p, c to s, d to t, f to v, g to k, h to w, j to z, l to r, m to n, q doesn't change, and x to y.

But an initial consonant changes to the preceding consonant in the alphabet, and a final consonant changes to the following consonant in the alphabet.

Initial "a" changes to "y" and final "y" changes to "a" (vowels).

Initial "b" changes to "z" and final "z" changes to "b".

Charles O'Shea, of 419 Forty-fifth street, boasts of having worked the last few ciphers with apparent ease.

Miss Ruth Lanyon, of 1810 Lincoln avenue, a new feminine fan, says:

"Your ciphers are getting better as they go along. Keep it up. Every night I grab the Sun-Telegraph and turn to the page with the cipher. I then look to see if I have made any mistakes and continue on the new one."

MAH LI KIM FROM THE LAND OF GORGEOUS SILK tells you how to cut down STOCKING RUNS

Beautiful Li Kim has many rich mandarin coats and ceremonial robes, as well as charming American costumes. "In Chinese homes, as in America," she says, "Lux is standard for washing silks."

Miss Mah Li Kim, talented Chinese beauty, is now studying art in New York City. Her father is the manager of a large silk firm. Like all high caste Chinese, she is a connoisseur of silks and knows the best way to care for them . . .

"My father has taught me how to judge silks and care for them," says this slim, exotic girl of the Orient. "Silk—seemingly so fragile—is really a tough, strong fibre when it is new, because of its elasticity.

"Chinese women teach their servants to wash silk the way that preserves this very precious elasticity—with Lux.

"My 2-Minute Way"

"Would you like to know my method for washing silk stockings? It's easy, and it doubles their wear.

"I take one teaspoon of Lux for each pair, add lukewarm water to Lux, press the suds very gently through the stockings, rinse well."

Thrifty American girls, too, wash stockings this 2-minute Lux way each night. It cuts down stocking runs, because when the silk keeps its elastic quality, it gives under strain—doesn't break. Cake-soap rubbing and soaps containing harmful alkali too often destroy elasticity. Avoid them! Anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

Mrs. H. N. Aikens washed 468 pieces with just 1 box of LUX!

48 pairs silk stockings
69 pieces silk lingerie
54 pairs socks
72 pairs child's socks
36 child's undergarments
66 pieces table linen
120 handkerchiefs
3 baby's sweaters

LEGION CHIEF SEES ECONOMY LEAGUE END

Collapse of the National Economy League was predicted here today by American Legion National Commander Louis A. Johnson, of Clarksburg, W. Va., who is guest of the County Executive Committee and speaker before veterans tonight in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

On a tour of the country that brought Commander Johnson here on his first official visit, he said the league's selfish foundation of attacking veterans' legislation has been its downfall. Citing how the Legion is receiving copies of resignations that are being turned into the league, Johnson said:

"We have continuous proof that it is waning. It started out selfishly and is paying the price. Admiral Richard Byrd's statement that the league seeks reduction of taxes and does not stress veterans' expenditures is resented. Archibald Roosevelt, one of the league's prime movers, publicly stated only reduction in veterans' expenditures will reduce taxes.

"The Legion realizes the need of reduced taxes. It stand ready to lend strongest support to any intelligent program. It will attack any injustice or fraud to taxpayers or veterans and will lead a fair fight to clean house."

Commander Johnson was greeted here by County Commander Robert K. Cochrane, Jr., secretary of the Builders' Exchange. Following a talk at noon before the West Penn Current Club in the Keystone Athletic Club, Johnson and his party, including State Commander Paul Griffith, of Uniontown, visited the Marine and U. S. Veterans' hospitals. The dinner at 6:30 o'clock in the Fort Pitt Hotel will be followed by an address, open to the public.

CANAL URGED BY OHIO MAYOR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—(INS.)—Sponsored by Mark E. Moore, Mayor of Youngstown, O., and a host of Youngstown civic officials, a $30,000,000 plan for the development of the Beaver, Shenango and Mahoning rivers from Beaver Falls, Pa., southward to Youngstown, was proposed to the Army Engineering Board today.

The proposal was a modification of an earlier plan, which the board turned down, calling for development of the three rivers from Beaver Falls down to Warren, O., and Greenville, Pa., at a cost of $112,000,000.

Moore told the board that the modified proposal would take care of the major part of the tonnage that the larger project rejected by the engineers was designed to care for, and urged a favorable report on the $30,000,000. He declared:

"Here we have an industrial empire crumbling before our eyes. It is the viewpoint of the ordinary citizen of our section that the waterway should be developed for shipping. And that should be the viewpoint of both our government and this board."

Kate Gleason Dead; Noted Industrialist

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Miss Kate Gleason, 67, philanthropist and internationally-known industrialist, died yesterday in Genesee Hospital of pneumonia. She was widely-known as the first woman president of a national bank in this country, and the first feminine member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

A few years after the World War she purchased the village of Septmont, near Soissons, in France, and rehabilitated the town and its historic twelfth century tower. She established a library there as a memorial to the A. E. F.

U. S. Begins Probe Of La Guardia Defeat

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The United States Attorney's office today began a check of the vote recorded in the Twentieth Congressional District, in which Fiorello H. LaGuardia (Rep.) was declared defeated by James J. Lanzetta (Dem.) by slightly more than 1,000 votes.

Charges have been made that the vote as recorded on voting machines was incorrectly counted, and yesterday LaGuardia announced he would file a contest "within 24 hours."

Gray Hair

Best Remedy is Made At Home

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. Barbo will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

Revolving Table Speeds Feeding 14 Children

WAYCROSS, Ga., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Passing things on the table to Raymond Lee's 14 robust youngsters was quite a task, arising thrice daily, but inventive genius came forward and now the problem is solved.

Lee built a huge table with a revolving top and established a "self-service" system at the family meals that involves nothing more complicated than a turn of the board. Said Lee:

"At any rate, it's cured them of the 'boarding house reach'."

BENEFIT SHOW BRINGS PRAISE

Incident to the Sunday food benefit show at the Sheridan Square Theater, East Liberty, which was attended by 10,000 persons and brought donations of 15,000 packages of food, the Sun-Telegraph has received the following letter from the Rev. E. Lawrence O'Connell of Sacred Heart Church, Shady avenue and Walnut street, of which the Rev. Thomas F. Coakley is pastor:

"Please let me express my appreciation for your kindness in giving us such considerate and conspicuous space in the Sun-Telegraph in connection with our benefit performance at the Sheridan Square yesterday. The whole affair was a perfect success and I trust that you will find some satisfaction in the realization of the happiness that shall come into the hearts and lives of the poor whom you have benefited through your generosity."

This benefit was sponsored by the Emerson Club of Sacred Heart Church, of which Father O'Connell is director. A similar letter of appreciation was received by the management of the Warner Theaters today.

POLICE STATION CLOSING FOUGHT

A move for the reopening of the Woods Run Police Station, closed last week in the city's latest economy move, will be taken tonight at a meeting of the Twenty-seventh Ward Board of Trade in the Woods Run branch of the Carnegie Library. Residents declare that while one-fourth of the city's population is in the North Side, that district has but one-eleventh of the police protection. The North Side Police Station now is the only one north of the river.

Alderman George A. Young, director of the organization, in telling of the lack of protection, pointed to the Western Penitentiary, where riots and fires have proved the necessity for quick response by police.

Two Yale Students Injured in Blaze

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Two Yale students were injured and about 40 others fled to safety today when fire damaged the north wing of Calhoun College, one if the new house-plan units at Yale.

Floyd G. Jefferson, Jr., 22, of Short Hills, N. J., a sophomore, was seriously hurt as he jumped from a third-floor window. Adolph C. Valentine, 19, of Ansonia, suffered severe burns.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

Saves $2. So Easy! No Cooking!

The best cough remedy that money could buy can easily be mixed at home. It costs very little, yet it's the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. To make syrup, use 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and saves two-thirds of the money a family usually spends on cough medicine. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, clears the air passages, and thus ends a severe cough in a hurry.

Pinex is a compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

HOW NOTABLES VIEW WORLD IN 2033

What will the world be like in 100 years from now—2033?

Amelia Earhart is sure we'll all be using airplanes and that ocean liners will be used principally for freight.

Bertrand Russell believes the family will remain as an institution, but predicts it will be weakened.

Lincoln Steffen suspects that the government exemplified by Soviet Russia may prevail.

Gabriella Chanel is confident clothes will follow the trend, that there'll be few changes unless there are great changes in other directions.

Stuart Chase is willing to wager that by 2033 economic problems will not exist.

These are a few of the predictions published in the new February Cosmopolitan Magazine. The authors, 10 of them, besides those named, are H. G. Wells, Alfred Adler, Julian Huxley, Frank Lloyd Wright, S. L. (Roxy) Rothafel.

Dr. Adler, perhaps the world's outstanding psychologist, discusses the future of love. Mankind, he argues, will have to learn in the next 100 years that marriage is a task for two persons.

Mother of Three Vanishes From Home

Police and the Missing Persons Bureau were asked today to search for Mrs. Irene Kemman, 35, of 247 Forty-fifth street, who left home Friday, taking all of her clothes with her. At home she has three children, Ralph, 15; Harold, 13, and Jack, 6. No reason could be given for her disappearance.

FIGHT ON MINE FIRE NEAR END

Two shafts today neared their junction to cut off an underground coal fire which, for months, has menaced Herschel street, West End.

Working since November 2, often day and night, the contractors have sunk two shafts, planned to meet at a point about 65 feet under the Herschel street hill. The shafts isolate a 14-foot vein of coal and slag. When they meet, they will form a semi-circle north of Herschel street, stopping the fire when it has burned that far.

Although bad luck for the taxpayers—the high cost of fighting it—the fire has brought some happiness to unemployed who gather to collect the coal dragged up from the diggings.

ANCIENT TOYS TO BE SHOWN

Three Bright Stars Shine In 'Design for Living,' A Brilliant Farce

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Never have actors on the stage enjoyed a play as much as Noel Coward, Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne enjoyed "Design for Living," presented last night at the Nixon Theater, and the audience enjoyed it no less—because they could not have enjoyed it more. If there was any professor of moral philosophy around, he must have been severely shocked to see the amorous atoms whirling about in that universe sung of by Kipling, "where there ain't no Ten Commandments, and the best is like the worst." But if there was any professor of moral philosophy around, he probably faded out after the first act.

Mr. Seibel

Noel Coward has written one of the most brilliant farces ever penned—around nymphomania and polyandry. These are hard words—and it is hard to see fun behind them—but Coward saw it and pulled it forth by the furry ears. It is the most scintillating, effervescent and original thing he has ever written—and the "three of them," the intermittent triangle, make it the most perfect exhibition of high comedy you could ask for or hope for.

There are minor characters worthy of Jane Austen, there are speeches worthy of Bernard Shaw. The thing is outrageous, but it dazzles and delights.

Yet it is the same Coward technique with which the public has become familiar in all his plays. It might be called a seesaw or a merry-go-round; he himself labels it "ups and downs" once and again as "spiritual ping-pong." The plot, in fact, is closely related to the plot of "Private Lives"—it might be called the fourth dimension of that comparatively tame and respectable anecdote.

LOVE AMONG ARTISTS

Lynn Fontanne as the "ewig weibliche" of the merry-go-round, is aptly described as "the concentrated essence of love among the artists." In the first act she is living with Otto, otherwise Alfred Lunt, and runs off with Leo, otherwise Noel Coward. In the second act she is living with Leo, when Otto returns and is about to carry her off again. But she escapes from both and runs away with Ernest, another of her "darlings." In the third act, she has married Ernest, when the two others come back and jointly carry her off—which is where the polyandry comes in.

All this sounds as dreadful as King Solomon's famous harem of a thousand, but in "Design for Living" it becomes a game, with expert players scoring every point without a fluke. "Where do we go from here?" one of the characters asks in the course of the comedy, and that might be the title of the mad gallop over all mid-Victorian fences, inhibitions, frustrations and chevaux-de-frise of the Decalogue.

As another sparkling flash of the ever-sparkling dialogue has it, when one character refers to the eye of Heaven watching them, the answer is that this eye is seen only "when it winks."

It winks throughout "Design for Living."

EVERY DROP OF JUICE

Noel Coward knows how to squeeze every drop of juice out of a situation. He gets more fun out of a telephone than Alexander Graham Bell ever dreamed of. He has extracted more laughs from a bottle of brandy and a bottle of sherry than there are bubbles in a barrel of the stuff. "Let's be completely idiotic," one of the triangle suggests—and most of the time they are following up the suggestion.

You can't find fault with the farce anywhere, because the author has put all possible criticism into his own lines. Gilda, otherwise known as Lynn Fontanne, describes herself as "degrading," as "down in the muck," and afflicted with "nausea" as she contemplates herself. One might say of this play, "Nay, but it is thin," if Noel Coward had not used those words himself about the play of Leo, and Leo is played by Noel himself.

LAUGH AND ENJOY IT

So what can one do but laugh and enjoy it—as the actors on the stage do! More spontaneous, irresistible and natural laughing has never been heard beyond the footlights. It is as if they all felt this was glorious spoofing. But the poor professor of moral philosophy must take it hard. To make a farce out of nymphomania—where's your Aristophanes and your "Decameron" now?

Eleven actors are in this joyous trifle—and every one of them plays with the same finish and gusto. Coward captures the honors of the evening, perhaps, in the role he tailored for himself. Lunt plays a straight part—but such kinks and curls as he gets into it. Lynn Fontanne is a veritable jaguar in her restless moods and staccato transitions. The remainder shall be merely names—Campbell Gullen, Gladys Henson, Philip Tonge, Ward Bishop, Ethel Borden, Phyllis Connard, Alan Campbell and Macleary Stinnett. They shall be merely named so there may be no invidious distinction in a performance perfect as a whole. Perfect even in those stage settings which elicited several rounds of applause for their absolutely convincing atmosphere.

What "Mourning Becomes Electra" was in the austere realm of drama, this "Design for Living" is in the frivolous world of literary farce.

Tully Sells Tramp Tale For Film

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 10.

More than a million young vagrants roam the country today, living from hand to mouth, congregating in myriad hobo jungles. This I have from red-headed Jim Tully, who rose from a tramp to become a pal of H. L. Mencken, and who periodically turns his early experience into fodder for the movies. It seems he has done it again.

Tieless, shirt open at the neck, pants unpressed, the stocky author was coming out of Paramount when I showed up in quest of news. The story about the million young vagrants he had just told to Paramount executives and they had seen it as a picture. With contracts signed, Jim was heading out to his tree-girdled estate to write the story.

Mr. Tully

"For the time being, we are calling it 'The Road Kid,'" he told me. "I don't know who its for or much about it yet. Perhaps we'll work in an international angle, the thousands of boy wanderers in Russia. Or we may stick to the kids in this country, those from 15 to 20."

Either way, Jim cashes in again on the wanderlust of his youth.

Pretty dramatic—a tramp who lived to worry about his income tax.

Then there's Bill Gargan's story of the Hollywood speakeasy which has posted a slogan over the bar: "The Customer Is Always Tight."

The rumor spread like wildfire Saturday that Frances Dee and Joseph Mankiewicz were taking the vows any minute. Actually, she was on stage six at Paramount, and he was at home writing on the new Wheeler-Woolsey comedy for RKO. So far as anybody has been able to find out, the marriage story ballooned out of the fact that Joe's pal, Bill Wright, is walking up the aisle with Greta Von Rue, foreign actress. Frances was one of several to give a shower to the bride-to-be.

Barbara Stanwyck also squelches the Hollywood rumor that she and Frank Fay are calling it quits. Says she:

"We are very happy, even if people don't want to believe it."

JOAN CRAWFORD, LAST IN "RAIN," AWAITS NEW ROLE AND "SITS" FOR HER PICTURE

Patrons Like Variety's Opener

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The Variety, a new theater but an old house, Penn avenue, near Sixth street, yesterday made its bow to a numerous public, audiences being at capacity on the lower floor. The reception accorded to the initial bill indicated that the change in policy met with satisfaction. It is made up of an interesting photoplay of impetuous youth, "Hot Saturday," and a lively little stage show of acts of varied nature, introduced by Nat Nazarro, Jr., who was popular here during an engagement of several months as master of ceremonies in another theater.

"Hot Saturday" is a story having as its moral the idea that a young girl had best watch her step if she lives in a town where gossips have unlimited telephone service. At least it proves to be so in the case of Nancy Carroll, who goes innocently enough to a party, arrives home too late for the satisfaction of nebby neighbors, and becomes a bride as a result. But between the party and the altar are enough of grief to last such a nice young girl as Nancy is for life.

Cary Grant has the leading male role, that of a rich playboy, who proves to be more honest and sincere than he is expected to be. Randolph Scott, new on the screen, does nicely as the lad who has his chance to win Nancy and fails in the greatest test.

It's flapper comedy, not for serious-minded folks who like their film fare to be more subtle, but, nevertheless, pleasing.

In the flesh show, which has an orchestra on the stage, as in the good old days, are the Flying Aces, good acrobatic skating act; Roy, Rita and Roule, adagio dancers; Cherrie, dancer; Sammy Weston, comic, and a pot pourri of other entertainment.

Nat Nazarro rates a rasp for a double-meaning smellie that couldn't get a laugh even in a party of drummers.

Tech to Give Greek Play

Under the direction of Chester Wallace, the annual Greek play will be presented in the Little Theater, Carnegie Institute of Technology, tonight, opening a run of six evenings. Through the courtesy of the author, Rudolf Besier, the drama department at Carnegie is enabled to present his "The Virgin Goddess" for the first time in America.

This Greek tragedy was first produced at the Adelphi Theater, London, in 1906, by Otho Stuart, in an attempt to resuscitate the poetic drama in England, and it was the instrument which changed that theater from a setting for cheap melodrama to the home of fine dramas. The setting of "The Virgin Goddess" is a marble courtyard before the temple of Artemis, situated in a cypress grove overlooking the Aegean Sea.

Edward Harmle, Emanuel Breakstone, Fern Ball, Audrey Kelley, Marcia Leety, Mary Hamilton, Boyd Crawford and William Roos will lead the large cast.

Cooper and Crawford In 'Today We Live'

Gary Cooper will be co-starred with Joan Crawford in "Today We Live," according to an announcement by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. It was written especially for the screen by William Faulkner, author of "Sanctuary" and "Light in August." Miss Crawford's role is that of the driver of an English ambulance during the war.

Miss Wilson has been assigned to portray the part of Sylvia in "The Great Jasper," starring Richard Dix, with Wera Engles, the German film importation, and Florence Eldridge.

'The Dancing Hussar' Is Flat-Footed

While the title of "Der Tanz-Husar" (The Dancing Hussar) leads one to expect a lively and amusing operetta at the Avenue Cinema, this latest German musical comedy turns out to be somewhat flat-footed and heavy. Its music is machine-made and its humor mechanical. It is all about an actor who is drafted into the Hussars and whose wife secures his release by vamping the colonel. Gretl Theimer is the wife, and is one bright spot in a dreary world. All the other characters are morons—and not even amusing. The barrack scenes and the backstage revelry are the same old tedious drivel. The Scotland Yard thriller which follows is ingenious and dramatic this week.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Fredric March and Elissa Landi play the romantic leads in "The Sign of the Cross," spectacular photoplay coming to the Nixon next week. This is a story of Nero's persecution of Christians, betrayed to him through his spies observing them making the sign of the cross, for which they were doomed to suffer martyrdom. March plays the part of the prefect of Rome, second only to Nero in authority, and Miss Landi plays a Christian girl. This huge Cecil B. DeMille production was written by the late Wilson Barrett, actor, who produced it with himself as its star, the project being said to be the result of a religious argument between the actor and Robert G. Ingersoll. His determination to answer Ingersoll's ridicule of religion from the stage resulted in a play that has been witnessed by thousands. It ran for more than two years in London alone. The vogue of the play was during the years that ended the nineteenth century. The film version will be presented in the Nixon twice daily, beginning next Monday afternoon. The sale of seats will open Thursday.

All in a Day
By Mark Hellinger

GEORGE THE FIFTH HOTEL, PARIS, FRANCE.—As I told you the other day, it seems to me that Paris has changed not a little since my visit here some four years ago. At that time I thought it was the dizziest town that I had ever visited. It probably is just as dizzy now as it was then, but it would be a tough task for me to attempt to prove it. After having spent a little time in Tunis, I don't think that I will complain about any of these other spots. They all seem like Heaven compared with Tunis. Oh, well, that's Africa.

But Paris has changed. The food, generally, is superb. The various restaurants in this town waste nothing. What we toss off as garbage they turn into delicious foods. If you get a plate of soup that tastes like a million bucks it was probably made from a pair of old shoes. Coffee is about the only thing that the Parisians know nothing about. They drink it by the hour—and it tastes like a bowl of mother's soap suds on a Monday afternoon.

Before I go any further in my observations on Parisian life, I must give you a description of the biggest thrill that struck this baby in this city.

It happened in the Montmartre district, which may mean something to you but means absolutely nothing to me. I've been here a few days now and I still don't know the name of the avenue upon which this hotel is located. When I want to go home I hop into a cab, growl the name of the hotel and trust to luck. So far I've only missed it three times—which isn't bad.

At any rate, on my second night here a Mr. Smith, who hails from the western part of America, invited me to be his guest on a sight-seeing tour. Mr. Smith has been here several months and speaks French far more fluently that I. I know nothing and he knows six words more.

Accepting his kind invitation, we started out. Time passed very quickly, as it has a habit of doing in Paris. At 4 o'clock in the morning, Mr. Smith decided it was time to retire. I insisted on continuing. Mr. Smith is basically a home-loving gentleman, liking nothing so much as his fireside, his books, a cup of coffee, a sandwich and you. On this particular night, however, I was able to persuade him to stay out a little longer.

Thus we wandered. We walked on and on. Through alleys, byways and deserted streets. Finally the streets began to grow so crooked and appallingly empty that I grew slightly suspicious.

"Smith," I murmured anxiously, "just where are we now?"

"Where are we?" he repeated in his best French, "How do I know?"

That settled it. I decided that then and there was the exact spot for a slight verbal argument. I loudly insisted that it would be best to retrace our steps. Just as loudly Mr. Smith said that such a course would do no good—because if we retraced our steps we wouldn't know where we were. And so we argued.

Suddenly from out of nowhere came a policeman—gendarme, we Frenchmen call him. He clutched me and commenced to walk along. I knew what that meant. Getting arrested is the same in any language. The exact nature of my offense I still do not know.

Mr. Smith, fortunately enough, was not under arrest. Just why, I have no idea. It was probably because the gendarme had a beautiful flowing mustache—and so did Mr. Smith. Misery loves company.

We finally reached the dingiest police station in my memory. With a none too gentle shove, I was landed before what I took to be the lieutenant.

The gendarme spieled off a line of lingo in French. Then came the lieutenant with another line of French. He, too, had a long flowing mustache, which he continually fingered as he spoke. Between the two of them I had visions of being sent to the bastile for life. Finally, they both stopped talking. And I realized that it was my turn to say something.

"Me no parlez French," I stammered. "And will you monkeys please tellez-moi what I'm here for? Can't a guy be on ze street after 4:30 in ze morning without you baboons taking him to ze hoosegow?"

The gendarme looked at his superior. The lieutenant gaped at me. They knew I didn't understand French. And I was just as certain that they didn't understand a single word of my speech. Yes, folks, it was a tough spot in which to be.

I tried gesticulating. I yanked out my passport and flashed it under their noses. I showed them letters that I had received before starting on my trip. The passport was examined carefully. The letters were scrutinized just as thoroughly. They held a consultation. It went on for some five minutes. I began to tire of all this nonsense. I interrupted their conversation.

"Listen, you babies. Make up your minds what you're going to do. After all, I'm not a criminal. I haven't murdered anyone. I haven't stolen anything. So, what's all the noise about?"

They glared at me for a moment. The lieutenant shook his head. He reached under a table and dragged forth a huge book. He skimmed through the book, and arriving at a certain page, he started writing. The gendarme took me by the arm. But exactly what they intended to do I'll never know.

For at that moment Mr. Smith stepped out from the back of the station house. He walked up to the desk at which the lieutenant was waiting. Summoning all the French at his command, he went into a long oration. He told them (as I learned later) that I was an American on a short visit and hadn't been to Paris since the war.

He painted me as a famous war ace. He told them that I was Lindbergh's only rival. He told them that I, single-handed, had probably saved France from destruction during the war. He described me as a scholar, a gentleman, a millionajre, a hero and a whatnot.

The lietenant looked up in disgust. Whether he was disgusted with the explanation or with Mr. Smith's French, I have no idea. He motioned to the gendarme to release my arm. He shut the book with a bang and threw it across the room, where it fell on a desk. Scowling at me, he waved his hand.

"Allez, tout suite," he cried.

The English equivalent of that remark is "Beat it, you bums." I waited for no more. Out I went, Mr. Smith trailing at my heels. I started running. One street. Three streets. Eight streets. And if it hadn't been for the fact that I found a cab, I'd been running yet.

Upon arriving at the hotel, I went to my room and mixed a stiff drink. The telephone rang. I picked up the receiver.

"This is Smith, Mark," came the voice, floating over the wire. "How about you and I stepping out tonight? We'll—"

He never finished, for the simple reason that I had hung up on him....

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

TELL IT TO ELSIE

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By ELSIE ROBINSON

World Honors Fair Fighters And Despises Cheats

The married women have taken her jobs.

So "Betty Broke" has decided to take their husbands in revenge!

Is or isn't that a Smart Comeback?

Betty thinks it is. And you?

Dear Elsie—

Fireworks!

This is not a problem I am asking you to solve. It is a situation I am forced to take into my own hands. I am 20 years old. For months now I have been looking for a job—any kind, just so I can pay my rent and my board. My savings, the accumulation of a four-year skimpy salary, are just about gone, and now I am going to resort to what one might call "evil means."

First, I'll give you the reason. Everywhere I have gone for a job I find women with husbands holding down those jobs that I, and girls like me, need. Spoiling their men is what they are doing.

It's no wonder there are so many divorces. The women are altogether too independent for their own good. The next generation will probably find that out and refuse to try to keep pace with their husbands. A self-supporting wife takes all the thrill out of a man's existence, if they would just admit it, which they won't, because they're getting effeminate and glad to shift their jobs. To me it looks like everyone is losing the true meaning of marriage.

CUT OUT BITTERNESS

Here is what I am going to do. I cannot find office work or any other independent job. Therefore, I must do the housework of one of these working women. She, herself, like all her kind, despises housework. She considers it the dregs of marriage. So, in order to keep all the kick but escape the dregs, she works in an office and takes a job away from some single girl.

I'm one of those single girls whose job has been taken by a married woman, and because she has my job, I'll have to do the dirty work around her home or starve.

All right! I'll fix her! She has taken something that belonged to me. I'll take something that belongs to her. I'm going after her husband! I'm going to do everything in my power to win him away from her. I've seen it done, and I may say that I have enough attractiveness to do it.

Last year I would have hated the thought of it. This year, after seeing the situation things are in, I don't care. Consequences matter little to me now. Either I must do this or walk the streets.

Independent married women, huh? We'll see!

BETTY BROKE.

SEEKS REVENGE

Well, kid, I'll admit that you have a tough row to hoe, and maybe it would be the generous thing for Working Wives to step out and donate their jobs. Plenty of people will say it would; that they're being unfair when they don't.

But no other person's unfairness is an excuse for you to go out and make a dirty little tramp of yourself; and that's exactly what you'll be if you try to carry out that smarty threat of yours.

As for having to snatch some other woman's husband or walk the streets—Hooey! No woman has to come to that. You may have some tough sledding to get by, but if you'll quit feeling sorry for yourself, grab onto your grit and hang onto your self-respect, you will come through and have reason to be proud of yourself.

So cut out the bitterness. It will buy you nothing. If you could glom a dozen husbands, what of it? You'd only be double-crossing yourself—putting yourself on the spot—while the cheated wives would be gathering in all the sweet kisses and consolation prizes.

It's the people who fight hard battles fairly, who stay regular in spite of tough breaks, whom the world honors; not welchers who go haywire just because they meet a few bumps.

Femininity Is Divided Into Three Classes by Fay King

By FAY KING

Girls are invariably divided into three types. At heart and in character they may be alike good and sweet, but in looks and actions they differ in these three directions to a greater or lesser degree.

Age has nothing to do with it. At 18 or 80 one can recognize in them the type to which they lean. We may signify these as Marie, Margie and Mary.

From the earliest age and in any environment, Marie will be dignified and ornamental. Margie will be cuddly and cute, and Mary will be quiet and demure.

Each is charming in her way.

One sees them everywhere, these three, and they never seem to lose this fundamental qualifying personality which identifies them as a Marie, a Margie, or a Mary.

Heart of a Wife

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

Detective Gets Full Description of Suspect

"What makes you say that?" The words, raucous, demanding, seemed to be torn from Ronald's throat, as his stepfather said that he would bet "five to one" the kidnapers would watch the airplane from as far away as they could get, and would not come after the box until dark.

Samuel Brixton's already flushed face took on a purplish tinge as he heard the excited query, and saw his stepson's white face and feverishly bright eyes turned toward him.

"Why! What's wrong with that?" the man blustered. My father's quiet, authoritative voice intervened at just the right instant to snap the tension which was spreading from those two antagonistic figures to the rest of us.

"I agree with you, Mr. Brixton," my father said, with every appearance of confidence in his manner," as I am sure do those of us who are older. Youth, of course, is always more impetuous; but I am sure Ronald will see your point, too, when he thinks it over."

His voice was almost patronizing, and I, who knew my father would hesitate intentionally to hurt anyone's feelings, realized that he must have some distinct purpose in view in thus silencing Ronald; and though I saw no movement of Harry Underwood's, I was practically certain that he had managed a surreptitious nudge or kick to Ronald, who sat next to him.

BRIXTON WATCHED

At any rate the boy, his white face crimson now, muttered something like an apology and sank back in his chair, while my father and Dicky began a discussion of the details to be observed in the enterprise of the coming day.

Harry Underwood rose and ostentatiously stretched his arms above his head.

"No use waiting around any more, that I see," he said. "There isn't a thing new today except Brock's report on the car and that doesn't help us much."

His tone was careless, too careless, I decided, and I noticed that he was watching Samuel Brixton without appearing to do so. I followed his glance, and put an apparently excited question:

"Oh! You mean the car which probably took the girls away?"

HAS DESCRIPTION

"More certainty than probability," Harry responded. "I told you Brock would turn this neighbor of the maid's inside out like a glove, and he certainly turned that little trick.

"Brock says the man was sure the girls didn't know the fellow, but that something he told them made them willing to get into the car. The best description of the man Brock could get was that he was fairly slender, about like the Dicky-bird, with an iron-gray mustache and goatee. Had the appearance of a physician. Oh, yes; and he wore glasses."

"A disguise, of course," Lillian commented, but Sam Brixton interrupted her.

"What kind of car was it?" he asked.

"It was a green sedan"—Mr. Underwood named the make—"trunk on the back; two extra wheels set in sides; Pennsylvania license, whose number the man didn't get."

There was no change in inflection in Harry Underwood's voice, but I was suddenly sure that the last statement was not entirely true. Some or all of that license number was in Harry Underwood's possession.

"That's a queer thing!" Sam Brixton was truculent again. "I'd like to see that man Brock was interviewing. I'll bet I'd get more than that out of him. Where is he to be found? I'll tackle him first thing in the morning."

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Overcalling a Forcing Bid

To overcall a Forcing Opening bid of two in a suit, if the bid is at all sound, is comparable to playing with fire, and, generally, the only justification is that a dearth of honors is compensated for by a wealth of distributional values.

Mr. P. Perry, of Montreal, recently sent me a hand in which a contract to take 11 tricks was made against an Opening bid of two in a suit. The contract was fulfilled because the Declarer discovered in the Dummy not only four trumps, but a blank suit. It is quite true, however, that East's Opening bid of two spades was not sound, as the hand contained only 5 honor-tricks, which is not enough without a better trump suit than East could offer.

The hand and bidding were:

East—Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

The Opening lead was the Queen of spades, which held, and East won the second round of spades with the Knave. He then made the correct defensive play of a trump, as otherwise the work of the Declarer would have been quite easy. South won with the King and led a small heart, which was ruffed in Dummy.

The King of clubs was laid down, as the Ace was clearly marked in East's hand. This was ruffed in the closed hand, and Dummy re-entered by the second lead of hearts, which was trumped. Now the Queen of clubs was led and a heart discarded from the closed hand. The Ten of clubs followed, but East did not cover. However, the Declarer decided that the Knave of clubs also must be part of East's Forcing Opening bid, so discarded another heart. The 4 of clubs was then led, and South ruffed with the diamond Ace. Now Dummy was re-entered by leading a small diamond, which dropped Dummy's only remaining trump, and South's last heart was discarded on the established club.

The particular feature of the hand is the ruff of the club with the diamond Ace. It is not at all difficult play, but it is quite apparent that the contract would otherwise have been defeated.

Today's Question

What is the penalty for a pass out of turn under the new laws?

Answer: If a player passes before the Dealer has made the first call of the auction, there is no penalty. However, if a player passes out of turn during the auction, the opponent on his left may claim a new deal.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Whooping Cough Is Dangerous Infection

Too many mothers look upon whooping cough as a minor and harmless disease. This is a false notion. Whooping cough is really a serious disease and must never be considered otherwise. It is one of the dangerous infections of early childhood and is particularly serious when it attacks children under 5 years of age.

Dr. Copeland

The disease is caused by germs which are spread by coughing and sneezing. They find lodgement in the lining of the throat and windpipe where they set up inflammation.

The mucous which pours out from the congested glands, interferes with normal breathing and causes marked spasms of coughing. In severe cases the coughing is violent and the breathing becomes almost impossible.

May I warn you against the danger of deliberately exposing a child to whooping cough? A child afflicted with this disease should not be permitted to play with other children. Often the disease is overlooked, or is mistaken for a simple cold or cough. A child with a cold who is sneezing or coughing should be kept away from other children.

Persistent coughing is an early sign of whooping cough. The possibility of the disease should always be suspected in a child who has the early symptoms of a bad cold. If, in the second week of illness, the cough becomes more severe and the child vomits after severe spells of coughing, it is very likely to be whooping cough.

The disease may last from six weeks to three months. It is so wearing that the best of care and attention are necessary. If, during this long period, the disease is neglected, the child becomes weak, loses weight and becomes susceptible to other diseases, such as pneumonia and influenza. Bear in mind that the danger of whooping cough is not the infection itself, but the coughing and weakness caused by repeated spells of coughing.

The attacks can be lessened by the use of an old-fashioned croup kettle or inhalations of certain soothing substances. Burning a eucalyptus cone or dropping compound tincture of benzoin on steaming hot water alongside of the baby's crib is beneficial.

The child's diet must be carefully watched. The child should be fed after his vomiting attacks so that nutrition is not lost. Serve small but frequent meals. Avoid dry and irritating foods, as crackers and cake. Cleanse the mouth frequently with bicarbonate of soda solution. This will help loosen up the mucous plugs and prevent gagging.

I cannot over-emphasize or too often repeat the necessity of considering whooping cough as a serious ailment. In all cases, it is advisable that the afflicted child be under the personal supervision of a physician. Keep your child away from a child with whooping cough and in turn, if your child has this disease, do not allow him to play with other children.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Wedding Plans

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married in a few months. My fiance attends the Congregational Church, of which he is a member, in the morning, and we both go there for the evening service. I attend the Methodist Church, of which I am not a member, in the morning, and we both go there for the young people's meeting at 6:30 in the evening. I'm the president of this organization; he is the chorister. Even though I am not a member of this church, I have attended it since I was 6 years of age.

My problem is this: Since we both have a good bit in common with each of the pastors, which one is to preside at the ceremony? We would both rather have the Congregational minister and will both be members of his church, for I will join it after I am married, but fear it is not the correct thing. Can you help us, Mrs. Beeckman?

Could we have both pastors? You see, it is to be a very simple wedding, and I don't want it to seem as if I am trying to do too much.

BRIDE-TO-BE.

It will be very easy to solve this problem by having both clergymen perform the ceremony. Since you are so closely affiliated with the Methodist Church, I think that you should show honor and compliment to the clergyman of this church, by asking him to participate at your wedding. He could be invited to perform the first part of the ceremony, and then you might ask the clergyman of the Congregational Church to take part in the last part of the ceremony. This would too, I believe, place the emphasis of compliment just where you would want it.

WAGNER SCORES R.F.C. FAILURE TO AID NEEDY

At the request of the Hearst papers, Senator Wagner, author of the unemployment relief bill passed at the last session of Congress, describes the failure of the Reconstruction Finance Corporaton to carry out its purposes and gives his reasons for introducing a second bill yesterday.

By ROBERT F. WAGNER
United States Senator From New York.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Had the $2,000,000,000 made available through the relief and construction act been speedily released for construction enterprises at least a million men, who are today idle, would be having steady employment on the 30-hour-week basis provided by the law. And the number of these would have increased in the course of the year to a peak of two million as successive projects passed through the engineering stages and entered upon actual construction.

In comparison with what could have been accomplished by resourceful administration of the law the actual story of performance is a shameful record. It is exceedingly difficult to estimate the number of men who have actually been given employment thus far by reason of the projects launched under the relief and construction act.

ACCUSES ADMINISTRATION

On the basis of information made available by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and by the executive departments of the government, it is my opinion that not more than 125,000 persons have found work by reason of the operations of the emergency legislation.

Several reasons explain this exceedingly disappointing record. In part the cause lies in the excessively restrictive provisions of the law itself.

In part, responsibility attaches to the unwarranted delay deliberately engaged in by the administration when it refused to permit the work to go forward for more than two months after it was authorized by law.

To a substantial degree the lack of accomplishment is chargeable to the policies pursued by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation which had down to the first of December paid out but $360,000 out of the $1,500,000,000 of additional resources made available to it for the purpose of fostering construction, providing employment and stimulating business.

Since the relief and construction act became law in July conditions have become considerably worse rather than better. Under the circumstances I cannot conceive that Congress would adjourn this session without taking steps to make that legislation truly effective.

MINIMUM PROGRAM

I have introduced a bill which represents in my judgment a minimum program for action by the present short session of Congress for the purpose of providing relief for the destitute and promoting employment. Generally speaking, that bill has two objectives:

First, to remove the present $300,000,000 limitation on the amount which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation may dispense for relief purposes. Suffering has become so intense and so widespread that what remains of that $300,000,000 fund is thoroughly inadequate to satisfy the need.

The bill which I have introduced, therefore, proposes that all of the resources of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation shall be available, as far as necessary, for use for relief as well as for the other purposes of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Second, to liberalize the provisions of the law under which loans may be made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for construction projects so as to make possible a rapid flow of funds into useful activity which will provide employment and promote business.

O'Brien Reveals 'Dual Life' In First Speech

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(INS.)—Mayor John P. O'Brien's confession to having lived, as you might say, a dual life, was publicly on record today.

The new Mayor, who was born in Worcester, Mass., made the disclosure last night in addressing members of the Ohio Society. It was his first after-dinner speech since inauguration. His honor said:

"In days of old, especially in politics, it was taboo to be a carpetbagger. The natives didn't like the idea of them being in politics in New York. I know that as a young Democrat I was fearful it might be found out I was not born on the sidewalks of New York."

FIRE KILLS 5 OF FAMILY

BALTIMORE, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Trapped by flames that swept through a three-story brick dwelling, five members of a family lost their lives here early today.

The dead are: Cecil Hewitt, 53; Mrs. Maude Hewitt, 45, his wife; Cecil, Jr., 20, his son; Evelyn, 16, his daughter, and Corinda Bowen, 25, Mrs. Hewitt's sister.

A boarder at the Hewitt home, Miss Nettie Young, 50, saved herself by jumping from a second story window. She was taken to a hospital suffering from a broken leg and minor burns.

The fire broke out on the first floor and crept up the stairway, apparently shutting off escape from the sleeping inmates of the house. All apparently had awakened but had failed to reach safety.

Village in Indiana Swept by Flames

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Fire that started in the business district here this morning caused a loss of several hundred thousand dollars before it was brought under control. The blaze swept through one-quarter of a block of business property along Main street.

Stanley Walls, an employe of the Crawfordsville Journal and Review, was seriously injured when he was caught beneath a falling wall.

Exchange National Has Repaid $221,000

A total of $221,000 on its loan of $388,900 has been repaid the Reconstruction Finance Corporation by the Exchange National Bank, according to a statement made public today by Robert Gordon, receiver of the closed bank. The statement covers the period ending December 31, 1932.

The loan was obtained to assist in paying the 33⅓ per cent dividend to depositors in September, Gordon said. Remaining uncollected assets December 31 amounted to $5,309,717.

PHONE EXPERT TO TALK HERE

Radio will never replace wires and cables in long distance telephoning, according to H. P. Charlesworth, president of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and vice-president, Bell Telephone Laboratories.

The two systems of sending the spoken word serve distinctive fields, he declared. Even in transcontinental communication now possible by telephone, with radio carrying the voice over the oceans, there is the possibility that some day cables will be used, Mr. Charlesworth said. He speaks tonight before a joint meeting of the Engineers Society of Western Pennsylvania and the Electrical Engineers in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Mr. Charlesworth pointed out the factor of reliability was necessary in the long distance conversation even within this country and the cables are more suitable. This system is more economical, he asserts. Explaining how messages broadcast across the ocean are kept private, he said:

"The words are scrambled on the air and remain so until picked up by the terminal in the other country. Communication to any part of the world is now available to 92 per cent of the telephones in existence."

Suicide of Golf Pro Reveals Wife Murder

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—A few hours after T. M. Harrison, 53, promoter and golf professional, shot and killed himself in a hotel room here yesterday, police broke into his home at Redwood City and found his wife dead—slain by his hand 10 days ago, a suicide note left by Harrison said.

Regulars May Confirm Pinchot P. S. C. Men

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Mr. Shields

HARRISBURG, Jan. 10.—Within the ranks of the regular Republican organization there no longer is an irrevocable determination to refuse confirmation to any of Gov. Pinchot's appointees to the Public Service Commission.

When the Governor secured control of the utility rate-making body through the appointment within the past two years of five of its seven members, reports were frequent that he had scored only a pyrrhic victory, that the new members would serve only until the end of his administration, and that the next Governor, with the Pinchot appointees lacking an extended title to office, would have the opportunity of remaking the commission.

Now that spirit of adamantine opposition has been dissipated. Organization leaders, asked today their attitude toward Commissioners Frederick P. Gruenberg, George W. Woodruff, C. Jay Goodnough, P. S. Stahlnecker and Clyde L. King, the latter the chairman of the commission, have no pat response. They explain that the subject is one which will not be taken up until near the end of the present session of the Legislature, and that failure to confirm the appointees at the special session last summer cannot be considered a forecast for the future.

This recession is understood to be due in part to the attitude of utility companies throughout the state. Gov. Pinchot is well satisfied with the commission. Despite the apparent miracle of a meeting of the minds of the Governor and utilities, some if not all, of the latter are also content.

Advance Fears Not Realized

Their advance fears were due to a belief that any Pinchot-appointed commission would be a roaring combination, ripping the utility structure from stem to stern. That has not happened. Indeed, one of the Pinchot appointees is said to have told friends privately that he was unable to find the sinfulness he was told would be encountered when he went on the rate-making body. He found plenty of inequality, more than enough of rate injustice, but nothing which could not be dealt with through conservative and constructive administration.

And the utilities found they were not being jerked around, to provide a Roman holiday. They were checked on some improper practices, as was to be expected.

But they were not dissatisfied. Moreover, they counted the cost small against the constant turmoil they confronted so long as the commission was known—and suspected—as a Regular Republican-utility directed combination. They felt that, so long as rates were fixed and practices controlled by a Pinchot body there would be less public criticism.

That attitude of the utility chiefs has been communicated to the political leaders in control of the Republican party in the state. To this sentiment has been added a growing appreciation of the fact that refusal to confirm any of the Pinchot appointees might be a fatal political blunder, adding just so much more material for Mr. Pinchot to use in a campaign in 1934 should he be a candidate for the United States Senate.

Perhaps surprising to the general public, but no more than was expected by those familiar with Harrisburg, Commissioner Woodruff is the one against whom the least objection is raised. He is a Pinchot confidante and has been for years. But he takes no action contrary to his own settled conviction just because the Governor's desires might differ from those convictions.

That is now understood by the utilities, who have become assured of a square deal from Woodruff, without his conclusions giving any consideration to political possibilities.

Railroads Reported Pleased With King

Chairman King is understood to have some strong supporters among railroad heads in the state. They are reported to be particularly pleased with his position respecting the trade rivalry of railroads and truck freight carriers. It is conceded, of course, that each decision of Mr. King is reached only on the foundation of facts as they appear to him.

Commissioner Stahlnecker, despite the fact he was private secretary to Mr. Pinchot in his first administration and part of the present, and has been his real campaign manager in every political adventure, is no longer looked upon by the utilities as anathema. This grows out of no specific situation but simply because of the conservative approach the new commissioner appears to have toward controversial problems.

The utilities have noted that, since the new commission has been in office, there has been no onslaught upon such charges as the 25 cents the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company levies for a bus ride. Some utility chiefs are understood to feel that this shows an appreciation of their difficulties, a disposition not to either cut revenues of a street car feeder, or to jeopardize gross rides through letting competitors of the street car subsidiary have a chance at the transportation field.

At any rate, there is a noticeable change in the atmosphere about Harrisburg, so far as former animosity toward the Pinchot appointees is concerned. Both from the standpoint of sound politics and good and settled business there is an increasing possibility that three Pinchot commissioners may be confirmed.

And Mr. Pinchot will assist that consummation by every bit of political leverage at his command.

PUPIL FEEDING PARLEY SET BY COUNCIL

Fifteen Organizations Will Attend Public Meet Tomorrow

City Council has granted a public hearing on proposed feeding of undernourished children in schools to the League for Social Justice, to be held at 2:30 p. m., tomorrow. At the invitation of the league, the following organizations will participate in the discussion:

Child Health Council of Allegheny County, Conference of Progressive Labor Action, Council of Jewish Women, General Health Council of Allegheny County Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women, Public Health Nurses' Association, Socialist Party of Allegheny County, Unemployed League of Pittsburgh, Women's Legislative Committee, Allied Boards of Trade, Central Labor Union, Civic Club of Allegheny County, Methodist Social Service Commission and the Pittsburgh Council of Parent-Teachers' Associations.

Speakers will include Dr. Ralph S. Boots, Dr. Marion McKay and Elmer Cope.

NEW NOVELTIES IN GLASS SHOWN

New designs and innovations in glassware, chinaware and pottery are the demand today of buyers from many parts of the country attending the annual trade showing of the Associated Glass and Pottery Manufacturers at the Fort Pitt Hotel.

With the "Buy American" slogan predominating at the show, Paul M. Phillips, representing one of the largest pottery manufacturers, explained:

"Buyers are seeking something new and distinctive to replenish their depleted store stocks and encourage the public to buy."

Embossed pottery of ivory finish is one of the innovations. Glassware finds many of the items that once were familiar behind bars. The whisky glass and the mixed-drink shaker, however, have become styled to the times. Each is now offered with handles. The old-fashioned highball glass returns, with beer mugs and tumblers. Samuel Fisher, representing the Palen City Glass Manufacturing Company, of Paden City, W. Va., reported that anti-prohibition glassware is in heavy demand.

While "Buy American" signs greet buyers throughout the official association's show, an auxiliary exhibition of more than 50 firms is being held at the William Penn Hotel in which imported goods are displayed.

The association will hold its annual meeting January 17.

STUDY OVERDUE BILL CHARGE

Business houses in 17 cities are making a service charge on overdue charge and lease accounts, it was announced at last night's meeting of the Retail Credit Men's Association in the Fort Pitt Hotel. Three credit executives of Pittsburgh stores gave addresses.

It was said following the reading of a cummunication from D. J. Woodlock, treasurer of the National Credit Association, regarding such charges, that the subject is being given consideration here.

Speakers at the gathering were C. G. Kaessner, credit manager of Kaufmann's; H. E. Wilson, credit manager of Gimbel's, and C. E. Young, formerly assistant credit manager of the Pittsburgh Credit Bureau.

It was the concensus that concerns that collect more rigidly are more highly regarded than lenient ones, and that personal contact with debtors has proven that the great majority are willing and anxious to pay when they have the money.

President B. J. Lindberg presided and Col. Franklin Blackstone introduced the speakers.

American Glassware Excels Importations

Quality and Design Of U. S. Products Outstanding

By PENELOPE REDD

Annually Pittsburgh has the exclusive opportunity to compare the everyday decorative arts as produced in foreign lands with our native product in twin exhibitions of glass, pottery and metal objects at the Fort Pitt and the William Penn hotels. At the Fort Pitt, 33 members of the American Associated Glass and Pottery Manufacturers have exhibits and one member shows at the William Penn Hotel. More than 50 non-members, including many importers of foreign goods, display at the William Penn.

Miss Redd

The day spent among objects where the utilitarian and decorative ends are about evenly balanced was an illuminating one for this reviewer. A careful tour of the exhibits of imported glass, pottery and other objects, indicated that there was an abyss between the gimcrack of the orient and the luxury object of Europe as compared with the consistent ambition for quality throughout the range of American products.

The foreign groups had an abundance of atrocious Japanese copies of the highly-favored Italian and other novelties, in addition to a large selection of costly repetitions of traditionally designed European china and glass.

Objects in metal comprise one class of decorative utilitarian ob-

CALL ANSWERED BY ALL JURORS

For the first time in the history of Common Pleas Court every juror called for service responded yesterday. Of the 230 called, only 14 asked to be excused. Most of the requests were on the grounds of newly-obtained employment and were accepted.

The court yesterday disposed of 20 jury cases involving damage suits. Eight were settled without trial and 12 cases went to juries. Four equity cases were heard, making 24 disposed of the first day of the term.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Jan. 10.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

If ten men went on a hunting trip you would soon learn which was the best cook, which the surest hunter to bring in the meat. You would find that each excelled in something that was useful to all. Now nations are just so many men like these. Each can produce something better and cheaper than the rest, maybe it's by nature, climate, talent, or thrift. Let the U. S., Canada, Argentine, and Russia furnish the wheat, a set amount each, at a set price, profitable and livable to the producer, cotton and meat producing countries the same way, and so on. Even every little nation has something they could make a good living on if given an exclusive world market at a reasonable price. If I raise something, and you make something, can't we make a trade?

Will Rogers

Now don't write any letters telling me, "Your plan won't work." I know it won't, too. It will never be tried. You ask, "What's the joke of it?" Well, here's the joke. Among the commodities which we could prove we excelled in, is office holders and politicians.

Along with a free market for our wheat, meat, cotton and automobiles, we could send 'em all the politicians they need. For instance, to Russia, some senators for some vodka. To Nicaragua some congressmen, for some bananas. I tell you the whole fool scheme is worth trying, just for the sake of this last part. If we can furnish the world with our politicians, we can compete with 'em. Yours, WILL.

Radio City Looks Like It Would Stay a While

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Critics of Radio City are tougher than the man who grabbed his ears and pulled his own head off.

They forget that the Rockefellers have built for the future. They overlook the fact that Radio City furnished work for thousands of men during the building depression.

This is a town where we like to see 'em flop. But snapping at Radio City is wolfing at the moon. Rockefeller Center is a cherry that will stand two bites.

It's going to be there doing business when its critics are panning the orchestra leader in the choir invisible. We concede that it had to change its policies the first week. But think of the benefits already derived.

Actors and musicians are again employed, even though the theaters are so large the audience doesn't realize it.

Roxy Theater is so big that Kate Smith would look like spots in front of your eyes. But it scored a triumph when it got a new coat of paint for the Sixth Avenue Elevated.

PAIR 'KIDNAPED' IN OWN AUTO BY GUNMEN

Same Bandits Hold Up Drug Store in East End

Miss Fay Schoonmaker, daughter of Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, of the Ruskin apartments, and her escort were robbed by two bandits at midnight after driving the escort's automobile two blocks from the apartment house.

An hour later the same pair held up the Martin & Vandevort pharmacy, 3614 Fifth avenue, escaping with $50, Oakland police said.

Miss Schoonmaker

Miss Schoonmaker and Laurent Erny, of 5619 Stanton avenue, were seated in the car in front of the Ruskin when the bandit pair approached. One hopped into the rear seat, and his accomplice, pushing Erny from the steering wheel, drove the car to Lytton avenue.

During the "ride," the thug in the back seat menaced Miss Schoonmaker and Erny with a revolver.

Miss Schoonmaker said:

"I opened my purse and gave them the cash when they drove off in the car. In Lytton avenue, they ordered us out and sped away."

Miss Schoonmaker gave the bandits $9 and her escort surrendered his wallet containing $15 and insurance papers. Erny telephoned police the license number of the machine and the descriptions of the pair. They are believed by police to be the same bandits who early Saturday held up D. J. Thomas, of 5752 Ellsworth avenue, when he left the Ruskin, and forced him to drive over the streets of Bloomfield and East Liberty, after robbing him of $2 and a watch. The descriptions were broadcast over the police radio and teletype systems.

WOMAN FIGHTS PURSE THIEF

Battling a Negro purse-snatcher and beating him with an umbrella, Mrs. Olive Warrender, 30, of 5420 Broad street, was pushed away by the thief and fell to the sidewalk as he escaped with her purse. It contained a diamond ring, valued at $150 and 70 cents in change. The struggle occurred at South Aiken avenue, near Coral street last night.

When the thug seized Mrs. Warrender, she struck him on the head with the umbrella and screamed for help.

A. F. Walters, of 2116 Rose street, and W. J. Charmley, of 712 Bellefonte street, attendants at the Sun Oil Company Station, Baum boulevard and South Negley avenue, pounced upon a gunman who ordered them to hold up their hands in the station last night.

The thug escaped, but his cap and loaded revolver, lost in the struggle, were turned over to East End police.

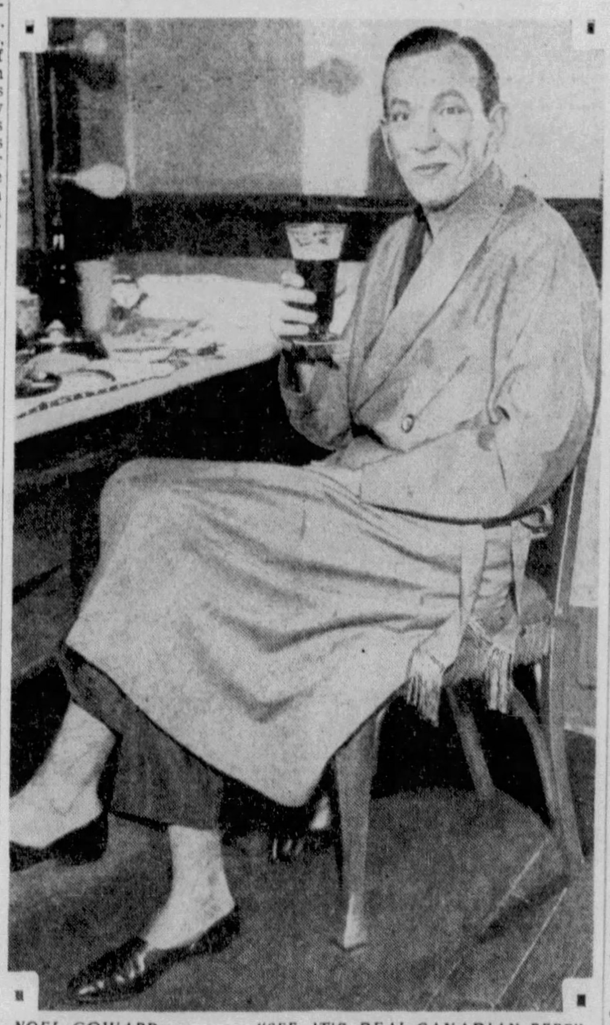
Jewelry valued at $300 and $35 in cash was reported stolen from the home of M. Fils, 5261 Wilkins avenue, yesterday. The glass in the front door had been removed by the thieves.

Architect Killed By Fumes in Garage

R. Garey Dickson, 59, an architect, was found dead shortly before midnight on the rear seat of his automobile in the garage in the rear of his home, 319 Carnegie place, a victim of carbon monoxide poisoning, the Coroner's office reported.

The body was discovered about 10 hours after Dickson had gone into the garage to put new license plates on his automobile, deputy coroners reported. The victim apparently left the engine running as he changed the plates and was asphyxiated.

'FONTANNE AND BEER'



NOEL COWARD . . . . . "SEE, IT'S REAL CANADIAN BEER"

Mr. Coward, the English playwright-actor-director, pictured in his dressing room in Pittsburgh as he satisfied a longing for "real beer" after the curtain fell, praised his woman star, Lynn Fontanne, in his "Design for Living." This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

Noel Coward Lauds Beer And Lynn Fontanne

Noel Coward's first thought as he left the stage at the Nixon Theater last night, where his "Design for Living" pleased a brilliant opening night audience was for a cool bottle of "real" beer awaiting him in his dressing room. Said he:

"See, it's real Canadian beer (the label read Hofer's Beer, a famed product of Canada). A friend gave it to me."

His next thought was that his charming star, Lynn Fontanne, whose husband, Alfred Lunt, also has a leading role in the production soon to have its New York premiere, was one of the four most talented actresses on the stage today. Coward said:

"I think the four most talented actresses today are Lynn Fontanne (and he smiled), Helen Hayes, Ina Claire and Pauline Lord. I wouldn't attempt to say in what order they should come, all are equally talented."

Coward, playwright, actor and director, is an affable Englishman. His annual income is reputed to be more than thrice that of the President, and he rarely works more than two months in a year.

One-Man Police Force Put on Half-Time

If you need a lesson in economy, go to Port Vue.

That borough today probably conducts its official business more cheaply than any other in the world.

There were four employes until a few days ago, when Council fired two—a truck driver and a laborer.

And the remaining two, the police chief, Andrew Macko, and the street commissioner, Otto Vogt, were placed on half salary and half time. Macko now draws $56 monthly.

The police chief is the entire force. And now the borough is without police protection every other day.

CITY COUNCIL INDORSES 'BUY AMERICAN' MOVEMENT

BUY AMERICAN SLOGAN NOW IN SONG

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The slogan "Buy American" has inspired two of America's best known song writers to music and before the week is out the new song, "Buy American," will be heard throughout the land.

The stirring song with music of a martial character was written by Al Sherman and Al Lewis, authors of "Potatoes Are Cheaper" and the current hit, "All American Girl."

It is to be sung on the stage and over the radio by Eddie Cantor, Al Jolson, Rudy Vallee and other widely known and popular singers.

In commenting on the new song today, Bobby Crawford, president of De Sylva, Brown & Henderson, music publishers, said:

"The song was inspired by the 'Buy American' slogan in the Hearst newspapers. We believe that publication of this song will bring to the minds of the American people the logic of the slogan.

AID TO JOBLESS

"This is the kind of song that stirs people. In another week everyone will be singing it. I am so sure it is going to be the hit of the season that I have decided to give 10 per cent of the gross sales from this song to relieve the unemployed."

Lewis, one of the authors, said:

"I was so impressed with the editorials in the Hearst newspapers pointing out the necessity of buying American goods that the slogan just kept running through my mind. Finally I caught a meter in it and its repetition became musical. Sherman was feeling the same way. We went around humming 'Buy American, Buy American' until the song just naturally took form."

Sherman interrupted:

"Yes, and a song is something people grasp subconsciously. Now I know what that fellow meant when he said 'Let me write the songs and I don't care who makes the laws'."

HERE'S THE SONG

The publishers hold the copyright on the song, but they have given Universal Service the right to print it. The lyrics follow:

VERSE:

There's a brand new slogan,
You hear it every day
Anywhere, any place you may be;
It really shows the way
To help the U. S. A.
Just listen to your Uncle Sammy's plea:

CHORUS:

If you want to cheer up the Red, White and Blue,
Buy American, that's all you've got to do.
Your Old Uncle Sam will be grateful to you,
Buy American, that's all you've got to do.
Just purchase wifie dresses, baby shoesies,
Made over here and cure the country's bluesies;
If you want your dreams of good times to come true,
Buy American, that's all you've got to do.

PATTER:

Foxes, sables, sofas, tables,
We've got all you need.
For your home and office
Purchase Yankee guaranteed.
Buy the Yankee brand of candy, cigarets, cigars,
Canes and hats and this and thats and gas and motor cars.

SECOND CHORUS:

Now, listen, you girl friends,
With marriage in view,
Buy American, that's all you've got to do.
You'll soon have your boy friends
Proposing to you—
Buy American, to make your dreams come true.
Now, hey, there, Mister Grocer, Butcher, Baker,
Republican and Democrat and Quaker,
The sun will be shining, the skies will be blue,
Buy American, that's all you've got to do.

Johnstown Business Block Swept by Fire

Stock and office equipment of both concerns were destroyed.

Ottawa Hangs First Slayer Since 1869

OTTAWA, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—William G. Seabrooke was hanged at the Carleton County jail here early today for the murder of Paul Lavigne, Ottawa gasoline station atendant, more than a year ago.

The execution was the first in the capital city since 1869 when Patrick James Whelan paid with his life for the assassination of the Hon. Thomas D'Arcy McGee, Irish-born statesman.

HOME DESIGNS EXCEL IMPORTS

jects designed in America, which compete effectively with the imports both as to novelty and to price. For example, the exhibit by the Chase Brass and Copper Company, of New York City, at the William Penn, shows decorative diversions in tubing and standard types of copper and chromium plated metal which are frankly determined by machine fabrication.

Machine design does not make them any the less attractive as decorative accessories for the art of living whether their functions be appropriate to drawing-room, dressing-room or kitchen.

Moving over to the Fort Pitt Hotel, one finds other trends in American design manifested in the exhibit of the Westmoreland Glass Company. While contemporary taste is anticipated in many "sporting" types, early American glass from old molds, and adaptations of traditional patterns for modern needs are excellently fabricated.

The pottery exhibitions at the Fort Pitt are too numerous for individual mention. One might select the exhibits of the Sebring Pottery Company and of the Homer Laughlin China Company as representative of the superiority of American methods.

The Sebring designers show a dual development of classic French design and of contemporary styles in medium-priced tableware that is unusual. The Laughlin company has managed to produce original and beautiful designs for distribution at a low cost.

American designers have not lagged in style and American scientists have perfected everyday decorative objects of a quality unrivalled by importations.

APPEAL MADE FOR PUBLIC'S ASSISTANCE

City Council unanimously passed a resolution yesterday indorsing "Buy American." In it Council urged the "people of Pittsburgh and those doing business here" to spend their money on American-made goods.

The resolution was presented during the regular session by Councilman Robert Garland. President John Herron put it up to the Council.

Councilmen attending the meeting besides Herron and Garland were McArdle, Muldowney, Soost, Connelley and Little. Councilmen Anderson and English were absent.

ACTION NEEDED

The resolution follows:

"Whereas, unemployment, closed manufacturing plants and stilled commerce in Pittsburgh and the rest of the nation face us with the realization that definite action must be taken by our people to remedy conditions.

"Whereas, millions of dollars' worth of manufactured goods are being shipped into the United States to compete with American-made goods.

"Whereas, these foreign goods are made by cheap labor, and, due to debased currencies, compete, with inadequate tariff protection, against American-made goods; Therefore, be it

"Resolved, that the Council of the City of Pittsburgh indorses the principle of protection to American industries and urges the people of Pittsburgh and those doing business here to buy American-made goods and to spend their money on American products."

CAMPAIGN GAINS

The "Buy American" campaign is stimulating the stock market, William C. Antwerp, former New York Stock Exchange governor, said yesterday in New York, while in California, William H. Crocker, president of San Francisco's Crocker First National Bank, declared the campaign cannot hurt the export trade of the Pacific any more than it has been hurt.

The Reserve Officers' Association of the United States national secretary, Maj. Bennett A. Molter, said the association believed the move patriotic.

Prompt Purchasing Urged to Fight Slump

The following letter has been received by William Randolph Hearst in connection with the "Buy American" movement:

Mr. William Randolph Hearst,
San Simeon, Cal.

My Dear Mr. Hearst:

This is the letter that I spoke to you about in our conversation last evening in which I desire to congratulate you on the "Buy America" suggestion given by yourself through your splendid publications.

We need, in my humble opinion, something more drastic—something that strikes right at the root of the present evil, and I offer this thought, "Spend your money in America and spend it now before it is too late." Start a national propaganda to induce every man, according to his financial ability, to spend 10 per cent at least of his income, earnings, or cash within 90 days with his local merchants and producers—to buy until it hurts—clothing, shoes, automobiles, furniture, radios, entertainment, or whatever he may need.

Any good, usable merchandise, not gew-gaws, should be purchased and, in 30 days from the start of the movement, the factories will need more help, the merchant will need to replenish his stock, the unemployed will be no more (with the exception of the natural loafers) and we will have no need for soup kitchens.

There will be twelve to fifteen million more self-respecting Americans instead of the many discouraged and disgruntled men and women now ripe for anything, even to revolution. This money will come back to each and everyone of us ten fold.

I believe that it would take but the spending of $1,000,000,000 in this manner to put all factories and most of the unemployed to work.

How to get it going? Why not Mr. William Randolph Hearst and his great chain of newspapers and magazines preaching this, pounding it into the close-fisted, etc.? You are the greatest of all American channels through which a great good can be done.

Forgive me if I have taken your time with what may seem a purely utopian theory. If, however, you think there is merit in it, won't you give it your careful thought and study and start something?

Sincerely yours,
S. BARTLEY CANNELL.

Speaking upon "The American Scene, 1932," J. B. Matthews, traveler and writer, told an audience in the Irene Kaufmann Settlement last night that the breakdown of capitalism is apparent "in the evils of the present depression."

Matthews found little immediate hope for socialism in the present situation. He spoke under the auspices of the League for Social Justice.

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—In the intimate setting of the little palace at Dedinye, surrounded by her family, Queen Marie of Jugoslavia celebrated her thirty-third birthday anniversary yesterday.

It was more the birthday celebration of a young mother of three handsome sons and a helpful, sympathetic wife than of a queen reigning over a powerful Balkan country.

RENALDO GETS TERM, FINE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—A two-year prison sentence and a $2,000 fine had been imposed today on Duncan Renaldo, film actor convicted recently of making false statements in a passport application.

Two two-year terms, to run concurrently, were imposed yesterday by Federal Judge George Cosgrave on two counts charging Renaldo with falsifying statements and committing perjury. The fine was imposed for false representation of being an American citizen.

Immigration authorities announced deportation proceedings would be instituted to return Renaldo to Rumania, where, the government said, Renaldo was born. He asserted he was born in Camden, N. J. The government charged the actor entered the United States as a coal stoker in an ocean liner.

A $5,000 appeal bond was furnished for Renaldo.

2ND MAN HELD IN FIRE PROBE

Charles B. Zittol, barber, of 1513 East street, today was held, pending a hearing in connection with the fire Sunday morning that damaged the building at 1801 Penn avenue. Detectives Michael Tortorelli and Joseph Linden testified before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg that Zittol had rented the second floor of the building last Friday and said a man resembling Zittol had been seen running from the building a short time before the fire.

After the fire gasoline-soaked rags in containers were found on the second floor, detectives said. Zittol said he had rented the room for the purpose of organizing a barbers' union.

Previously Meril Micheluzel, of Bridgeville, proprietor of a restaurant on the first floor, had been arrested. Both were held in $2,000 bond.

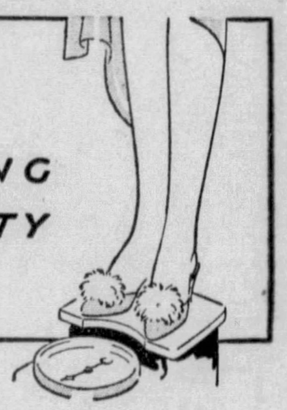
KEEPING SLIM EATING PLENTY



The British Method of "Slimming" Explained

The British have shown the world how to keep slender! Their method never fails. And never harms, for you don't starve yourself or take overstrenuous exercise. Just do two things: (1) Eat the meats and vegetables that oxidize or "burn up." (2) Keep the system from "storing" tissue.

"Slimming," as they call it in England, has been practised there for years. And in that land of hearty eaters you seldom see fat men or women, so the method works!

Now "slimming" has come to America! Here is all you do to take off weight this way!

First: eat plenty, but just eat sensibly. Follow these menus, and watch for new ones to give you variety. Clip them and keep them; don't rely on your memory.

Second: keep system saline! Then foods will oxidize into energy. Tissue can't accumulate. Slowly but surely, your fat will disappear.

(Cut out and save)

BREAKFAST

Juice one large orange
Slice whole wheat toast
Half pat butter
Cup of coffee or tea

LUNCH

Slice pineapple with ball of Philadelphia cream cheese
Four rye crisp crackers
One cup custard
Cup of coffee or tea

DINNER

Cup of vegetable soup (no fat or starch)
Lamb patty broiled
Watercress with French dressing
Portion turnips, flavored
6 stalks asparagus
One portion berries (fresh or stewed)
Small cake
Cup of coffee or tea
You can use one teaspoon sugar, but no cream in coffee or tea.

List No. 2

Nothing could be easier, if you stick to the menus. And keep up the saline, or salt treatment. Andrews effervescent salt (imported from England but only a few cents a tin at any drug store) is pleasant to take. Stir two spoonfuls in a tall glass of water for a "highball" as peppy as any you ever tasted. It's like a fizzy seltzer lemonade! Drink it before it leaps from the glass. At breakfast, or bedtime. Don't miss a single day when you feel "below par."

This method checks fat two ways. But your better appearance is only half the benefit. The whole system is cleansed by this saline treatment; the bloodstream quickened; the pores of the skin purged of impurities. Andrews is an antidote for biliousness and sluggishness; a gentle substitute for cathartics.

Tonight, or in the morning, drink your first bubbly glass of Andrews. If overweight, follow slimming instructions and the set of menus now wrapped around every tin of this effervescent salt. Or just for lazy liver and bowels, as directed on label. Millions drink Andrews regularly just to keep "in the pink," or the "morning after."

WILKINSBURG TAX STRIKE THREATENS

Allegheny County borough and municipal governments, harassed by the problem of keeping expenditures within incomes, met in stormy sessions last night as they moved to reconcile reduced incomes and increasing demand for new expenditures with balanced budgets in the face of the strongest demand for reduced government costs in recent years. In many instances, drastic salary cuts were effected.

Declaring the taxpayers' situation is more acute than at any time in the history of the borough, representatives of the Wilkinsburg 'Taxpayers' Association warned councilmen last night that unless additional heavy slashes are made in the new budget a taxpayers' strike is imminent.

STRIKE THREAT

Rex Newton, secretary of the association, told Council:

"Borough expenses can be reduced $100,000. Unless this is granted you gentlemen are precipitating a taxpayers' strike and a disgusted public will hold you responsible for the chaos that will ensue."

R. B. Hutchison, president of the Taxpayers Association, who declared that the $373,000 budget set for 1933 will permit but a one-half-mill reduction in the present tax rate of 10½-mills, said:

"I'm warning you fellows. We will be after you and after you hard."

After hearing the taxpayers demand a reduction of 1½-mills, Council set Tuesday, January 17, for an open meeting at which representatives of the association, the Wilkinsburg Chamber of Commerce and other organizations will be heard on the tax question.

Council also voted to furnish the association and Chamber of Commerce with a copy of its new budget for any suggestion they may make for reduction in expenditures.

Among the suggestions of the taxpayers' association was a $30,000 slash in the fire department budget.

Council voted to borrow $15,000 for current expenses, to be repaid out of 1933 tax collections.

HOMESTEAD BATTLE

Burgess John Cavanaugh, of Homestead, turned the Borough Council meeting into a public defense of his administration last night by denying the statement of a taxpayers' group that he "employed two policemen for no other reason than to guard his home."

Replying to the accusation, Cavanaugh said that during his administration the police force had been increased by only two men and that they were employed to man the borough police patrol automobile.

He denied a report made before the Homestead Taxpayers' Association, which quoted him as saying:

"I would rather resign than reduce the police force."

A special meeting of Council with taxpayers' representatives will be held tonight.

Members of the Homestead Property Owners' Association agreed to meet with the Borough Council Wednesday night to discuss economy measures.

GLASSPORT CUTS PAY

A flat 10 per cent slash in wages and reduction of working hours was ordered by Glassport Council.

A stormy session followed the wage reduction decision when John F. Mills, assistant director of the Allegheny County Emergency Association, was called upon by the representatives of the Glasasport Unemployed Council to explain charges of the council that the relief body planned to use forced labor in return for food orders.

Mills declared the new plan did not contemplate forced labor, but permitted those willing to work to increase their per capita food allowance from 90 cents to $1.09 per week.

Wages of Tarentum police were reduced $47.50 per month. The borough street department also suffered a wage slash.

M'KEESPORT ECONOMY

McKeesport policemen were put on a six-hour day by Mayor George H. Lysle. Two policemen, Thomas Connolly and James McLaughlin, were pensioned.

Petitions signed by 1,500 Turtle Creek residents were presented at meetings of the Borough Council and School Board seeking a three-mill reduction in the tax levies of both bodies.

Salaries of all borough employes were slashed 15 per cent. All borough officers were re-elected.

Salaries of 55 employes were cut 25 per cent, effective January 1, by Ambridge Council last night, borough taxes reduced two mills to 14 mills. A petition urging the tax reduction was received, but Council at a previous "closed door" meeting had voted for the reduction.

LABOR BATTLES FOR DAVIS

HARRISBURG, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, through its legislative conference committee, favors a legislative program which includes $100,000,000 for unemployment relief, and repeal of the state prohibition enforcement act.

The delegates yesterday also urged cash relief instead of food orders. A committee was appointed to carry this recommendation to the State Emergency Relief Board tomorrow, and to urge that payment be made at the prevailing union wage rate.

The committee directed John A. Phillips, of Philadelphia, president of the federation, to ask Gov. Pinchot why he is withholding United States Senator James J. Davis' election certificate. The Governor earlier had said he would send the certificate to Congress before March 4.

Phillips was told to tell Pinchot that certification of Davis' election would not interfere with the government's action on the federal lottery charges against Davis. It was stated that Davis, in Congress, would support the Davis-Kelly bill to regulate the bituminous industry.

Just as in the good old, before-the-depression days, the Nixon was crowded with a responsive, smartly costumed audience last night when that glorious trio, Lynn Fontanne, Alfred Lunt and Noel Coward, tied their audience in knots of laughter.

And it was ever so pleasant to see a full house again with even the boxes taken. Folks kept arriving and arriving, and among the last was a group who arrived just in time for the first intermission!

But the Nixon does need a larger foyer when Theater Guild comes to town—there just isn't room for half the people who like to smoke and chat between acts.

One thing I noticed with delight last night—the white fur-trimmed black velvet evening wrap which has become so stereotyped as to suggest a uniform, is disappearing.

Velvet Coat

One substitute, which is very graceful, is the full-length coat of velvet, made with intricately puffed sleeves, and untrimmed. Mrs. J. Farley Walton's wrap is the one I have in mind.

Another interesting wrap was that of Mrs. Raymond Ford Moreland. It was of pale chartreuse green lame, trimmed with blue fox with blue fox finishing the elbow-length sleeves.

Mrs. Gordon King, whom I saw chatting in the foyer with Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby, in cranberry red velvet with fur outlining the cape, chose a gown of ice-blue crepe having deep inserts of black in the skirt. The whole effect suggested the new lower waistline.

The William A. Duckhams were there, with Mrs. Duckman wearing gold ribbed silk having no upper sleeve, but a sleeve from the elbow to the wrist! At the elbow a wide band of kolinsky trimmed the half-sleeve of tight-fitting gold fabric like the dress.

Sleeve Idea New

Arriving together were the W. L. Mellons and their daughter-in-law, Mrs. W. L. Mellon, Jr.

The brief sleeves of Juliet Hillman's old-blue velvet dinner dress were of grey fox, and Louise Reed, whom I saw with Richard King Mellon, looked ever so attractive in a smartly simple frock of black velvet having a cape, slit in the back and tied with narrow bands of the velvet.

Mrs. Alan Magee Scaife had small capes of ermine to suggest sleeves for her black velvet gown.

In another group were Mrs. George H. Love in a green velvet wrap, trimmed with white fox; Mrs. H. H. McClintic, Jr., Mrs. John McKelvy, in black crepe; Mrs. Clinton L. Childs in a gold brocade and sable wrap; Mrs. Herbert A. May, Bertha Brooks in a black velvet wrap, having as the only trimming round cut-steel buttons; Betty Higgins in black velvet.

Seen in Audience

I also recall seeing Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins, Clara Dorothea Jenkins, Mrs. J. Henry O'Neil, Madelaine Alexander, Eloise Dorrance, Betty McKay, Gretchen Bickford and David McCargo, Mrs. T. M. Jones III, Catherine Suydam, Mrs. Theodore F. Smith, Jr., Mrs. Simon T. Patterson in flame crepe, Mrs. John W. Lawrence, Louise Evans, Mrs. Frederick Gwinner.

Others were Caroline Mitchell, Mrs. Alexander Laughlin Robinson, Mrs. B. F. Jones III in dark red lace, Mrs. William Standish in hyacinth blue satin, Mrs. Lewis A. Park, Mrs. W. L. Jones, Jr., Mrs. W. C. Robinson, Jr., Mrs. William Penn Snyder, Jr., in bay-green satin, Mrs. Joseph M. Scribner, Louise Baton in deep blue crepe, Mrs. Frank R. Denton in purple crepe, Helen Leovy, Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe, Jr., in chartreuse green chiffon, Mrs. Clarence Stanley, Ruth Konne and Mrs. Clark Miller.

Jeanne Miller Married to R. R. Crane

Mr. and Mrs. Radford R. Crane are now on a southern wedding trip, and upon their return will be at home in Boston. Before their marriage Friday, Mrs. Crane was Miss Jeanne Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ford Miller, of Natrona Height. Mr. Crane is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Crane, of Kittanning.

The ceremony took place at 4:30 o'clock in the Miller home with the Rev. Homer C. Renton officiating. Spring flowers and cibotium ferns formed the setting for the service.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore her mother's wedding gown of white taffeta, trimmed with chiffon ruffles, and having a train and flowing sleeves. Her flowers were gardenias, roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Karl Riemer, of Washington, as her sister's only attendant, wore angel skin crepe, and carried an old-fashioned bouquet. David Crane, of Cleveland, and Robert Crane, a student at Washington and Jefferson College, were their brother's attendants.

After a small reception and a dinner, they departed for the South.

The bride is a graduate of Highland Hall and of Miss Conley's School in Pittsburgh, and attended the Pennsylvania College for Women. Mr. Crane is a graduate of Mercersburg Academy and Washington and Jefferson College.

20th Century Club Told How to End Problems By Psychologist

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Many factors enter into one's enjoyment of Dr. David Seabury's lectures. To begin with, he makes every word he says heard and every word worth hearing. A quick, keen sense of humor gives not only aptness but entertainment to the illustrative anecdotes he tells and instances he cites. And, best of all, the content of his talks is both instructive and constructive.

All of which is only preamble to saying that Dr. Seabury returned to the Twentieth Century Club yesterday and talked for more than an hour to a large audience that stayed on and on asking questions of the distinguished psychologist.

Speaking on "Our Undiscovered Resources," Dr. Seabury told his hearers that willing to believe, relaxing and listening to one's mind, acquiring an impersonal attitude, being intense but not tense, avoiding involvement, linking up propathic powers with epicritic capacity (higher thinking) is using one's undiscovered resources and that to problems and situations so approached solutions would be found.

There is apt to be over focus on material things, especially in times like the present, and no mustering of one's rich inner resources, he said. Dr. Seabury called intelligence tests "purely piffle" and said the tragic mistake of believing the results to be intelligence tests is still being made. They are tests of conduct not capacity, he said, and conduct is not a measure of capacity. He termed the mark system "positively destructive," saying that it makes the student drive himself so hard that he forgets what he is learning. If an individual uses his mind the best he can without regard to consequences he will get the best results possible, he stated.

THE NEW 'BATEAU' NECKLINE INFLUENCES NEW PARIS MODE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 10. — Paris women, who watch carefully for any change in style, often say that it is the evening clothes women take up which first indicate any new trend. Fullness in skirts, higher-than-usual waistline, new necklines, new wrap closings — all these appear often in evening dresses and wraps long before they are taken up for daytime wear.

WHAT USED to be known as the bateau neckline is a fashion which lends a hand toward proving this statement. It is a line which gives a shallow, wide-shouldered effect to the upper portion of a costume, and although more suited to afternoon and evening clothes, it has been appearing lately in Paris dressmaker collections of daytime clothes.

HEIM'S BLACK velvet evening dress with the coque feather collarette was one of the first evening dresses to appear in Paris with this neckline, and it is becoming increasingly popular. It is shown in today's sketch showing how the feathers accentuate the widened neckline and droop over the shoulders.

THIS TYPE of coque feather trimming is extremely popular in Paris right now. Women wear it on evening dresses, accompanying it with collarless evening wraps which are worn in such a way that the feathers serve as collar for the wrap as well.

THERE IS somewhat the same effect in the detachable ermine collarette on the Heim velvet evening wrap also sketched. The ermine crosses the bosom at the front and fastens over the wrap at the center back. Remove the wrap leaving the ermine and it serves as an interesting wrap over one's gown.

CRONIN'S JOB TOUGHEST IN BASEBALL

THE HARDEST JOB in baseball this year? Joe Cronin has it, beyond a doubt. He escapes the task of building up a tailend club, such as confronts Donie Bush and Marty McManus, but those fellows have only one job apiece to wrestle with, whereas Cronin has two. Bush and McManus can give all their attention to their managerial duties, while Cronin has got to play shortstop in addition. There are three other playing managers besides Cronin, but Charley Grimm, Bill Terry and Lou Fonseca, all first basemen, are veteran campaigners, while Cronin is only 26.

Joe Cronin

Playing shortstop, the hardest position on the field, is a full time job for anybody. But it will be only a small part of a big day's work for the young Washington skipper. Joe will have to be one of the earliest arrivals at the park; preside over a skull session; outline the strategy of the day to a group of older and more experienced men; arrange the batting order; select a starting pitcher and assign another to bullpen duty; watch for vulnerable spots in the enemy's attack and defense and direct his own accordingly; decide quickly what is to be done in every crisis that arises; determine when a change of pitchers is advisable, and all the time to set an example of hustle, fight and brilliant play for his men. And when he's not on the field he'll have to make decisions about trades, pass on waiver requests, preserve harmony as well as discipline on the club, handle cases of misconduct and attend to a hundred other things, more or less. Quite a load on youthful shoulders.

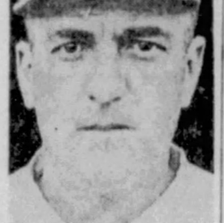
TOO MUCH YOUTH may have caused the Pirates to falter at a critical stage last season, yet the great showing they made in the pennant race as a whole, together with the promise they offer for the future, has prompted other big league clubs to take a leaf out of Pittsburgh's book.

In other words they are going to build for hustle and durability. Giant officials congratulated President Benswanger on his choice of lines for the construction of the Pirates. They told him he had the right idea and said they meant to follow the same course,-to build up with young players.

AND THAT'S WHAT the New York management is doing, as far as possible, in reconstructing its team. Young blood has the call. Another to announce the adoption of the plan is the St. Louis American League club.

Phil Ball and Bill Killefer make it known that veterans stand no chance of getting berths with the Browns. They say they want young, fighting players who will go in there and exert themselves to win and not attempt to save themselves in order to prolong their careers.

TO THAT END, Manager Killefer is leaning to youth in lining up his forces for this year. The Browns will start the season with one of the youngest clubs in the majors. In the infield, the only veteran will be Oscar Melillo at second base. He is 30. Arthur Scharein, at third, is 27; Jimmy Levey, at shortstop, is 25, and Irving Burns, the first baseman, is of the same age. In the outfield, Carl Reynolds and Sam West are 28, and Bruce Campbell is 23. Rich Ferrell, first-string catcher, is 27, and Sam Gray is the only pitcher who has reached 30.



Joe Judge

ONE OF THE oldest players in the majors shifts over to the National League from the American in the acquisition of Joe Judge by the Brooklyn club as an insurance policy at first base in case Del Bissonette doesn't succeed in his attempted comeback.

Judge will be 39 on May 25, and except for a stay in Lewiston in 1914 and another in Buffalo in 1915 he has been in the big show steadily for 19 seasons. The Red Sox had him first after his semi-pro career in New York. He has been playing first base for Washington since 1916.

JUDGE HAS HIT .300 or better nine times, but last season he dropped to .258 in 82 games, the lowest average of his baseball life in either major or minor league company. Max Carey is confident a change of scenery will enable Joe to recover his hitting form.

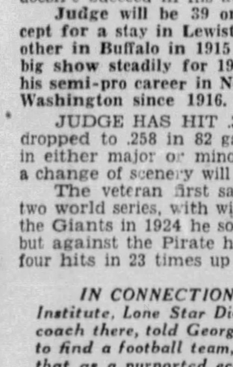
The veteran first sacker has faced National League pitching in two world series, with widely different results. In seven games against the Giants in 1924 he soared to .385, with 10 hits in 26 times at bat, but against the Pirate hurlers in seven games in 1925 he made only four hits in 23 times up for a mark of but .174.

IN CONNECTION WITH the probing of athletics at Haskell Institute, Lone Star Dietz, the old Carlisle player who is gridiron coach there, told George Currie that Haskell's job last fall was not to find a football team, but to keep alive as a college. Dietz says that as a purported economy move, federal officials decided that Lo, the Poor Indian, would have to get along without the benefit of even a junior college education. But the alumni of Haskell, the real all Americans, are loyal. To them the institution is alma mater. They stopped being deserving Republicans and got out to hustle up votes for deserving Democrats. "There are 300,000 Indian votes in the old Indian country," Dietz added. "We knew that if we could make the result even close Haskell would be safe for another four years, anyhow." "And was the result close?" it was asked in seeming innocence. "No," chuckled Lone Star, "it wasn't close. Didn't you read the papers or listen to the radio?"

IT DEVELOPS THAT as a result of the failure to reappoint Frank Macdonald as athletic director, which is being investigated following the charge that it was due to the director's Democratic activities in Kansas, Haskell may have the only athletic chief who works for nothing.

When he was dismissed on the ground of economy, and the Indian Bureau testified in the investigation that he had been denied reappointment only because the athletic staff was overmanned, Macdonald offered to give his services free of charge. Plucky little Haskell's refusal to turn up its toes makes it stand out among a lot of major colleges that are yelping about diminished receipts and radio competition.

IT APPEARS THAT Pete Reilly, whose methods have been questioned more than once, centers his managerial efforts in the boxing game on having the featherweight champion under his wing.



Pete Reilly

First he had Andre Routis as champion, next he had Battling Battalino, and then he tried to have Battalino pass the title to another member of the stable, Freddie Miller. The proposed job was too apparent and the bout was declared no contest.

WITH THE CHAMPIONSHIP finally out of his control, Reilly is no longer in a position to hand it around from one of his fighters to another, so he has bought a new boxer with a view to getting the title back again eventually. His newest fighter in Varias Milling, hard-punching Filipino featherweight. Reilly has just purchased Milling's contract from Johnny Samson for $2,500, and will bring the boxer from California to tackle Johnny Pena in Chicago on Friday night. Reilly predicts that Milling will become the third featherweight champion he has managed.

SOUTH INVADES FIFTH AVENUE HIGH GYM

By JULIUS LEVIN

First place in Section I of the City League will be at stake this afternoon when the quintets representing Fifth Avenue High and South High clash in the Fifth Avenue gymnasium. Both teams came through their opening games last Friday in impressive manners, Fifth Avenue nosing out Peabody on the latter's court, 22-20, while South vanquished Westinghouse at the Market House, 29-27.

The two schools have been rivals in all branches of sport for years and they invariably play their best game when opposed to each other. Louis (Lemons) Pugliano, scoring ace of the Briggs' quintet, and Jesko, star of the South machine, will bear the brunt of attack for their respective quintets

SCHENLEY IN ACTION

While South and Fifth will be striving for their second successive league victories, Schenley High, under the guidance of Coach Walter Gross begins the defense of its City League championship by engaging Coach Lambie's Peabody quintet. Schenley showed a lot of class in defeating Steubenville in a non-league battle last Friday and is going to bear watching in the Section I race. The game will be played on the Schenley floor. Connelley and Westinghouse, both boasting classy fives, will tangle at Westinghouse in the other Section I duel. Connelley will be out to score its second successive league victory, having beaten Taylor Allderdice last Friday.

The Section II program is headed by the South Hills-Allegheny clash in the Phipps gym. Both teams scored victories in their openers last Friday, South Hills defeating Langley, 28-17, while Allegheny doubled the score on Vocational, 32-16. Perry, which swamped Carrick, will have Vocational as its opponent this afternoon, while Oliver and Langley lock horns at Langley in other Section II duels.

SWISSVALE AT SCOTT

The W. P. I. A. L. schedule is headed by the Section VIII clash between Scott High and Swissvale at North Braddock. Scott, undefeated in 10 straight games, including a league victory over Edgewood, will be striving for its eleventh in a row at the expense of the Paulie combine.

Swissvale likewise has an enviable pre-season record and may prove a stumbling block for the Reedman. The game should prove a thriller from start to finish.

The non-league games offered scholastic fans tonight also promise plenty of action with the Homestead-Allderdice fray at Homestead the feature attraction. These two quintets played two great games last winter, Homestead winning both of them, but Allderdice is capable of giving the Campbellites a run for their money.

UNIONTOWN PLAYS

Out in Washington, Pa., A. J. (Pop) Everhart brings his Uniontown machine to the new high school to tangle with the Little Presidents in a non-league engagement. Uniontown is not competing in the W. P. I. A. L. this season due to a disagreement over the section in which it was placed.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE PETRIFIED CHURCH—Though the remarkable petrified church of Mumford, N. Y., now is more than 50 years old, it is in perfect condition, and in all probability the ravages of the elements in future years will cause no damage. The building is constructed from blocks of petrified vegetation quarried a mile distant from the present site. The blocks were sawed and left in the open air for considerable time until they had hardened sufficiently for use as building material. The longer they are exposed, the harder they become. It is interesting to note that elm leaves and small pine twigs are plainly outlined on many of the block surfaces. IODINE—Iodine is a greyish-black, shining solid —not unlike graphite. It begins to volatilize even at ordinary temperatures, and passes into a gaseous state rapidly when heated. The liquid "iodine" we think about is really "Tincture of Iodine," an alcoholic solution.

TOMORROW: THE MOST REMARKABLE POSTMAN.

BOOTERS FACE SUSPENSION

By TOM BIRKS

The Western Pennsylvania Soccer Commission will meet this evening at headquarters with the Atlasburg-Houston fracas of Sunday as the principal item of business.

It is likely that the local governing body will hand out some salty sentences this evening to both of the offending clubs. According to the local officials, Houston already is under suspension and cannot play in organized soccer.

Houston was suspended over an infraction of the rules governing the Panhandle League, regarding the payment of referees.

Atlasburg played in the first half of the Washington County League, and then withdrew. Officials of the West Penn were under the impression that the Atlasburg team had been disbanded.

The riot staged at the game was the worst in many years. Three players are in a hospital.

According to the rules of soccer both clubs must ask for permission to stage an exhibition game. This permission was not sought.

Atlasburg will get the heavy hand dealt to them for playing a club under suspension, and possibly it will be many years before the Houston officials are reinstated.

Troiana to Lead Geneva Gridders

Both of them are sitting down these days plotting the outdoor boxing season at the Meyers Bowl, in North Braddock, and Hickey Park, Millvale, respectively . . . The Bowl will get off to a new start after a disastrous season last year, while Hickey Park came through with a little profit last year, due to conservative management . . . Tilden To Play In Charity Tilts

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—William T. Tilden II will make what may be his last competitive appearance in New York, January 28, when he plays an exhibition series with Hans Nusselein, Bruce Barnes and J. Emmet Pare at the 7th Regiment Armory for the benefit of the unemployed.

Tilden plans to retire from competitive tennis after a few more appearances in the United States and a tour of Europe.

FRIDAY'S CARD TO STAND

The proposal to bring about a shift in one game or the other so as not to have two college basketball games in the city Friday night, when Pitt meets the Dukes and Tech takes on Wash-Jeff, is out.

It had been suggested that the Panthers and Dukes move their game back to Saturday night, but Duquesne officials were unable to go along, explaining that religious services would interfere.

Graduate Manager Overend, of Tech, after giving the idea of moving the game with the Presidents back, decided against such a move. He said he felt that two distinct crowds would take in the games, Tech followers not being especially interested in the doings between the Panthers and Dukes.

Coach Carlson, of Pitt, is revamping his lineup for the important fray with the Red and Blue. Claire Cribbs, star center, is definitely out of the action, suffering from a badly sprained ankle, and Skippy Hughes, sophomore forward, still has an elbow injury that may render him hors de combat as far as Friday night's engagement is concerned.

Russ Ochsenhirt likely will move into Cribbs' place at center, with Charley Hughes taking Russ' place at guard.

And it all will happen on Friday, the thirteenth, too.

Turtle Creek Wins Dual Swim Meet

Turtle Creek High School's crack swimming team added another victory to its 1932-33 string.

The Turtle Creek splashers yesterday defeated the Munhall tank team, 38 to 17, in a dual meet. Turtle Creek made a clean sweep of all first places.

The Carnegie Tech basketball forces will be paraded for the benefit of the home folks tonight for the first time this season as the Skibos try conclusions with Temple University's Owls. The contest will be the second of the season for Tech and the second Intercollegiate Conference tilt for both fives, Carnegie having nailed West Virginia last Sat'day night, while Temple was being taken apart by Pitt.

The Owls have been roosting in Webster Hall since last Friday, and will complete their stay in this district tomorrow as they tie up with West Virginia at Morgantown. Yesterday the squad was given a lengthy workout in the Tartan gym as Coach James Usilton dwelt at some length on the mistakes that cropped up in the game with Pitt and threatened to make the boys walk back to Philly if an improvement was not forthcoming tonight. He had his fingers crossed as he made his threats, but how were the lads to guess that?

SICG INJURED

The Tartan casualty list may have a new member for tonight's game. Ted Rigg, sophomore guard, who played brilliantly against the Mountaineers, turned up Sunday with a lame back and despite heroic efforts on the part of Trainer Bert (Whiteman) Munhall, the youngster may not be fit for duty tonight. If he isn't, Jerry Seigal likely will get the call at his guard post.

The remainder of the Tech lineup will be intact, with Smith and Jagnow at the forwards, Stentz at center, and Red Fergus at the other guard.

Coach Usilton will start the same aggregation that squared off against Pitt. This combination has Goldberger and Brown as forwards, Len Gudd at center and Rosan and Beron for guards.

A victory for the Tartans tonight automatically will shove 'em into a tie for the conference lead with Pitt. There is something.

Dukes Walk In

Chick Davies' Dukes, with the redoubtable Marty Reiter out of action and confined to his bed with a sore throat, had an easy time of it, a very, very easy time, against George Washington's Carnera-like Colonials last night. The Dukes won in a walk, 52 to 32, and might have made the advantage even more decisive.

George Washington had the size and the ambition, but lacked the finesse on defense to cope with the fast-passing and accurate-shooting game of the Dukes.

It was just a workout for the locals, and Coach Davies took full advantage of it, keeping his regulars in there far longer than he needed. He was looking ahead to the Pitt game Friday, you see, and the Colonials had to suffer.

MOORE STARS

Led by Dudey Moore, the Dukes hopped off to a fine lead and maintained it, nay, even improving on it, as the contest wore on. At the half, the Red and Blue was out in front by 25 to 13 and with a veritable barrage of shots, worked the count to 40-15 early in the second period. Parrack, star George Washington forward, tried hard, but couldn't hit consistently, though he did account for four field goals, all long ones.

Paul Birch, Len Brenner and Moore led the Dukes' attack, scoring 12, 13 and 10 points respectively, too respectively for the Capital citians. The lineup:

TUNNEY TELLS HOW PHILADELPHIA GOT TITLE FIGHT

SYNOPSIS

Tex Rickard's announcement that he had clinched the Dempsey-Tunney match has kicked over a hornet's nest and New York's boxing powers warn both the promoter and Gene dealing with the "ineligible" champion. The commission votes 2-to-1 to allow the bout, but then the license board pops up with the final say, Col. John J. Phelan, its head, withholding his decision despite Gene's personal plea. Appeal was made to Gov. Alfred E. Smith, but "he would have nothing to do with the mess" . . . "disgusted with all the cheap political chiseling" . . .

CHAPTER THIRTY

In due course, Col. Phelan returned to New York to attend to the matter of boxing licenses.

Gene Tunney

It was arranged that Jack Dempsey and I appear at the first meeting of the License Committee and make formal application. We came down from our training camps. Phelan having no good reason to withhold it, gave me my license, but withheld Dempsey's on the ground that Jack refused the Wills match. Whereupon Gene Normile, Dempsey's manager, showed a contract Dempsey had signed with Floyd Fitzsimmons to fight Wills in a no-decision contest in Michigan City in 1925.

This stumped the veteran soldier, who sent for Wills. Wills was modestly cake-walking up and down the outer chamber of the Commission office where he had come hoping to be able to challenge Dempsey personally. Wills admitted he had been a party to such a contract. Being easily baffled, the veteran soldier began stuttering. He had no trump left. Finally he said:

"If Dempsey was my fighter I'd know what to do to get him a license."

RMILE PUZZLED

Normile turned to him in all sincerity and said:

"Mr. Commissioner, frankly, I do not know what else to do. Please tell me and it will be done."

The venerable Colonel replied:

"Well, he is your charge. I won't going to tell you. You're getting paid to know those things."

Dempsey received no license. The meeting was over. All was finished but the picture taking. Chairs were provided for Dempsey and me to sit together for a picture. While the cameramen were arranging their apparatus for seeing Wills pass into another room, Jack said:

"That Wills will never get a chance at the heavyweight championship. I'll fix him. When this fight is over I'm going to make it clear that he will never get a chance at the title long as I am champion."

The naivete of that statement amused me. I had caught Jack off his guard. Always in his public statements, Dempsey was respectful toward the chances of a prospective opponent. I could see that in the back of his mind there was no question about the outcome of this match. Not wishing to change that picture until the right moment, I ignored it completely and said:

"Yes, that 'bird' has caused us both plenty of trouble."

PHILADELPHIA GETS MATCH

Commissioner Brower, who was the only lawyer on the Commission, usually guided it in its legal opinions. He advised Col. Phelan that he had exercised authority illegally in refusing to grant both licenses. He wired Attorney-General Albert Ottinger's office in Albany for its opinion.

The following day, Ottinger wired Brower it was the opinion of the Attorney-General's office that the License Committee had no authority to withhold the license for a bout that had been sanctioned by the Boxing Commission.

The old Colonel knew the meaning of strict obedience. His position was untenable, but he stuck to it. Commissioner Brower advised Rickard to apply for a court injunction restraining Phelan from interfering with the promotion of the contest. Rickard's lawyers drew the necessary legal papers. But, as he was about to make application for the injunction, the chairman of the Sesquicentennial celebration, representatives of Mayor Kendrick, of Philadelphia, and Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, and the chairman of the Pennsylvania Boxing Commission, called on Rickard at his office in Madison Square Garden and asked him to take the fight to Philadelphia. They were ready to guarantee him any protection he thought necessary. Rickard called Commissioner Muldoon, who advised him to accept the offer from Philadelphia. After a three-hour conference, an agreement was signed and the fight was transferred to the Sesquicentennial Stadium in the Quaker City. September 23, 1926, was the date set.

POLITICAL DEBT PAID

And so ended the long bitter battle between the Commission and the Wills forces on one side and the Rickard-Dempsey-Tunney alignment on the other. The former had a complete victory in that they kept the fight out of New York, but we had the final victory in eventually staging the match and drawing the largest paying crowd in the history of sports up to that time.

I am confident that no member of the Boxing Commission had any particular desire to promote the interests of Wills. A political promise that Wills would get the first chance at Dempsey in New York had been made to catch the Harlem vote and they were trying to keep that promise. Naturally, this precipitated a test of power between Rickard and the politicians. Unluckily, I was in the middle and had to pay through the nose. I am still paying, for the pending Mara lawsuit against me for a half-million dollars with interest since 1926 is a direct result of this political fight.

But to get back. After Rickard advised me to resume training I knew that he was determined to hold the fight somewhere in the United States. It became a matter of pride with Rickard. Though there was a possibility that the match would have to go to a state that did not allow decisions, I knew that Tex was going to promote the thing somewhere. I set to work in earnest, realizing this was to be the opportunity that I had worked seven years to get.

How Tunney studied Dempsey in action and in the movies, and how he overcame a bad case of "the knockout jitters" when training for the Philadelphia classic, will be told in detail tomorrow.

Coach Jock Sutherland Catches Up on Mail

PANTHERS' FOOTBALL COACH, BACK FROM ROSE BOWL GAME, CHECKS CHRISTMAS CORRESPONDENCE IN HIS OFFICE

It will be several days before Dr. John Bain (Jock) Sutherland, Pitt's head football coach, will be back in his old routine. He spent most of yesterday following his return the night before with his gridders from the Rose Tournament game at Pasadena, Cal., reading his accumulated mail. It will take him a few days to get it cleared away. Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture shows him wading through what the postman left during the time he and the Panthers were in faraway Tucson and California.

WOOD CAPTURES L. A. OPEN

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Craig Wood, Deal (N. J.) pro, has added the Los Angeles $5,000 open golf championship to his list of link triumphs for the winter season. The eastern star captured the eighth playing of the Los Angeles classic yesterday by turning in a 281 for the 72 holes of play.

Wood also won the San Francisco match play open and the Pasadena open, making a clean sweep of the California open tournaments for the 1932-1933 winter season.

The hard hitting pro from Deal was three strokes under par for the four rounds of competition and never once bowed to perfect figures for the exacting Wilshire course.

Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente, Mexico, and Willie Hunter, Los Angeles pro, tied for second place with 72-hole scores of 285.

Gene Sarazen, British and American open champion, was forced to withdraw from the competition after the third round and go to a Santa Monica hospital for treatment for a severe cold which threatened to turn into influenza.

Iowa Floor Stars Are Ruled Ineligible

IOWA CITY, Ia., Jan. 10.—(INS.)—Ivan Blackmer and Edward Break, University of Iowa varsity basketball forwards, have been definitely ruled ineligible by the Western Conference eligibility committee.

They were ruled "technically ineligible" by the decision received late yesterday by Dr. E. H. Lauer, athletic director here, in a telegram from Prof. Thomas E. French, of Ohio State, chairman of the committee. Prof. French later explained that the two players are "absolutely ineligible."

The Iowa athletic board on December 30 disbarred the two players for playing on an independent team.

The Daily Iowan, student newspaper, in an editorial today asked the three members of the University of Iowa athletic eligibility committee to resign. The paper charged the cases of the basketball stars declared ineligible were "tragically mishandled."

Former Clark Club Stars in Reunion

Old time members of the former Park Club, of Christ Episcopal Church, North Side, will gather at a reunion tomorrow in the parish house. The present club has a representative basketball team, which will meet the floor passers from Trinity Cathedral in an exhibition game.

Former members of the Park Club include Cal Bolster, John Irwin, Ed Ludwig, George Graham, Howard Noel, Ollie Stehle, Jim Robertson and Harry Fowler.

PARMALEE TOPS A. A. HURLERS

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Le Roy (Bud) Parmelee, Columbus righthander who joined the club in midseason after a trial with the New York Giants, established himself as the leading pitcher of the American Association for 1932, according to official averages released today.

Parmelee built up a record of 11 victories and one defeat, for a percentage of .933. Rube Benton, one of the old-timers who helped pitch Minneapolis to the championship, won 18 and lost seven, ranking second among the regulars, and Americo Polli, of Milwaukee, followed with 14 victories and six defeats.

Two no-hit, no-run games were accomplished, both at the expense of Kansas City. On May 19, Bryan (Slim) Harriss, St. Paul's veteran southpaw, did it, and on August 30, Paul Dean, of Columbus, younger brother of the St. Louis Cardinals' famous Dizzy, did it again.

Panthers' Stars, Coach To Tell of Rose Bowl Game

The Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph have prepared a real treat for the listeners to their weekly radio program over WCAE tomorrow night at 7 o'clock.

Three Pitt football players and an assistant coach and scout will tell the story of the surprising 35-0 setback by Southern California in the Tournament of Roses game at Pasadena, Cal., New Years Day. The squad returned home last Sunday night, and this program marks its first public utterances on the game.

Acting-Capt. Warren Heller, all-America halfback, who was the second largest ground-gainer in the game; Joe Skladany, who played a whale of a game at right end, and Paul Cuba, the husky left tackle, are the players who will review the game.

Bill Kern, former Pitt star tackle, now assistant coach and scout, who shadowed the Trojans in their game with Notre Dame and then saw Pitt play them, will speak on the subject from his end.

There are many angles of the game that have puzzled the fans. In interview fashion, Harry Keck, sports editor of the Sun-Telegraph, will seek to have the players and Coach Kern answer them. It's the hottest sports subject at the moment in Pittsburgh. Tune in on it. You've been asking the questions. Now get the answers.

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The annual mid-winter meeting of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association slid into the annals at the P. A. A. last evening as district net officials attended strictly to business and disposed of a flock of items of import. Such matters as P. T. A. attitude toward the Middle States sectional body; the election of local delegate to the Philly conclave of the M. S. L. T. A. next week; a new playing code for the Steel City inter-club loop, and dates for the 1933 Western Pennsylvania championships passed in rapid review and met with speedy disposition.

Likelihood of immediate conflict between the Pittsburgh net group and the Eastern end of the Middle States section was obviated when suggestion of the feasibility of formation of a sectional association to include Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio and perhaps Western New York was tabled pending outcome of the Middle States pow-pow at the Penn Athletic Club on Saturday, January 21.

DAVIS DELEGATE

President J. Phillips Davis again was selected to represent the West Penn area at the yearly Philadelphia session. Davis will sound out Seaboard sentiment upon the proposition to carve the above noted section out of territory now covered by the Middle States, the Middle Atlantic, the Western and the Eastern sectional areas. He will likewise seek additional recognition for Western Pennsylvania tennis in the councils of the wise ones of the East.

Under the league playing code offered for tentative approval last night, postponement of team matches or parts thereof by mutual consent would be banned under penalty of defaults for the guilty parties. The use of ineligible contestants would also be forbidden under pain of forfeiture of matches and there would be imposed upon each team the duty of submitting to the association secretary a final written roster of eligible combatants on or before either May 31 or June 15.

The forty-fifth Western Pennsylvania title tournament will be run off throughout the week beginning Saturday, June 17, the traditional date of the event. Site of hostilities has yet to be determined and whether or not it will return to Stanton Heights for its fifth visit there appears more or less problematical.

RANKINGS INCOMPLETE

Chairman Bob Schmertz, of the ranking committee, reported that his group has been on the job for the past fortnight and will require another week or so to untangle the bewildering mass of data befogging the statisticians. Schmertz announced that 20 racqueters will be rated in men's singles and that 10 teams will grace the doubles slate.

Recreational Director William S. Haddock, of the County Parks Bureau, sat in on the seance along with his assistant, C. E. Forrest. Haddock stated that the quota of tennis courts in South Park will be raised from six last year to 20 for 1933. It is the aim of county authorities to stop at nothing short of bringing the National Public Parks championships to Pittsburgh for 1934 or 1935.

The ever-popular "Tennis Night" smoker may be extended to include an afternoon program this spring. At any rate, it is down on the books for sure and will very likely be held before the middle of May.

NORTHCUTT LEADS

MONTREAL, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—By the slender margin of one point, Laurence (Baldy) Northcutt, star Montreal Maroon forward, has retained his position at the top of the National Hockey League scoring column in the statistics announced and including last night's games. With 15 goals and seven assists, Northcutt has scored 22 points, one more than Bill Cook, of the New York Rangers.

HANLEY IN HOSPITAL

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Ill with influenza, Dick Hanley, Northwestern University coach, arrived here for a visit and was taken to the Hollywood Hospital. Attendants said his condition was not serious.

SARAZEN URGES GOLF CHANGE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Gene Sarazen believes golf's greatest need of the moment is a greater thrill, and he thinks he knows how to supply it. His suggestion is make the cups bigger. He said:

"Golf now is too tame. Good players knock the ball on the green in two strokes and then take two putts for a par four. If we had more one-putt greens the game would be much more interesting to watch and play.

"My idea would be to make the cups eight inches across instead of four and three-quarters. What a difference that extra three and one-quarter inches would make! It would work distinctly to the advantage of the star player, and I'll tell you why.

"Say a crack player and one just average are playing. The average player puts his ball on the green say 20 or 25 feet from the cup. The expert is closer, say 12 to 15 feet. But each will take two putts and halve the hole. If the cups were bigger, the average player still would take his two putts from 20 to 25 feet, but the expert from 12 to 15 feet would knock his in every time. There would be the thrill.

"In Florida some time soon we are going to have a 72-hole tournament with the cups eight inches. I believe some good player well on his game will play four rounds all under 70."

Contracts Taboo At Mich. State

EAST LANSING, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—The Michigan State College athletic council has laid down two drastic rules of procedure as it began the task of picking a successor to James H. Crowley as head football coach.

The council has decided to refrain from bidding for the services of any coach now under contract. It also decided to abolish the policy of placing the State coach under contract.

Tim Mara Seeks To Rule Out Extra Points

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—A suggestion that the National Football League abolish the point after touchdown and decide tie games with an extra period has been made to his fellow directors by Tim Mara, owner of the New York Giants.

Mara pointed out that only one game of 58 played in the season just closed was decided by the point-after-touchdown, while 20 ties indicated the need of some solution for that problem. League players made good 77 tries of 105 attempted for the point after touchdown.

BRAVES TO BE BIG THREATS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Bill McKechnie, big chief of the Boston Braves, has his tomahawks sharpened to carve himself a home in the first division of the National League. Skipper Bill lost out in the same effort last summer by something like one-half of a full game. With this frown from Lady Luck went $5,000 which McKechnie is to collect provided he can reach the upper crust in any of the four years of his present contract. He is about to enter on his fourth season.

Defeat on the last day of the 1932 season cost the Wilkinsburg citizen the princely sum, but Bill has not complained; rather he looks upon the tough break with a smile. And, believe me, it takes a broad-minded Scot to be merry under those conditions.

Well, anyhow, McKechnie expects to cut quite a shindig in the coming campaign. He is revamping his club, and if one or two of his recruits come through he may realize his ambition. Touching on the Braves, Bill said:

BANKS ON COAST STARS

"I think Frank Hogan will help us a lot behind the bat, in driving in runs and in handling the ptchers. Then we have two promising boys coming from the San Francisco Missions, of the Pacific Coast League. The information I have on Thirdbaseman Dick Gyselman and Secondbaseman Arthur Wright, of the Missions, is very pleasing. Gyselman is a thirdsacker who is built along the lines of Pie Traynor. Wright, I understand, is another Bartell. He is a track man from Stanford and from I hear, a pretty fresh kid."

McKechnie has another thirdsacker coming up in Bill Walters, who was farmed out to the Montreal club of the International League last summer. Walters was a teammate of Catcher George Susce, Oakland athlete. Susce thinks the rookie will be one of the great thirdbasemen of the sport if he gets a break or two.

LIKES BAXTER JORDAN

McKechnie also is steamed up about Firstbaseman Baxter Jordan, whom he purchased from the Baltimore Orioles last summer. Jordan looks the part of a brilliant gateway tender, and he seems to have a real punch at the plate. In his 49 contests with the Braves he batted .321.

BULLS SPONSOR RAIL SHARE ADVANCE

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP.)—Traders found the stock market rather loggy, but more inclined to advance than to decline today. Rails again were selected by the bulls as their favorite vehicle, and several issues pushed up fractionally to a point. Steels also acted well, as did tobaccos.

United States Steel's unfilled tonnage report for December, showing the negligible decline of 161 tons, made a fairly favorable impression. Some quarters had felt that a slight gain might be shown, but keeping the backlog virtually unchanged, in contrast to a decline of 28,739 tons in November, and a drop of about 95,000 tons in December of last year, was not regarded as a bad showing. Of course, December usually sees a seasonal gain.

Sentiment in brokerage quarters remained predominantly bullish, although some skeptics still stressed the low level of corporate earnings, the prospect of publication of a long list of unfavorable 1932 statements in coming weeks, and uncertainties over impending dividend actions. United States Steel directors meet for action on the preferred dividend late this month. Some weeks ago, Wall street seemed largely of the opinion that the payment would be cut or omitted, but some talk of continuance of the payment from surplus is now heard. American Telephone directors meet in February. Nash was firm in response to its report for the year ended November 30, showing 39 cents a share earned.

The strength in bonds has made a favorable impression in Wall street. It was felt that gilt-edged bonds had gone so high that continuance of extremely low short-term money rates would begin to force funds into highest grade stocks. The upturn in bonds revived rumors of buying by the American Securities Investing Corporation, formed last June under Morgan sponsorship.

KREUGER AUDIT BARES FRAUD

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The manipulation of Kreuger & Toll accounts goes back at least to 1917, reported Price, Waterhouse & Co. today, following an investigation which has been under way by that auditing firm since last May.

From June 1, 1918, to March 31, last, said the report, moneys raised from the public through the sale of shares and debenture issues amounted to 2,104,000,000 Swedish kronor, or approximately $560,000,000 at par. In addition, 614,000,000 kronor or about $164,000,000 was obtained through bank loans and on bills.

Most of this money was invested in the government and other marketable securities, in subsidiary manufacturing and trading companies and in the match monopolies, except for 432,000,000 kronor, or about $116,000,000, which were withdrawn by Kreuger and remain unaccounted for.

The investments were valued on March 31, last, at 775,000,000 kronor, or about $207,700,000 which, compared with the aggregate cost of 1,710,000,000 kronor, or $458,280,000 reveals a shrinkage of 935,000,000 kronor, or $250,580,000.

Earnings of the companies, the firm states, averaged about 1½ per cent a year on the average capital invested in the shares and debenture bonds of the company, or considerably less than Kreuger's reports indicated.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

Interborough Rapid Transit Company November deficit amounted to $232,984 after taxes, interest, Manhattan Railway rental, etc., compared with deficit of $219,319 in November, 1931. For five months to November 30, last, deficit totaled $2,533,284, against deficit of $1,332,249 in the similar 1931 period.

Nash Motors Company reports for the year ended November 30, 1932, net income of $1,629,552 after all charges, equivalent to 39 cents a share on the capital stock. In the previous fiscal year profits amounted to $4,807,681 or $1.76 a share. The balance sheet shows current assets of $34,145,138, including $32,134,276 in cash and United States government securities, against current liabilities of $1,145,350. On November 30, 1931, current assets totaled $39,786,731 and current liabilities were $2,710,153.

EXCHANGE RULE HITS MYSTERY STOCKS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The New York Stock Exchange's new rule, requiring that accounts of corporations which apply for new or additional listing be audited after July 1 next by independent accountants is a recognition of the growing public demand for truth in financial statements.

As a matter of fact, while New York state and numerous other commonwealths have pursued an attitude of hands off toward the accounts of unregulated industrial corporations and also of holding companies, the stock exchange for years has been trying to fight the battle of the outside investor.

Mr. Rukeyser

The travesty of corporate accounting, especially in view of the increasingly wide incidence of ownership, has added greatly to the instability of our economic society. In the stock market boom, the swing upward in "mystery stocks" went much further than it otherwise would have because numerous managements in their issued statements concealed earnings and assets. Likewise, in periods of great liquidation, frightened investors and speculators needlessly sacrificed holdings because they lacked confidence in the authenticity of published financial reports.

If financial reports are permitted to conceal rather than to reveal the true facts concerning corporations. The outside investor is hopelessly at a disadvantage as compared with the insider. It makes no great practical difference whether the bunco game of the insiders consists of hiding or padding earnings or assets.

The very least that can be expected of listed companies is that they engage outside auditors to certify as to the authenticity of the record. This may constitute only a small advance unless there is likewise a marked improvement in the independence and disinterestedness of auditors. In this connection, the freedom of accounting firms would be heightened if they no longer had to depend for employment on the good will of the managers of corporations. If the stock exchange itself, for example, would assume responsibility for nominating acceptable auditors, the accountants could function with a vastly greater amount of independence and professional integrity.

SYSTEM CHANGING

The whole question is complicated by the growing healthy tendency of progressive executives to make accounting a daily tool of management—a photographic record of the current operations of the plant. Such continuous services can perhaps best be performed by accountants employed on a full time basis by the management. The nature of such accounting is fast changing. Traditional forms are giving way to new needs of alert executives, who, when supplied with the proper data, can sit at their desks in New York and know more about plant operations than superintendents on the scene.

In order to reconcile the legitimate needs of management for useful accounting as a photographic record of operations with the desire of outside investors for a periodical independent audit, the task of the outside accountants in drawing up annual balance sheets and perhaps quarterly income accounts should be largely to verify and approve or disapprove the daily auditing inside the corporation for the necessary managerial functions of the insiders.

COTTON EASES ON SELLING

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Cotton futures opened steady, 1 to 4 points decline on lower Liverpool cables and improved weather. January, $6.10; March, $6.18; May, $6.33; July, $6.45; October, $6.64; December, $6.77.

Initial offerings were absorbed by trade buying and covering, but selling through houses with southern and New Orleans connections continued and there was also some near-month liquidation. Prices eased off from 6.19 to 6.15 for March and to 6.40 for July, or about 5 to 6 points net lower.

The market sagged another few points later under further southern selling and some local selling. March eased to 6.12 and July to 6.37, making net losses of about 8 to 10 points on active positions, but offerings were absorbed by continued trade buying and a steadier turn in stocks.

At midday the market was quiet at rallies of 3 to 4 points from the lowest.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 10.—Cotton, 5,000 bales, American, nil. Spot moderate business done; prices 5 points lower; quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 5.95; good middling, 5.65; strict middling, 5.40; middling, 5.25; strict low middling, 5.10; low middling, 4.95; strict good ordinary, 4.75; good ordinary, 4.45. FIVE KOPPERS AIDES WAIT HEARING

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 10.—Five prominent Pittsburghers closely identified with Mellon enterprises today were among 27 individual defendants in a giant suit for recovery of $25,000,000, allegedly taken from the American Light and Traction Company, who were awaiting resumption of their hearing in Chancery Court here tomorrow.

John St. C. Brookes, Jr., Harold Doolittle, Charles D. Marshall, Henry B. Rust and William F. Rust, all of Pittsburgh, are declared by plaintiffs Harry Helfman, of Detroit, and Stockton Cranmer, of Somerville, N. J., to have been involved in the utility holding company of stock transactions resulting in the alleged losses.

KOPPERS OFFICERS

All five are directors or officers of the Koppers Company — a closed Mellon corporation — or subsidiary firms as well as numerous other Pittsburgh companies. Koppers is alleged to have profited to the tune of millions through deals under fire in 1928, 1929 and 1930.

The 27 individual defendants and 30 companies involved deny all the charges. Principal among utility holding companies involved are the Koppers interests, American Light and Traction Company, United Light and Power Company and United Light and Railways Company.

Their hearing before Chancellor Backes is expected to continue for three weeks or more.

Plaintiffs will show that, at the beginning of the period, the United Light group, controlled by Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier, and the Koppers interests, were closely interlocked on the board of the traction company and the United Light companies. At the end of the period, however, the Eaton companies were in control of the traction firm and the Koppers influence had diminished with great profit, it is claimed.

All of this in breach of directors' fiduciary trust, it is claimed.

DEALS UNDER FIRE

Deals under fire during the three years in question include purchase by the traction company from the Koppers Gas and Coke Company of all the stock of the Milwaukee Coke and Gas Company at a price declared to be in excess of $7,000,000. The purchase came in 1928, a year after Koppers Gas and Coke had bought the company at a price between $3,500,000 and $5,000,000, according to testimony.

It was declared on the stand yesterday that in the year in which the Koppers group owned the Milwaukee firms, $4,926,550.44 was squeezed out in dividends. Profit on this one deal to Koppers was set by the plaintiffs at more than $7,000,000.

Sale to 10 subsidiaries of the Koppers interests of the traction company stock in the Brooklyn Union Gas Company is assailed on the grounds that the 157,940 shares block—constituting practical control—was disposed of at a price $4 a share below the year's open market low.

Plaintiffs declare the traction company bought from United Light and Railways, in 1928, 39,582 shares of stock in the Brooklyn Borough Gas Company, with a book value of $70 a share, in exchange for 56,248 shares of American Light and Traction Company stock, then valued at about $200 a share. Purpose of the purchase, Helfman alleged, was to re-sell to the Koppers group on a long-term credit basis.

Yesterday, first day of the hearing, saw little progress with the case. The courtroom was half empty, with representatives of the attacked firms accounting for most of the occupied chairs.

In the course of testimony, Helman said:

"Lathrop told me that the Koppers people were very hard and grasping. It led to a row between United Light and Power Company and the Koppers people, he said, and they thought it best that Koppers divest itself of its stock in American Traction."

Alanson P. Lathrop, of Milwaukee, is chairman of the traction firm's board.

OFFICES LISTED

Financial directories show that Brookes was vice president of the Koppers Gas and Coke Company secretary of the Koppers Company, member of the executive committees of the United Light and Power, United Light and Railways and the traction company, as well as vice president of the traction firm.

Doolittle was a director of United Light, vice president and director of the Koppers Construction Company, director of the traction firm.

Marshall was chairman of the board of Koppers Company and, in 1928, director of the traction company.

H. B. Rust was president of Koppers, director of Koppers Gas and Coke Company, director of United Light and Power, member of the traction executive committee.

W. F. Rust was vice president of Koppers Company, director of the American Light and Traction Company until 1929, director of United Light and Railways.

MARY FAITH

Story of a Girl With Husband Who Wouldn't Grow Up

By BEATRICE BURTON

Kim's Mother Is Distrustful Of Young Lady Friend Of the Family

CHAPTER XXVII.

There had been a great deal of discussion about the baby's name, Mary Faith and Mrs. Farrell wanted him named Kimberley, of course. Every boy ought to have his father's name, they maintained. But Kim was for something plain and short and solid, like John or Bill.

"There ought to be a law against hanging names like Kimberley and Livingston and Percival on boys," he told them. "When I was a kid I used to have to fight in the school yard about once a week with somebody or other who'd make fun of my name."

Mary Faith took the cup out of its white pasteboard box as soon as Claire had gone. It was made of hammered silver and it had two little round handles. On one side of it was engraved: "For little Kim from his Aunt Claire."

"I wonder where his Uncle Jack comes in," Mrs. Farrell said dryly, as she looked at it. "I suppose he just pays the bill, eh?"

That night at dinner she told Kim about the cup.

"Your friend, Mrs. Maldon, brought the baby a present today," she said, making a face as if the beef broth she was drinking was very bitter. "She brought him a cup—and he not able to hold his own bottle yet! Why didn't she bring him a carriage cover or something useful, I'd like to know . . . My, but I do dislike that woman!"

SAW SIMILAR CUP

"I saw a cup the other day that I'd have liked to buy for the baby, myself," said Kim. "It had two handles, to make it easy to hold, and the silver that it was made of was hammered so that it wouldn't show any dents even if the baby did throw it on the floor. . . Babies do throw everything on the floor, don't they, when they're peeved?"

Neither Mary Faith nor his mother answered him. They were staring at each other across the table.

Kim looked from one to the other of them.

"What's the matter with you two?" he asked.

Mary Faith got up and opened the top drawer of the sideboard. From it she took the white box. She set it down before him on the table and opened it. Within it was the little two-handled cup of hammered silver.

She lifted it out without saying a word and set it on the tablecloth.

He began to laugh. "Well, I'll be doggoned," he said. "You've got me with the goods this time, haven't you?—Let me tell you both what happened. I was walking down Spring street the other day and whom should I run into but Claire. She was on her way to the Pig'n' Whistle to get a bite of lunch and so was I. So we went there together, and afterward we were looking into Armbruster's window and we saw this little cup. She must have gone in after I left her and bought it."

DOESN'T TRUST CLAIRE

He picked it up and put it back into the box.

"I suppose I ought to have said something about it," his voice ran on, "but I forgot all about it. After all it wasn't anything to remember, was it?—Having lunch with the wife of one of your friends? We thought Jack might join us there. He eats lunch there himself almost every day."

He raised his eyes and looked across the table at Mary Faith.

"You aren't sore, are you?"

"Why, of course not, Kim. Why would I be angry?—You have a perfect right to have lunch with Claire if you want to."

And then they began to talk about something else and the matter of the cup was forgotten.

But the next morning Mrs. Farrell brought it up again while she watched Mary Faith washing out the baby's little flannels in the bathroom bowl.

"I wouldn't trust that Mrs. Maldon any farther than I could throw an elephant by the tail," she remarked from her seat on the rim of the bathtub. "I wouldn't be surprised to find out that she had asked Kimberley to take her to lunch. You take a woman like that, who has a lot of time on her hands, and nine times out of ten she's just the kind that goes around having love affairs with her husband's friends or with any other good-looking man that she takes a fancy to."

SALARY IS RAISED

Mary Faith shook her dark, glossy head as she wrung the baby's little nightgowns out of the fluffy soap suds.

"I'm not worrying about Claire Maldon, Mother Farrell," she answered, "or about any other woman these days. Why, Kim's home before 6 almost every night and he's as settled and as sober as a judge lately. I don't believe he has anything but business on his mind."

On the first of April the firm gave him a salary raise of $10 a week.

"Seventy smackers now for you two to throw around every week of your lives!" he told his mother and Mary Faith when he came home with the news. "That ought to buy the baby shoes every now and then, eh what?" He twinkled with satisfaction and pride.

"Or some new clothes for me and Mary Faith," said his mother. "We're like a couple of scarecrows."

"Yes, but we hardly ever go out—and when we do we go in the car and nobody sees us. It's Kim who needs new clothes right now. His spring overcoat is faded and worn around the cuffs and pockets—and appearance is everything to a man. He must look successful or he never gets anywhere in his work," Mary Faith put in. "So I think Kim ought to get himself a new overcoat before the rest of us even think of new clothes."

But the next week Mrs. Farrell went downtown on a shopping trip and came home with a new hat of king's blue felt that brought out all the hollows and shadows of her face.

"I took $5 out of the housekeeping money and bought myself this hat," she confessed to Mary Faith when she came home. "I had to go up to see Dr. Thatcher and I hated to go in that gray hat of mine. I've worn that hat every time I've gone up there for the last three years."

She went downtown once every three or four weeks, and Mary Faith had noticed that when she came home she always spoke of having seen Dr. Thatcher. And yet, so far as she knew, he never sent her a bill. Moreover she had no illness that she ever spoke of.

"Don't you think it's high time that Dr. Thatcher sent us a bill, Mother Farrell?" she asked now. "The baby is almost four months old. Next time you go down to his office perhaps you ought to say something to him about it."

Her mother-in-law shook her head in its gay new hat.

"No. He'll send it when he gets ready to," she replied. "He's an old friend of ours as well as our doctor, Mary Faith. And sometimes he doesn't send us a bill for a whole year. We must owe him money for years back. Every now and again I send him a little on account."

Synopsis

Mary Faith, secretary to Mark Nesbit, wealthy businessman, gives up her position to marry Kimberley Farrell, shiftless young lawyer. She realizes he has an eye for every girl, but hopes that married life will sober him and make him successful in his profession. Instead, Kim is annoyed at Mary Faith's "Puritanism," and his friends, Claire and Jack Maldon, find her a dull companion. Learning that she is to become a mother, Mary Faith, for the first time, visits Kim's office. Kim is furious when Mary Faith finds him flirting with his blonde secretary. That night he informs his mother and Mary Faith that he is leaving. Heartbroken, Mary Faith decides not to tell him of her approaching motherhood. She gets a temporary job as a stenographer. Kim returns after a son is born. The family is happy again.

Now Go On

"I wouldn't trust that Mrs. Maldon," Mrs. Farrell remarked.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Saturday we visited the Sheridan Square and Cameraphone chapters of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Clubs and yesterday reported about the activities of the Sheridan Square. So today let me tell you about the Cameraphone.

As we entered the lobby of the Cameraphone, there stood Manager George Bronson, receiving the youngsters. Shaking hands with each and giving each a great big smile and cheery "hello." Over in one corner was seated Manager Bronson's assistant and the grand jester, enrolling new members. After receiving a membership card each new member entered the auditorium to await the opening of the meeting.

NEW MEMBERS

Boyle Butler, 6260 Frankstown avenue; Edward Weiss, 156 Flavel street; Dan Cangilla, 6434 Aurelia street; Joseph Tauro, 6359 Penn avenue; Edwin Thomas, 447 South Grant street; Regis Ryan, 213 Dennison avenue; Mildred Schroder, 5758 Howe street; Geraldine Cummens, 5437 Potter street; Dorothy Cummens, 5437 Potter street; Patty Curr, 2424 Shady avenue; Alex D'Ippolito, 332 Prince street; Raymond Peck, 6424 Marchand street; Adam and Joe Drumwasser, 557 North Aiken avenue; Frank Hasslinger, 847 Chislett street; Jean Durkin, 4723 Stanton avenue; Thomas and Paul Coffey, 5574 Ametey way; Roselyn de Ninno, 429 Culver street; Elizabeth Dally, 353 Prince street; Betty Brooks, 353 Prince street; Harry Hanna, 313 Filbert street; Richard de Ninno, 429 Culver street, and Alfred Peck, 615 South Aiken avenue.

After all the youngsters had entered the theater the new members were called to the stage and introduced to the other members by Manager George Bronson, and while the new members were still on the stage the grand jester recited the pledge and all the youngsters sang "America," and then Manager Bronson introduced Fred Kelly, who was to act as master of ceremonies for the rest of the meeting.

GIVE PROGRAM

The first act that Fred introduced to the "kiddies" consisted of two charming little girls known as the Evans Sisters, who opened their act by singing "Harvest Moon." This was followed by a tap routine to the tune of "River, Stay Away From My Door." Fred Kelly then sang a couple of Irish ballads and then introduced Jane Neff, who, dressed in an orange costume, proceeded to tap her way right into the hearts of the members.

Adele Yorio, long a favorite with the members of the Cameraphone Chapter, then sang "Your Telling Me." The Evans Sisters returned after changing their costumes to sing "Wabash Moon" and dance to that ever popular number, "Smile, Darn You, Smile."

Jane Neff closed the program with an acrobatic number which left not only herself, but also the members breathless.

The membership drive which Manager Bronson announced on December 31, still has three weeks to go and it is hoped that more than 500 new members will be enrolled before the drive ends.

Boots, Boots, Boots, and a Hat

First Democratic problem of March will be the limitation of high hats within city limits.

Don't forget the Republican whose silk funnel didn't fit his official car. He had to buy a higher and more expensive motor. This necessitated the building of a taller garage. And by the time the bills stopped rolling in we thought we had won another war.

All this could have been eliminated by buying a folding opera hat or carrying his glossy topper in his lap.

Now, a Democrat ain't any different from a Republican when it comes to shiny smokestacks. He likes to wear them legally or even on suspicion.

A silk hat makes you an imposing figure. It raises you above the common herd and turns prominent weddings and funerals into personal triumphs.

So, let's fix the cruising radius of silk helmets. If a politician wants to look distinguished at our public expense let him ride a motorcycle and carry his hat in the side car.

He could be allowed a deputy to tip the hat when passing important buildings or historic monuments.

All in favor signify in the usual manner, but don't wake up the neighbors.

The story of the Republican silk tam will go down in song and prose. Tom Powers suggested boring a hole in the top of the car. This was a good idea, but arrived too late. Both the hat and the car had been paid for.

And another small but powerful detail. Any citizen should be entitled to lift up a politician's silk bonnet to see if there is anything under the hood. That's the way we buy cars.

We hope we have none of these embarrassing events for the next few years. We don't like to criticize our officials.

And we hope that no Republican forgets his hat on March 4. We don't want the boys going back for them on the fifth.

COLDS ARE NOW REACHING OUT FOR VICTIMS!

Be Wise—Be Careful—Adopt This Simple Precautionary Measure!

Colds are increasing. In some sections Influenza is breaking out. Don't be alarmed, but don't be careless.

A cold is much easier avoided than cured! Do the sensible thing and adopt the ounce of prevention policy. Stay out of crowds as much as you can. Avoid coughers and sneezers. Dress warmly, keep your feet dry and sleep in a well-ventilated room.

Every morning and night take a tablet or two of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. This will keep the bowels open and combat infection by cold germs.

Millions know Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine as an excellent cold remedy, but not enough know it as an equally excellent preventive. Learn its efficacy and keep a package handy all winter long as your "safety first" measure.

If you have already caught cold there is nothing better you can take than Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. It doesn't merely suppress the cold—it drives it completely out of the system. At the same time, it ones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

For more than forty years, Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula keeping pace with Modern Medicine. Now in two sizes—30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and look for the initials L B Q stamped on every tablet. Reliable dealers will not try to sell you a substitute.

JUST CHECKING UP

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

Bob Barth tells us he was at the Estrom dance last Saturday night. When Bob read the anonymous letter from Estrom, declaring there were many drunk men and several drunk women at the gathering, he said it was substantially correct. Another story drifts into town of a dance, a few nights ago about eight miles east and two miles north of Lamar, at a private house. There was a lot of hard cider on tap, so the story goes, and a number of women as well as men proceeded to get snowed under.

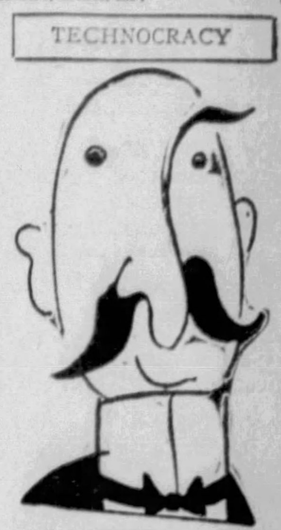
TECHNOCRACY



This is economist J. Gilroy McLeish, who has come from Edinborough to lecture on practical methods of reducing living costs without lowering the standard of living. Speaking before the Society of Technocrats, Dr. McLeish told how the white collar worker can scientifically better himself.

"When you go to buy a white collar," says the professor, "ask the clerk to show you what he has to offer. Extract two collars from the box and politely inquire the price.

"'Two for a quarter,'" the clerk will reply.

"Then put one collar back in the box and hold up the remaining collar and ask, 'How much is this one?'

"'Fifteen cents,' the clerk will say.

"Then reply, "All right, mister—I'll take the other one.'"

Lower Tariff Would Help Aliens, Victimize U. S. Industry and Labor

OF all the fool ideas offered as a solution for the depression, perhaps the most idiotic is the proposal that we reduce our tariffs so as to admit into this country more goods of foreign manufacture in consideration of a corresponding or proportionate lowering of tariff barriers by the nations of Europe.

We owe this sapient suggestion to those founts of interested and self-serving counsel, the international bankers and their trained seal economists.

It deserves about as much consideration as the proposal made by a vice-president of one of the largest of New York's banks, that an issue of British bonds be floated in America to provide Great Britain with money with which to reduce her debt to us.

THE American people surrounded by a ring of European debtor nations, who have already repudiated or announce their purpose to repudiate their borrowings of the past, will hardly look with favor upon a RESUMPTION of LENDING.

It is hard to keep a straight face in the presence of such absurdities.

As to opening our markets still further to the entry of foreign goods, it would mean a further sacrifice of what is left of our domestic trade, with no possible countervailing gains whatever.

There was perhaps a time, now long past, when international tariff restrictions might have lent themselves to constructive adjustment in the interests of general trade revival, but with the resort of some forty nations to depreciated currencies, an ENTIRELY NEW CONDITION HAS ARISEN.

If foreign-made goods can pay the American high tariff duties, and WITH THAT SEVERE HANDICAP, still DRIVE AMERICAN GOODS OUT OF THE AMERICAN MARKET, how are American goods going to compete in foreign markets with foreign goods where the latter are relieved of the handicap of our tariff duties?

IN other words, American goods are made expensive by the high standards of American wages and American living.

Foreign goods are made cheap, by cheap labor, further pauperized by depreciated currencies.

It is obviously impossible for American goods to compete with these cheap foreign goods in foreign markets, unless American labor is also to be pauperized and American standards of living to be sacrificed.

To be specific, if a foreign article manufactured at a cost of one dollar by foreign cheap labor, under the added cheapness of a depreciated currency, is offered in competition with a similar American article made by highly paid American labor, which costs for its manufacture two dollars, how can the American article at two dollars survive competition with the foreign-made article in foreign markets?

OBVIOUSLY the only way the American article can compete in American markets is to add a dollar of duty to the foreign-made article, making it cost two dollars, and giving the American article at two dollars an equal opportunity to compete.

But in foreign markets where no such advantage can be created to favor the American product, the foreign product, manufactured with cheap labor and cheap currency will unquestionably drive the Amerian product completely out of the foreign market.

There is the reason why America's foreign trade has diminished. And there is no remedy for this situation except to pauperize our own labor.

So let us cease to consider foreign trade in competitive articles and consider only the protection of OUR HOME MARKET, which is the greatest market in the world, FOR OUR OWN PRODUCTS, made by properly paid American labor.

WHERE we manufacture certain goods, let us keep similar foreign-made goods out of our country.

We have AS MUCH RIGHT to REGULATE IMPORTS as we have to REGULATE IMMIGRATION.

We have as much RIGHT TO EXCLUDE CERTAIN IMPORTS, DANGEROUS to our AMERICAN STANDARDS AND IDEALS, as we have the right to EXCLUDE certain IMMIGRATION which is a MENACE TO OUR AMERICAN STANDARDS AND IDEAL.

Rallying for Honesty

The Meeting to Demand Election Reform Will Help to Impress the Legislature.

In a recent statement concerning the need for election law reforms to prevent such frauds as were perpetrated in Allegheny County in the election of last November, Senator Frank J. Harris said a real concentration of influence of civic bodies and individuals in support of the measures sponsored by the Pennsylvania Elections Conference would almost surely bring success.

An opportunity to concentrate the demand for these reforms is afforded in the meeting to be held Thursday night at the Keystone Athletic Club. It is to be hoped that not only the organizations that have already pledged support to the program for honest elections will be strongly represented at this rally, but that civic bodies that have not yet declared themselves will avail themselves of the opportunity to express their sentiments.

While the support of independent Republican and Democratic members of the General Assembly can be counted upon to further the election reform program, the recent pronouncement of Senator James J. Coyne and his legislative henchmen against any change in the existing system makes it plain that hard work will have to be done to gain the adherence of the Republican state organization.

The rally on Thursday night will help to impress upon the organization Republicans the strength and volume of the public demand for the protection of the elections.

One of the changes most needed is in the system of registration. Registration in the cities should be permanent. This would make it difficult to pad the rolls at each election with long lists of "phantoms" and at the same time would make it easier for the independent citizen to vote. The present system was devised by politicians, as Senator Harris says, to promote their own selfish aims, and to make voting as difficult as possible for the citizens who refuse to take orders from the organization ward chairmen.

The Legislature—particularly the Republican organization members—must be impressed with the fact that the people are angry about the stealing of elections and intend to stop it. The meeting Thursday will help to impress them.

Hospital Aid Imperative

Unemployment Relief Must Not Be Provided at the Expense of the Indigent Sick.

With the hospital authorities at their wits' ends to meet their financial obligations because of the increase in charity patients, Gov. Gifford Pinchot has aroused apprehension by saying in his message to the Legislature that unless the money needed for unemployment relief is taken from the hospitals and other state-aided institutions it will be out of the question to raise it through economies in government.

The Governor has erred in even suggesting that the money might be taken from the hospitals.

The hospitals are rendering a service second to none in importance in their philanthropic care of the indigent sick.

That they should be deprived of their customary state aid, without which some of them would scarcely be able to keep going, is unthinkable.

Safety Demands It

Compulsory Motor Vehicle Inspection Is Shown by Statistics to Reduce Accidents

Pittsburgh police authorities have received from the Department of Revenue at Harrisburg a communication which effectively answers motorists who may be disposed to grumble against the state's requirement that they have their machines officially inspected again before March 31.

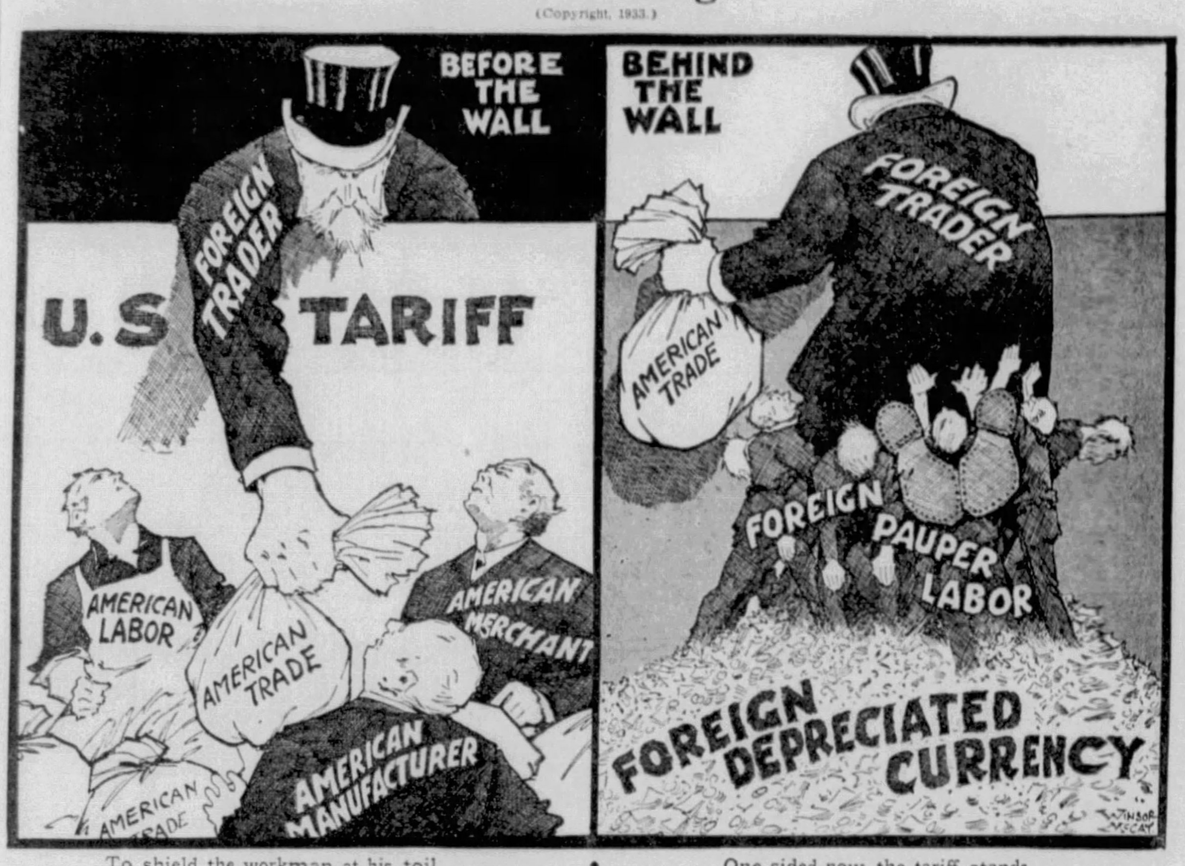
It is pointed out that in these times of stress automobile owners are inclined to delay making adjustments and repairs, because of the cost, until their cars are in a dangerous condition. Hence the need for compulsion.

Cars that threaten the safety of the drivers and others because of the defectiveness of their equipment cannot prudently be allowed on the public highways, and the official inspection requirements assure that needed repairs will be made or the machines withdrawn from the roads.

Statistics prove that the inspection plan reduces accidents. That is all the justification that is necessary.

Build It Higher!

(Copyright, 1933.)



To shield the workman at his toil
We reared a tariff tall,
Guarding the mill and mine and soil
With its protecting wall.
But when the aliens built a heap
Of francs and pounds and labor cheap
The wall that once was high and steep
Became no wall at all.

One-sided now the tariff stands,
A bulwark rendered nil.
The pauper goods of foreign lands
May scale the wall at will.
And since these mortal ills abide
And flourish on the other side
The time has come to stem the tide
By building higher still.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

Don't Take Me Seriously

Writing a daily feature is not all Christmas cards and happy landings. It has its "luxury-tax," like every other pleasant vocation.

One of the most disheartening things about it is that, when you think you have blazoned some burning and immortal truth to the world, everybody believes you are just "wise-cracking" or talking through your beret. But when you are merely trying to be airily amusing everybody takes you SERIOUSLY!

* * *

When I lightly suggested that the feminine return to curls, ringlets, long gloves and puffed sleeves might bring about a masculine return to those "graceful gallantries" of a more romantic and leisurely day—little did I think or dream that I should bring down such a storm of argument about my ears. Whew!

The funny part of it is that most of the women who have written me are "agin'" me—and most of the men are FOR me. Most of the women seem to think that "good manners" in men are a menace to modernism and feminine "equality"—while most of the men agree that they'd like to practice a few of the social graces and keep up the polished customs of yesteryear, if the girls would not think them "simps."

Personally, I cannot see where good breeding, courtesy and graciousness are incompatible with he-manliness, nor why subway hoodlumism should be regarded as a tribute to woman's superior intelligence. Or as a symbol of modern advance!

Perhaps the most polished men we have, today, the men who conform most rigidly to the rules and conventions of courtesy and gallantry, are the officers of the Army and Navy—most of them fought through the World War—and were pretty "hard-boiled guys," when necessary, "over there."

* * *

But let me quote from just one letter: "May I take exception to your statement, 'Every American woman who has been abroad wishes that American men could know the thrill it gives a woman to have her hand kissed.' Personally it gives me a pain—and so do the other out-of-date customs you say we women are so fond of. It is inconsistent and unfair to ask him (the American man) to cling to the trappings of the social system from which he has advanced—etc.'"

* * *

Good heavens! Nobody wants or expects the American man to revert to the hand-kissing business. That's a foreign custom—not ours. He'd probably feel foolish, if he tried it and look more foolish. But, if hat-tipping, barring the head in an elevator, guiding a woman across the street and all those pretty little graces ought to be discarded—well, why not let's throw away our knives and forks, eat our lamb-chops with our fingers and drink our soup from a bowl, like Good Queen Bess? Let's be "advanced"—that's what!

But, don't take me seriously. My only point was and is that woman's fancy is always caught by a gallant gesture or a graceful act of courtesy—which takes only about two seconds.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Life doesn't fail us,
WE FAIL LIFE.
Life is always giving us chances to GROW;
We are always seeking chances to ESCAPE GROWTH.
Life is always offering us FREEDOM;
We are always binding ourselves with SHACKLES.
When you start life, if you are normally born,
You are as free as any young animal.
Life, that great jungle, with its infinite adventures,
Lies before you.
Those adventures may be yours,
BUT YOU MUST PAY A PRICE FOR THEM.
ANYTHING THAT LIVES MUST PAY A PRICE FOR LIVING.
Even the turnip, painfully forcing its tiny roots
Through the hard soil, must pay a price for living.
Even the wild bird, nesting perilously in trees,
Winging dangerously through storms,
Must pay a price for living.
And you, the greatest animal of all,
The animal with a soul,
Must pay the highest price of all.
You can have almost anything you want out of life,
IF YOU'RE WILLING TO PAY
THE PRICE.
You can have riches, and power,
and wisdom,
And happiness, and beauty, and adventure,
And the rarest gift of all—love—
If you're willing to pay the price.
BUT THE PRICE ISN'T MONEY.
IF THESE THINGS COULD BE BOUGHT WITH MONEY
WE'D ALL HAVE THEM.
THE PRICE IS SOMETHING
THAT'S FAR HARDER TO GIVE OR GET THAN MONEY.
THE PRICE IS PART OF YOURSELF;
Some HINDERING part of yourself;
Some PAMPERED part of yourself.
If you want the fullness of life
You must pay for it by the sacrifice
Of your own laziness or impatience,
Your own cowardice or conceit
Your own dishonesty or spitefulness,
You think Life is holding you
back;
But Life isn't holding you back.
These things are holding you back—
These things in yourself.
Stop and think—
Think honestly, with all the courage you possess.
Think of the chances you lost.
WHY DID YOU LOSE THEM?
Was it Someone Else's fault that you lost them?
Did Life take them from you?
Or did you, yourself, by your own cussedness,
Lose those chances?
You know the answer.
Luck was there for you to have,
And it's there for every man to have,
AT A PRICE.
But when it came right down to making the bargain—
WERE YOU WILLING TO PAY
THE PRICE?
Life doesn't fail us.
WE FAIL LIFE.

Isn't It So?

Nothing is drier than the tears of a cheat.

Many a wife has to egg on a man to bring home the bacon.

A clever woman is one who lets her husband think he is the boss.

The most profitable teaching comes from the school of experience.

What the average man thinks of the hit and run auto driver would not look well in a religious publication.

The depression has caused a lot of persons to realize for the first time that it is necessary to work for a living.

Text for Today For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us.—Romans, viii:18.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Discourtesy, despite the theater's need of public favor, has not tumbled from its lofty pedestal in New York box offices. There are notable exceptions, of course—alert and obliging men and women, too, who realize the dividends of pleasantness.

But they are in the minority. The majority still greet customers with a "What are you doing here?" manner. A favorite irritation is to find a multiplicity of things to do before shuffling to the window and gazing out in utter boredom.

A stage hit usually disposes of its first 12 rows to ticket agencies. This custom has merit in convenience to those able to afford the tariff, but that's all. This might be excusable, if those who cannot afford it were treated kindly at the box offices.

Frugal theater patrons express a piety and are easily bluffed. And it seems to be a malicious diversion of box-office autocrats to confuse them. Often their treatment has the same condescension that beggars receive at coffee wagons.

That a casual walk-in should receive as much attention as those at the agencies, instead of being forced to assume a posture of abject supplication, does not seem unreasonable. After all, in the good will of such humble customers lies hope of the theater's survival.

A "Get yer picture on a button!" photographer, along the library wall, suddenly collapsed the other afternoon. He had not eaten in four days, a plight symbolical of curb salesmen. He proved to be "Flash" Danny McGilvray, once ace of the street hawkers flowered in Chicago. A lusty-voiced plowboy off an Iowa farm, he went broke during the World's Fair and turned to this calling. Afterward, he roamed from city to city, often making $100 a day.

* * *

On East 49th street, an old tenement is being torn down. A gaping hole reveals a bedroom, papered in pink rosebuds and ribbon of the Gay 90's. Grownups stop reflectively at this small-town scene in a city's heart.

* * *

Fifty-seventh street, running from Park avenue on the east to Sixth avenue on the west, now is New York's Petticoat Lane. From 10 a. m. until 5 p. m. its pavements are foamed with fashionably-dressed women. Today, I saw there the furred and haughty Julia Hoyt, Lois Long in one of those dollar-sized chits of millinery, statuesque Clara Walsh and Peggy Hoyt, throated and cuffed in sables.

* * *

Newspapermen were discussing the benign effects of even casual praise on a struggling writer. My experience is typical. As a press agent, I once wrote a short bit for Burns Mantle. He quoted a few lines as coming from one "who writes surprisingly well." That, more than anything else, stiffened my determination to be on my own.

* * *

Billy Moore, who knows everybody on Broadway and a lot on Park, also knows a Scotsman who used only one spur. He figured that the other side would go anyway.

Someone tells me, Bobby Clark and Paul McCulloch split their salary checks evenly, although the latter is little more than a stooge. It is an arrangement founded on a behind-the-barn handshake of a couple of runaways from Springfield, O., years ago. And has endured the struggle up through circuses, medicine shows and carnivals to Broadway stardom.

Harry Silvey took Joe Laurie, Jr., on his first visit to a Park avenue penthouse the other evening. The elevator was out of order and they had to walk up 10 flights. "And did I pent!" gasped Laurie.

From a news item: "Among those at the entrance, shoved about by the angry cop, was the columnist, McIntyre, his hat going one way, his cane another."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

To young people who have finished school and cannot procure jobs:

Because you have a college diploma it does not indicate that you have all the knowledge you will need to make a success in any line you undertake.

In fact the line of study you perfected and to which you devoted the most time and in which you feel most proficient may not be in demand.

In order to ... a livelihood you may have to learn and pursue a very different course.

Changing world conditions have taken more practical turn.

Other lines have become more profitable wage-earning avenues.

Therefore, it would be well for graduates to use their leisure in continuing a general line of study.

Some people are too studious to amount to anything in earning money.

But that is not a well-balanced state.

Youth needs contacts with the world to know what is needed and to learn how to approach those to whom they wish to sell their wares.

Too proficient in the art of salesmanship defeats its own purpose.

But practical knowledge of how to interest the average person and get them to want what you have to give is worth while studying while out of work.
